ADDRESS

OF THE

HOUSE OF COMMONS OF GREAT BRITAIN

HIS MAJESTY,

RESPECTING

The Public Records of the Kingdom.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS,
Veneris, 11° die Julii, Anno 40° Georgii 3^{tii} Regis, 1800.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, Your MAJESTY's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Commons of Great Britain in Parliament assembled, having taken into our Consideration the State of the Public Records of this Kingdom, and the Necessity of providing for the better Arrangement, Preservation, and more convenient Use of the same, humbly beg leave to lay before Your Majesty the Report of our Proceedings thereon; and to represent to Your Majesty, that in several of the Principal Offices we have found the Public Records preserved with great Order and Regularity, and in some few, with a Method and Care which are exemplary; but that, in many of the most important Offices, they are wholly unarranged, undescribed, and unascertained; that some of them are exposed to Erasure, Alteration, and Embezzlement, and others are lodged in Places where they are daily perishing by Damp, or incurring a continual Risk of Destruction by Fire.

A Period of nearly Seventy Years has elapsed since the last General Parliamentary Inquiry upon this Subject; and, during this Interval of Time, the Change which has taken place in the Language and written Character of Judicial Proceedings, as well as the large Accumulation of Materials which has been progressively superadded in every Department, have increased the Difficulties of methodizing the several Repositories, or applying their Contents to Purposes of practical Use.

In the Course of our Inquiry we have found that many of the Public Buildings allotted to these Uses, and especially those Buildings which belong to Your Majesty's Exchequer in all its Branches, comprehending the ancient Records and Muniments of the Rights and Possessions of the Crown, and the Vouchers and Accounts of the Public Revenues and Expenditure, are in a State so incommodious and insecure, as to require immediate Attention.

It has also appeared to us, that the salutary Measures heretofore adopted by Your Majesty's Authority, for methodizing the Contents of some of the principal Repositories of Your Majesty's Records and Papers of State, might also be extended to many other Repositories, with Consequences highly beneficial to the Public Service.

And the same Motives which encouraged our Predecessors to intreat Your Majesty's Directions for printing the ancient Records of Domesday, and the Rolls of Parliament, have also induced us to submit to Your Majesty's Wisdom, our Desire of extending the same Measure to other ancient and valuable Monuments of our History, Laws, and Government.

Your faithful Commons do therefore most humbly beseech Your Majesty, that You will be graciously pleased to give such Directions as Your Majesty, in Your great Wisdom, shall think fit, for the better Preservation, Arrangement, and more convenient Use of the Public Records of this Kingdom.

And we beg leave further to assure Your Majesty, that whatever extraordinary Expenses may be incurred by the Directions which Your Majesty in Your great Wisdom shall think fit to give on this Occasion, shall be chearfully provided for and made good by Your faithful Commons.

JOURNAL OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS,

Jovis, 17° die Julii;

Anno 40° Georgii 3tii Regis, 1800.

Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer reported to the House, That their Address of Friday last (that His Majesty would be graciously pleased to give such Directions as He shall think fit, for the better Preservation, Arrangement, and more convenient Use of the Public Records of this Kingdom; and to assure His Majesty, that whatever extraordinary Expenses may be incurred by the Directions which His Majesty shall think fit to give on this Occasion, shall be made good by His faithful Commons) had been presented to His Majesty; and that His Majesty had commanded him to acquaint this House, that He will give Directions as desired by the said Address.

COMMISSION

19th July 1800.

Now know ye, That We, considering the Premises, and earnestly desiring more effectually to provide for the better Arrangement, Preservation, and more convenient Use of the said Records and Papers, and reposing great Trust and Confidence in your Fidelity, Discretion, and Integrity;—

And Our further Will and Pleasure is, That ye, or any Three or more of you, do and shall, on or before the 25th Day of March in the Year of our Lord 1801, and so from Year to Year, on or before the 25th Day of March in each Year respectively, so long as this Commission shall continue in force, certify unto Us in Our Privy Council, under your Hands and Seals respectively, all and every of the several Proceedings of yourselves and of the said Sub-Commissioners had by virtue of these Presents, together with such other Matters (if any), as may be deserving of Our Royal Consideration touching or concerning the Premises, and what further Measures (if any) ye shall think fit to propose thereupon.

Formation of the Record.

§ 1. Name.

DOMESDAY BOOK, one of the moſt ancient Records of England, is the Regiſter from which Judgement was to be given upon the value, tenure, and ſervices of Lands therein deſcribed.

Other Names by which it appears to have been known, were, Rotulus Wintoniæ, (1) Scriptura Theſauri Regis, (2) Liber de Wintonia, (3) and Liber Regis (4). Sir Henry Spelman adds, Liber Judiciarius, Cenſualis Angliæ, Angliæ Notitia & Luſtratio, and Rotulus Regis. (5)

Linc. rot. 6. in which laſt reference it is ſaid: " Preterea idem Robertus ponit ſe ſuper Rotulum Wintoniæ quod terra illa pertinet a Conqueſtu Angliæ ad feudum quod ipſe habet tenere in capite de Domino Rege."

2 Regiſtr. Mon. Abend. MS. Cotton. Brit. Muſ. Claud. B. vi. fol. 150. Stow, Annals p. 118. fol. Lond. 1631. tells us, " The Booke of Bermondſey ſaith this Book was laid up in the King's Treaſurie (which was in the Church of Wincheſter or Weſtminſter,) in a place called Domus Dei, or Gods houſe, and ſo the name of the booke, therefore called Domus Dei, and ſince, ſhortly, Domeſday."

5 Gloſſar. in v. Domesday. The author of the Dialogus de Scaccario gives the following explanation of the Name. " Hic Liber ab indigenis Domeſdei nuncupatur, id eſt, Dies Judicii, per metaphoram: ſicut enim diſtricti et terribilis examinis illius noviſſimi ſententia nulla tergiverſationis arte valet eludi; ſic, cum orta fuerit in regno contentio de his rebus quæ illic annotantur, cum ventum fuerit ad librum, ſententia ejus infatuari non poteſt, vel impune declinari. Ob hoc nos eundem Librum Judiciarium nominavimus; non quod ab eo ſicut a prædicto Judicio non licet ulla ratione diſcedere." Madox Hiſt. Excheq. edit. 4°. vol. ii. p. 398. So Rudborne, Angl. Sacr. tom. i. p. 257. " Vocatus Domyſday; et vocatur ſic, quia nulli parcit, ſicut nec magnus dies Judicii." The ſame interpretation, almoſt in the words of the Dialogus de Scaccario, is cited by Spelman from the Eſcheat Rolls of the reign of Edward the Third. Gloſs. v. Domesday.

From the Introduction to the Abbreviatio Placitorum, we learn that, in the archives of the Earls of Cheſter, there formerly exiſted a Roll, denominated the Domeſday of Cheſter. The entries in this Roll, it is obſerved, were eſteemed of high authority, and perhaps concluſive evidence; for in an Aſſize of Darrein Preſentment in the County of Cheſter, anno 38 Hen. III. between Roger de Sandbach and the Abbot of Deulacreſe, as to the Church of Sandbach, removed by Certiorari into the King's Bench, the Court, amongſt other grounds for pronouncing their judgement, give the following reaſon: " Et quia convictum eſt per Domesday Cestr' quod perpetuam habet firmitatem et omnia quæ in eo continentur inperpetuum ſunt ſtabilia in quo continetur quod, &c. conſideratum eſt, &c." Hill. 38 Hen. III. Ceſtr. rot. 10.

Dugdale quotes a Deed in the Monaſticon Anglicanum, tom. iii. p. 164. " ex Regiſtro quodam nuncupato Domesday, penes Decanum & Capit. Ebor."

Among Dr. Rawlinſon's manuſcripts in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, is a fragment of a ſurvey of all the manors belonging to the Deanery of St. Paul's, taken in 1181, and called " Domiſday Radulphi de Diceto."

SECT. 2.—DATE.

Formation of the Record.

§ 2. Date.

THE exact time of the Conqueror's undertaking the Survey is differently stated by Historians. The Red Book of the Exchequer seems to have been erroneously quoted ([1]) as fixing the time of entrance upon it in 1080; it being merely stated in that Record, (in which the original of the Dialogus de Scaccario is found,) that the work was undertaken at a time subsequent to the total reduction of the island to William's authority.

From the Memorial of the Completion of this Survey, at the end of the second Volume, it is evident that it was finished in 1086.

Matthew Paris, ([2]) Robert of Gloucester, ([3]) the Annals of Waverley, ([4]) and the Chronicle of Bermondsey ([5]) give the year 1083 as the date of the Record. Henry of Huntingdon places it in 1084. ([6]) The Saxon Chronicle in 1085. Bromton, ([7]) Simeon of Durham, ([8]) Florence of Worcester, ([9]) the Chronicle of Mailros, ([10]) Roger Hoveden, ([11]) Wikes, ([12]) and Hemingford, ([13]) in 1086: and the Ypodigma Neustriæ, ([14]) and Diceto ([15]) in 1087.

If, from internal evidence, the progress of its formation could be traced, there would be little difficulty in reconciling the testimonies of these Historians.

The person and the property of Odo Bishop of Bayeux are said to have been seized by the Conqueror in 1082, ([16]) but as the estates of that prelate are retained in the Survey in terms which indicate actual possession, we are left to conclude either that his property was not confiscated, or that the Survey of it was taken at a period earlier than his disgrace. The probability which the entries afford is, that the estates were under sequestration but not forfeited. ([16])

From the words "Hugo de Grentemaisnil tenet feudo Reginæ" in fol. 232 a. of the first volume of Domesday, Nichols conjectures ([17]) that the account of Leicestershire was taken before the death of the Conqueror's Queen, that is before the second of November 1083; and it is a curious fact that, in the survey of her property in Buckinghamshire, it is said "Matilda tenet," as if the inquest for ascertaining the value of the estates had been held while the Queen was living; though, at the close of the Return, when the improved rent is noticed, it is said, "Quando vivebat Regina, xv. lib."

Diceto was the Dean, under whose direction it was made. A manuscript note of Bishop Kennett, also in the same library, in a copy of Cowel's Law Interpreter, quotes the Domesday of the Nuns of Haliwell. This last it is probable was only a Leiger Book of the Monastery.

Formation of the Record.

§ 2. Date.

From other paſſages, however, in folios 68 b, 83 b, 163 b, 170 b, and 222 of the ſame volume, we have the cleareſt evidence poſſible that the ſurveys of the Counties of Wilts, Dorſet, Glouceſter, and Northampton, were taken after that event. ([1]) From an incidental mention of the ſiege of the Caſtle of Saint Suſanna in Maine, fol. 158 b. it is evident that Oxfordſhire muſt alſo have been ſurveyed after the ſame event. ([2]) Rudborne, in his Hiſtoria major Wintonienſis, aſſures us that William did not entertain the project of his Cenſus till after the Queen's death. ([3])

In folios 77 b. and 91 of the firſt volume, Maurice is mentioned as Biſhop of London, who, according to the annals of Waverley ([4]) was choſen to that dignity in 1083; though, according to the Saxon Chronicle, not till 1085. ([5])

The date of that part of the Survey which relates to Shropſhire is aſcertained from fol. 252, where the Abbey of Shrewſbury is mentioned; "quā facit ibi comes." Ordericus Vitalis ſays the foundation of this Abbey was vowed by Roger de Montgomery in 1083. The Church was evidently building at the time of the Survey: and, according to the hiſtory of the Abbey, which Dugdale gives from a Regiſter formerly in Sir Richard Leveſon's poſſeſſion, it appears to have been finiſhed in 1087. ([6]) The Conqueror's Charter ſhews that the monks were not ſeated in it till the latter year. ([7])

That Lincolnſhire was not ſurveyed till 1085, or even later, ſeems evident from the following paſſage: "Reſiduā dimidiā caruc træ habuit 7 habet Sc̄a Maria de Lincolia. in qua ñc eſt epiſcopatus." ([8]) The abſolute removal of the See, from Dorcheſter in Oxfordſhire to Lincoln, having taken place, according to Matthew Paris, in that very year. ([9])

William Biſhop of Thetford, mentioned in the Second Volume of the Domeſday Survey, did not become ſo till 1085. ([10])

An attentive conſideration of the paſſages already referred to, added to the entry at the cloſe of the Second Volume of the Survey, leads us to believe that, by the multiplication of ſubordinate Inqueſts, the work muſt have been completed in a ſhort time; and, that from a tranſcript or abridgment of the Breviates from the different Counties, the great Regiſter was afterwards formed, which has ever ſince been known by the name of Domeſday. ([11])

[1] In fol. 222. we are told, "W. rex dedit Scadewelle S. Edmundo pro anima regine Mathild." Indeed in Dorſetſhire, tom. i. fol. 83. the death of Matilda is expreſsly alluded to. Anſchitil, who held it, is ſtated, according to his own account, to have held it of the Queen, but it is added that after her death he did not petition the King for the land. "Hanc tr̄a tenuit Anſchit [ſ. Ameline] de regina ut dicit. ſed poſt mortem ej⁹ regem non reqſiuit."

[2] This fruitleſs Siege in 1083 is deſcribed by Ordericus Vitalis; it was raiſed after three years. See Bouquet, Recueil des Hiſtoriens des Gaules & de la France, tom. xii. p. 617.

SECT. 3.—ORIGIN AND OBJECT.

Formation of the Record.

§ 3. Origin and Object.

1. INGULPHUS affirms that this Survey was made in imitation of the policy of Alfred, who, at the time he divided the Kingdom into Counties, Hundreds, and Tithings, had an Inquifition taken and digefted into a Regifter, which was called, from the place in which it was repofited, the Roll of Winchefter. (1)

The formation of fuch a Survey, however, in the time of Alfred, may be fairly doubted; as we have only a folitary authority for its exiftence, and the moft diligent inveftigation has not been able to recover, among the Records either of the Saxon or of later times, the flighteft indication that fuch a Survey was ever known. Had it exifted in the Century immediately preceding the Norman Conqueft, it would have prevented the neceffity of giving thofe minute Defcriptions of Land fo common among the later of the Saxon Charters. The feparation of Counties alfo is known to have been a divifion long anterior to the time of Alfred. (2)

Bifhop Kennett, in his Parochial Antiquities, tells us that Alfred's Regifter had the name of Dome-boc, from which the name of DOMESDAY BOOK was only a corruption. This may, perhaps, ferve as a clue to the explanation of the whole. They who were familiar with the name of Domefday, (and it was the common appellation for the Conqueror's Survey among the Englifh,) confidered that the Dome-boc of Alfred, being almoft fynonimous, was intended to defignate the fame kind of Regifter: whereas the DOM-BOC was, in reality, the Code of Saxon Laws. It is noticed as fuch in the Laws of Edward the elder, (3) and more particularly in thofe of Æthelftan. (4)

2. The Saxon Chronicle furnifhes a paffage, under the year 1085, which enters minutely into the motives for the formation of this Survey, and which, if correct, alfo fixes the time of its commencement to that year.

"An. MLXXXV. Carte, in the Gen. Hift. of England, vol. i. p. 314, appears to have had the fame notion of Alfred's Dom-boc. Edward the elder, he obferves, (the fon and immediate fucceffor of Alfred,) in the Preface to his Laws, enjoins all his reeves and minifters, who had any charge in the ftate, to judge equitably according to the directions of that Book, to which they were to adhere ftrictly in all cafes. In the page immediately following, there is a fentence lefs intelligible: Carte laments "that the Dome-Book of Alfred, fo much refpected in Weftminfter Hall to the time of Edward IV. hath been fince loft."

Experti sunt incolæ multos dolores hoc anno; et Rex permisit devastari terras maritimas, ut, si inimici ejus [in terram] ascenderent, iis non esset in promptu commeatus. Quum autem Rex pro certo haberet, suos inimicos impeditos fuisse, nec potuisse expeditionem facere, dimisit aliquam partem exercitus in propriam nationem, aliquam retinuit in hac terra donec hyems finiretur. Ad natales fuit Rex in Gleawceaster cum suis proceribus, et tenuit ibi Curiam suam v. dies; postea autem Archiepiscopus & Clerici habuerunt Synodum trium dierum. Ibi fuit Mauricius electus in Episcopum ad Lundene, et Willielmus ad Northfolc, et Rodbeardus ad Ceasterscire; hi autem omnes erant Regis Capellani. Post hæc, tenuit Rex magnum Concilium, et graves sermones habuit cum suis proceribus de hac terra, quo modo incoleretur, & a quibus hominibus. Mittebat idcirco per totam Anglorum terram in singulos Comitatus suos servos, quibus permisit scrutari quot hydarum centenæ essent in Comitatu, quidque Rex ipse haberet terrarum & pecorum in eo Comitatu; et quantum Census annui deberet percipere ex eo Comitatu. Permisit etiam describi quantum terrarum ejus Archiepiscopi haberent, et Dioecesani Episcopi, ac ejus Abbates, ejusque comites; et, ne longior in hoc sim, quid aut quantum unusquisque haberet, qui terras possideret in Anglorum gente, sive terrarum sive pecoris, quantumque illud pecunià valeret. Tam diligenter lustrari terram permisit, ut ne unica esset hyda, aut virgata terræ, ne quidem (quod dictu turpe, verum is factu turpe non existimavit,) bos, aut vacca, aut porcus præter mittebatur, quod non is retulerat in censum: omniaque postea scripta ad eum afferebantur." ([1])

Upon this passage Sir William Blackstone has the following Commentary. "We learn," he says, ([2]) "from the Saxon Chronicle, that in the nineteenth year of King William's reign an invasion was apprehended from Denmark; and the military constitution of the Saxons being then laid aside, and no other introduced in its stead, the kingdom was wholly defenceless: which occasioned the King to bring over a large army of Normans and Bretons, who were quartered upon every landholder, and greatly oppressed the people. This apparent weakness, together with the grievances occasioned by a foreign force, might co-operate with the King's remonstrances, and the better incline the nobility to listen to his proposals for putting them in a posture of defence. For, as soon as the danger was over, the King held a great council, to inquire into the state of the nation; the immediate consequence of which was the compiling of the great Survey called Domesday Book, which was finished the next year: and in the latter end of that very year the King was attended by all his nobility at Sarum, where all the principal landholders submitted their lands to the yoke of military tenure, became the King's vassals, and did homage and fealty to his person. ([3]) This seems to have been the æra of formally introducing the feodal tenures by law; and probably the very law, thus made at the Council of Sarum, is that which is still extant, and couched in these remarkable words: 'Statuimus, ut omnes liberi homines fœdere & sacramento affirment, quod intra & extra universum regnum Angliæ Wilhelmo Regi domino suo fideles esse volunt; terras & honores illius omni fidelitate ubique servare cum eo, & contra inimicos & alienigenas defendere." ([4]) "This new polity therefore," says Sir William Blackstone, "seems not to have been imposed by the Conqueror, but nationally and freely adopted by the general assembly of the whole Realm, in the same manner as other nations of Europe had before adopted it, upon the same principle of self-security. And, in particular, they had the recent example of the French nation before their eyes; which had gradually furrendered up all its allodial or free lands into the King's hands, who reftored them to the owners as a beneficium or feud, to be held to them and fuch of their heirs as they previoufly nominated to the King: and thus by degrees all the allodial eftates of France were converted into feuds, and the freemen became the vaffals of the Crown. The only difference between this change of tenures in France and that in England, was, that the former was effected gradually, by the confent of private perfons; the latter was done at once, all over England, by the common confent of the nation." (1)

Sir Martin Wright alfo fuppofes that, as this general Homage and Fealty was done about the time that Domefday Book was finifhed, and not before, the Survey was taken "in order to difcover the quantity of every man's fee, and to fix his Homage; becaufe anciently the name and quantity of the fee, &c. was fpecified in the Homage. And this probably" he adds, "was the reafon why almoft all the hiftorians of thofe times join the account of this Survey and of the Homage done about that time together, in fuch a manner that we muft needs think they took them to have immediate relation one to the other." (2)

On the other hand, Lord Coke, the Judges of Ireland in the cafe of Tenures, Mr. Selden, Nathaniel Bacon, and others, were of opinion, that Tenures were not brought into England by the Conqueror, but that they were common among the Saxons: and the internal evidence of Domefday itfelf bears no reference whatever to any fimultaneous furrender of former tenures and re-grant of the fame as feudal.

Sect. 4.—MODE of EXECUTION.

1. Commiffioners and Heads of Inquiry. — Worcestershire.

1. FOR the adjufting of this Survey, certain Commiffioners, called the King's Jufticiaries, (3) were appointed. Thofe for the midland Counties at leaft, if not for all the diftricts, were, Remigius Bifhop of Lincoln, Walter Giffard Earl of Buckingham, Henry de Ferers, and Adam the brother of Eudo Dapifer, who probably affociated to them fome principal perfon in each Shire. This we learn from the following curious document in the Regifter of St. Mary Worcefter, ufually called Heming's Chartulary, preferved among the Cotton Manufcripts in the Britifh Mufeum, Tib. A. XIII.

"Indiculum Libertatis de Ofwaldeflawes Hundred que a toto vicecomitatu UUIREACESTRE facramento iuris iurandi firmata eft, Willelmo feniore regnante. (4)

The Inquisitors, it appears, upon the oaths of the Sheriffs, the Lords of each Manor, the Presbyters of every Church, the Reves of every Hundred, the Bailiffs and six Villans of every village, were to enquire into the name of the place, who held it in the time of King Edward, who was the present possessor, how many hides in the Manor, how many carrucates in demesne, how many homagers, how many villans, how many cotarii, how many servi, what free-men, how many tenants in socage, what quantity of wood, how much meadow and pasture, what mills and fish-ponds, how much added or taken away, what the gross value in King Edward's time, what the present value, and how much each free-man or soch-man had or has. All this was to be triply estimated: first, as the estate was held in the time of the Confessor; then, as it was bestowed by King William; and thirdly, as its value stood at the formation of the Survey. The jurors were moreover to state whether any advance could be made in the value.

Such are the exact terms of an Inquisition, accompanied by the names of the Jurors and the Return of property, in the counties of CAMBRIDGE and HERTFORD, belonging to the monastery of ELY; the following transcript of part of which, from another manuscript in the Cotton Library, [1] will shew more minutely the description and condition of the Jurors.

2. The method generally followed in entering the Returns was, first, to entitle the Estate to its owner, always beginning with "Terra Regis." (1) The Hundred was next specified; then the Tenant; with the Place; and afterward, the description of the property. 2. Inquisitions.

The writer of the Saxon Chronicle, with some degree of asperity, informs us, that not a hyde or yardland, not an Ox, Cow, or Hog, were omitted in the Census. It should seem, however, that the jurors, in numerous instances, framed returns of a more extensive nature than was absolutely required by the King's precept, and it is, perhaps, on this account that we have different kinds of descriptions in different Counties. (2) In some Counties, when the Exchequer Domesday was excerpted from the Rolls, the irrelevant matter appears to have been struck out; while in others it was probably retained. The words also of the Rolls were for the most part given in full, or but partially contracted; while, in the transcribed Survey, an abundance of minute contractions were used, as if with an intention of compressing the whole into the form most convenient for the purposes of a Court of Law.

These conclusions are not drawn from the ELY Manuscript alone, the EXETER Domesday appears to have been another record copied from the same Rolls from which the first Volume of the great Domesday was compiled.

In the Ely, as well as in the Exeter return, the live stock every where occurs; and there is the same difference observable in each, in style and diction, from the Exchequer Survey, in which an uniformity of return from the different Rolls seems at least to have been intended. Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk, which form the second Volume of the great Survey, probably contain Transcripts of the original Rolls; contracted perhaps in words, but full in respect to the sense of the Returns.

1 No entries under "Terra Regis" occur either in Shropshire or in Cheshire. In Somersetshire, the names of the Tenants as enumerated at the beginning, do not answer to the arrangement of the return: and at the beginning of Cheshire they are omitted altogether.

2 The variation in our old Historians respecting the nature of the Returns required by the Domesday Inquest is observable. Ingulphus's testimony is most consonant with the Precept already quoted from the Ely Chartulary. He takes no notice whatever of any return of live stock; nor is any noticed in the Chronicle of Robert of Gloucester. Bromton, Henry of Huntingdon, and Knyghton, say a return was ordered to be made, "quot animalia :" Hoveden, Florence of Worcester, and Simeon of Durham, say "quot animalia, imo quantum vivæ pecuniæ quisque haberet in omni regno a maximo usque ad minimum." Matthew Paris, who is followed by Matthew of Westminster, only says "quot animalia possent sufficere ad unius hydæ culturam." The testimony of the Saxon Chronicle has been already quoted. Bromton adds "quot Ecclesiæ parochiales :" and Sprott "quot Ecclesiarum dignates." The sight of partial extracts from the Survey may possibly have given rise to these variations.

Formation of the Record.

Mode of Execution.

In Domesday Book the arrangement of the Ely property is different from that in the Cotton Manuscript; the irrelative returns not only of live stock, but of other particulars, even the names of the sub-feudatarii, or under-tenants, are omitted; and there is this still more striking difference, that an advanced value is occasionally given to the property. The spelling of the names both of persons and places likewise varies.

In the Exeter Domesday instead of T. R. E. (tempore Regis Edwardi), the Words "eâ die quâ Rex Edwardus fuit vivus et mortuus" constantly occur; and in the Ely Manuscript, "Tempore regis Ædwardi et in morte," is several times used. The former of these phrases occurs more than once in the great Domesday itself. Tom. i. fol. 127. under Stibenhede, "Hanc trã teñ Wills eps in dñio die q rex E. fuit uiuus 7 mortuus. Again, fol. 162. in Devonshire, "Iste mansion fuer in firma regis E. die qua fuit uiuus 7 mortuus." There are several other instances in the returns of Hertfordshire, Cambridgeshire, and Essex.

The Inquisitions having been taken, were sent by the Justiciaries to Winchester, and there classed and methodized, and entered in a Register such as we now view it.

Modes of Rating.

3. Ingulphus makes a boast that the possessions of Croyland Abbey were not rated in their full extent. Speaking of the Jurors, he says, "Isti penes nostrum monasterium benevoli et amantes, non ad verum pretium, nec ad verum spatium nostrum Monasterium librabant, misericorditer præcaventes in futurum regiis exactionibus, et aliis oneribus, piissima nobis benevolentia providentes." ([1]) But from the Chartulary of Battle Abbey, founded by the Conqueror himself, we find that the property of that Monastery was occasionally over-rated in the Survey: "In Wasingate dic Lib regis quod eccla ht vnã virgatã s; ñ hr n dimid." "In Wilminte dic Lib regis quod eccla hr sex virgatas s; ñ hr n qnq." ([2])

That there was no oppression in the valuation, even when owners of land refused to make their own return, is evident from more than one entry. ([3]) A remarkable instance of the equity attaching to the formation of the Survey will be found in the account of the land at Brunfelde in Shropshire, belonging to the Church of St. Mary Shrewsbury, tom. i. fol. 252 b: and it is clear from the Survey itself that the Inquisitions, in many instances, caused the restoration of property. ([4])

Clamores.

4. The Clamores, or Claims entered in the Survey, were usually between Norman and Norman on King William's donation. ([5]) In most counties they occur under the respective property. Those in the counties of York and Lincoln are entered by themselves. In Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk, there are three titles of the same import. In Essex Invasiones, No. XC: in Norfolk, De Invasionibus, No. LXVI: and in Suffolk Invasiones super Regem, No. LXXVI. Under these heads were comprised such Lands as were possessed without a Title from the Conqueror. That is, they that held them were neither put in possession by the Sheriff with authority from the King, nor by his legal or special Commissioner, nor by his Writ or Brief, and thus they were Invaders or Intruders, and possessed without Title, and the Lands called Invasions. Formation of the Record. — § 4. Mode of Execution. — 5. Omissions.

5. Camden indeed has conjectured that many parts were left out, "quia penfitationibus liberæ," and Kelham thinks the obfervation may be well founded. ([1]) In Worcefterfhire we are exprefsly told, that feven out of twelve hundreds were omitted in that County: "In ipfo comitatu funt XII. hund. hoȝ VII. ita funt quieti fic̃ fcira dicit qđ uicecom nichil habet in eis 7 idõ fic̃ dicit in firma multũ pdit." ([2]) And it is often faid that fuch, or fuch land, was never hidated, and that the Hundred can give no account of it. Neverthelefs, in other parts of this great Return, Lands which did not pay geld are inferted. Among the poffeffions of the Church of Bath we find two out of five hides at Efcetone, "a geldo quietæ, c̃ceffu E. 7 W. regum." ([3])

6. Change of Names and Divisions.

6. The names of the Hundreds in the refpective Counties, have undergone a great change. Lincolnfhire is divided into thirty Wapentakes, or Hundreds, yet there are only about nineteen which bear any thing like the fame name in Domefday as they do at prefent; and in Warwickfhire there is not now one remaining out of the ten there fet down. ([4]) In Leicefterfhire indeed, they remain nearly the fame, ([5]) as well as in Cambridgefhire. ([6]) In Bedfordfhire the names of the Hundreds have been altered but in few inftances, but in many cafes the manors have been transferred from one Hundred to another. ([7]) The fame may be faid of Berkfhire, ([8]) and probably of a very large portion of the Counties in general. Buckinghamfhire, when the Survey of Domefday was taken, was divided into eighteen Hundreds, and there are now only eight which compofe feparate diftricts. ([9]) In Middlefex the Hundreds of Ofulveftane, Gara, Heletorne, Spelethorne, Delmetone, and Honeflavv (now Ifleworth), are all enumerated: but in Dorfetfhire, with the exception of Bochelande and Porbich, no Hundreds are mentioned, which renders the Domefday of that County very obfcure.

Northumberland, Cumberland, Weftmoreland, and Durham, are not defcribed in the Survey; neither is Lancafhire under its proper title; but Furnefs, ([10]) and the northern part of the county, as well as the fouth of Weftmorland, with part of Cumberland, are included within the Weft-riding of Yorkfhire ([11]); that part of Lancafhire which lies between the rivers Ribble and Merfey, and which at the time of the Survey comprehended fix hundreds and a hundred and eighty-eight manors, is fubjoined to Chefhire; ([12]) and part of Rutlandfhire is defcribed in the Counties of Northampton and Lincoln. To which may be added that, in later times, the two antient Hundreds of Atiſcroſs and Exeſtan, deemed a part of Cheſhire in the Survey, have been transferred to the Counties of Flint and Denbigh in the Principality of Wales. (1) Herefordſhire, which in the time of the Conqueror appears to have been eſteemed almoſt a Welſh County, is included in the Return. In the account of Glouceſterſhire we find a conſiderable portion of Monmouthſhire included, probably all between the Wye and the Uſk. (2)

Kelham thinks (3) it probable that the King's Commiſſioners might find it impoſſible to take any exact ſurvey of the three Counties northernmoſt of all, as they had ſuffered ſo much from the Conqueror's revenge. (4) As to Durham, he adds, all the country between the Teis and Tine had been conferred by Alfred on the Biſhop of this See; and at the coming in of the Conqueror he was reputed a Count Palatine. In Herefordſhire, tom. i. fol. 181. we have another inſtance of the arbitrary ſhifting of land from the juriſdiction of one County to that of another. See Williams's Hiſt. of Monmouthſhire, p. 140. which ſays, the Cambrians called it Caſtell Glyn Yſtrigul, or the Caſtle near the River Yſtrigul, which falls into the Uſk, between Brynbiga and Caerleon. Lamecare (Lanvair,) Poteſchiuet (Portſewit,) and Dinan, are mentioned in the Survey as Hardeuices, or villages belonging to Herdmen. The enumeration of ſixty-three villages follows, without the name of any one being mentioned. At the end, it is ſaid, " hos miſit. W. comes ad ēſuetud̄ Grifin regis licentia regis W." Caruen (Caerwent) and Caldicot are alſo noticed, as well as Caer-leon. Turſtinus the ſon of Rolf is ſaid to hold ſix carucates " ultra Huſcham," beyond the Uſk.

So complete however was the Conqueror's devaſtation, that William of Malmeſbury ſtates that this diſtrict, above ſixty miles in length, which had been full of towns and cultivated fields, remained barren and deſolate even to his time. Malmeſb. lib. iii. p. 105. § 4. Mode of Execution.

From the particulars which have been ftated, the Survey feems to have been made with as much exactnefs as was poffible. ([1]) The greatnefs of the defign might of itfelf be expected to occafion fome omiffions. Thofe in the larger diftricts have been accounted for; and, in the fmaller ones, it may be reafonable to fuppofe that as fome places mentioned in the Survey have been fince quite depopulated, and every memorial of them loft, fo that many other places which are now of confequence did not exift in the time of the Conqueror. Manors continued to be created till the ftatute of "Quia Emptores," which paffed in the eighteenth year of Edward the Firft, and numerous parcels of land which now form Manors of themfelves, at the time of the Domefday Survey muft have been parcels of other Manors ftill in exiftence.

[1] That Charters were exhibited to the Commiffioners for the Domefday Survey is evident from feveral paffages; as under Niwetone in Devonfhire, fol. 101 b. "De hoc m̄ oftend̄ Ofbn⁹ ēps cartas fuas q̄ teftantʳ æcclam s Petri inde fuiffe faifitam anteq rex E. regnaret." So, again, of the Abbey of Evefham in Worcefterfhire, "Ipfa æccla ten Ambreflege. Hæc antiquitus p III. hid̄ fuit liba fic̄ dn̄t cartæ de æccla. fed T. R. E. fuit numerata p XV. hid̄." In tom. ii. fol. 389 b. under "Terræ Ricardi filii Comitis Giffleberti," we read, "H. maneriū dedit Aluricus fili⁹ Wifgari S̄c̄o Johanni. t. r. e. concedente filio fuo. & quendā facerdotē Ledmarū & alios cū illo impofuit. Facta etiā carta ecclam. & omnē locū Leueftano abbi ad cuftodiendū c̄mifit." A very large portion of the forged Saxon Charters which at this day exift are to be referred to the period of the Domefday Survey. They were fabricated by the Monks in the anxiety to make the titles to their property good when the Norman Commiffioners came among them. Some had even forged Seals, an appendage of Norman origin introduced by Edward the Confeffor.

The Seals both of Edward the Confeffor and William are frequently noticed in the Survey. Once we have a mention of the Seal of Odo bifhop of Baieux and Earl of Kent; unqueftionably the earlieft fpecimen in England of a Baronial Seal. An engraving of it will be found in the firft Volume of the Archaeologia of the Society of Antiquaries. Odo is reprefented on one fide as an Earl, in armour, on horseback.

II.—PRINCIPAL MATTERS NOTICED IN THIS RECORD.

SECT. I.—PERSONS.

Principal Matters noticed in this Record.

§ 1. Persons.

1. AFTER the Bishops and Abbats, the highest persons in rank were the Norman BARONS. In Domesday, the "Barones Regis" are but rarely noticed: and even then, in most cases, we are to understand the King's justiciaries, before whom the claims on property were litigated. (1) From one or two entries, however, there can be little doubt that the designation was generally applied to the King's immediate freeholders, the tenants in capite. In the account of Wareham in Dorsetshire, it is said, "De parte S. Wandregisili sr̃ ibi. XL.V. dom9 stantes. 7 XVII. sr̃ vastæ. De partib3 alioꝝ Baron' sr̃ ibi. XX. dom9 stantes. 7 LX. sr̃ destructæ." (2) And, in the account of Warwick, it is said, "habet Rex in dñio suo. C.XIII. domus. 7 Barones regis h'nt CXII. de quib3 omib3 rex habet geldũ suum." An enumeration of the persons holding these masures follows; after which it is said, "Hæ masuræ ptin ad tras qs ipsi barones ten extra burgũ. 7 ibi appciatæ sunt." (3) "Barones regis" occur continually for Tenants in chief in the Exeter Domesday. (4)

2. The TAINI, Tegni, Teigni, Teini, or Teinni, are to be next mentioned, because those of the highest class were, in fact, the Nobility, or Barons of the Saxon times. The Thanes of the Saxon times, says Kelham, were divided into Thani Regis, Thani mediocres, and Thani minores. The Thani mediocres were equal to the lesser Barons or lords of manors, Selden says to the Vavasors, of the Normans. The Thani inferiores are said to have made up the lowest class of Freeholders. (5)

Although the name of Baron appears, in time, to have supplanted that of Thane, yet, not merely in the beginning, but to the very end of the Conqueror's reign, the title of Thane existed, and was acknowledged. (6) Nor was it likely that the use of language could have been so suddenly altered, that the title of Baron only should have immediately superseded it. Archbishops, Bishops, and Abbats, as well as the great Barons, are also called Thanes. (7)

1 Under Thorp in Suffolk we read, "hanc tr̃a inuadiauit Abbas [S. Edm.] cr̃ Barones Regis. scilicet W. epm. Ingelricũ. 7 Rad. Stalrã pro c'." And, again, in the same County, upon the Bishop of Baieux's property at Asfelda, "hc̃ inuener̃ Barones Regis in pace inter Rogũm bigot 7 Hugonẽ comitẽ." tom. ii. foll. 367 b. 377.

4 Among the Laws of Edward the Confessor as confirmed by the Conqueror we have one, "21. De Baronibus qui suas habent curias et consuetudines." See Wilkins, p. 202. See also the Law of Henry the first, "De privilegiis Procerum Angliæ." Ibid. p. 247.

5 See Kelham, Domesd. Book Illustr. p. 343. Compare also Tyrrel, Introd. Hist. Engl. p. 76. Selden, Tit. Hon. p. 625.

6 There are many Charters of William the First, both in English and Latin, in which they are mentioned. The Chartulary of the Abbey of St. Peter Westminster MS. Cotton. Brit. Mus. Faust. A. iii. affords numerous instances. As, fol. 112 b. "Willem King gret Bundi Stallere, and Sawold Sirefen, and alle mine Thegnes on Oxnefordscire freondlice." And again, in the same folio, "Willem King gret Stigan Arcebiscop and Eustacies eorll, and all mine Thegnes on Surreya freondlice." In the Latin Charters the word Ministri is frequently made a substitute.

7 Domesd. tom. i. fol. 56 b. "Hi subscripti TAINI de Oxenefordscire habuer̃ tra in Walingeford. Lanfranc Archieps. Remigi9 eps. Abb. de S. Albano. R. abb. Comes Hugo. Walter9 Gifard. From the "Judicia Civitatis Lundoniæ sub rege Æthelstano editæ." Wilk. LL. Anglo-Sax. p. 71. we learn that the Saxons had Dærre þegenes 7 populb þegenes, Ministri ecclesiastici and Ministri seculares.

§ 1. Persons.

Sir Henry Spelman ([1]) and Wilkins ([2]) seem to make but two kinds of Thanes. "A Thane," says Sir Henry, "was (in like manner with an Earl) ([3]) not properly a title of dignity, but of service: so called in the Saxon of ðenian servire, and in Latin, Minister à ministrando. But as there be many degrees of service, some of greater estimation and some of less, so those that served the King in places of eminency, either in Court or Commonwealth, were called Thani majores and Thani Regis; and those that served under them in like manner as under Dukes, Earls, and other great Officers of the Kingdom, and also under Bishops, Abbats, and the greater Prelates of the Church, were called Thani minores, or the lesser Thanes. And, as the titles of honourable office and service in Dukes, Earls, &c. became at length to be made hereditary; so this of Thanes descended at last, with their fathers land, upon their children and posterity; and continued thus till after the Conquest, as appears by some writs and charters of the Conqueror." "Buchanan," ([4]) Sir Henry Spelman continues, "describing the quality of their persons, calleth them Præfectos Regionum sive Nomarcas et Quæstores rerum capitalium, Governours of places, principal Ministers of Justice, Chequer-men, Sheriffs, &c. But we will take them as the Saxons themselves describe them in the place above-mentioned, where it thus followeth, ʒiꝼ Ceoꞃl ʒe ðeah ꝥ he heꝼde ꝼullice ꝼiꝼ hẏða aʒeneꞅ lanꝺe, &c. if a Churl or Husbandman throve, so that he had fully five hides of his own land, a Church and a Kitchen, a Bell-house, and a Gate-house, a seat and a several office in the King's hall, then he was from thenceforth worthy of the rights of a Thane; meaning (as I understand it) he was then one of the greater Thanes or King's Thanes. For the lesser Thane is by and by described also in that which followeth, viz. Anꝺ ʒiꝼ ðeʒen ʒeðeah, &c. And if a Thane himself so prospered that he served the King, and rid upon his Message as others of his Court, and then had a Thane (i. e. an under or lesser Thane) that followed him, which had five Hides (or Plough-land) chargeable to the King's expedition, and served his Lord in the King's Court, and had gone thrice upon his errand to the King: he (this under Thane) might take an oath instead of his Lord, and at any great need supply the place of his Lord. And, if a Thane did so thrive as he became an Earl, he had the rights of an Earl. And a Merchant might become a Thane, &c. ([5]) Mr. Lambard ([6]) conceiveth this place to discover but three Degrees among the Saxons, viz. Earls, Thanes, and Ceorls, not admitting the Under Thane to be a several Degree. The words seem otherwise, and the Saxon division before recited maketh four degrees, Earl, Ceorl, Thegn, and Theoden or under Thane. Some therefore distinguish Thanes into majores and minores, some into majores, minores (otherwise called mediocres) and minimi, whom Canutus in his Forest-Laws, calleth Minuti and Tinemen. The Saxon division first mentioned, I find to be pursued by Norman terms in the Laws of Edward the Confessor and William Conq. delivered by Ingulfus, viz. Count, Baron, Valvasor, and Villain; where he placeth Count instead of Earl, Baron instead of King's Thane, Valvasor instead of Theoden or lesser Thane, and lastly Villain instead of Churl; as though the division both of the Saxon and Norman times did hold analogy one with the other, and both of them with ours at this Day, viz. of Earls and Barons of the Kingdom, including the greater Nobility; Barons of Towns and Manours, including the lesser Nobility or Gentry; and that of our Yeomen, including the Husbandmen."

§ 1. Perfons.

At the end of many Counties in Domefday there is a Title for Thani, Servientes, and Miniftri Regis; but the Thani are generally diftinct from the Servientes and Miniftri, as feeming to be of a fuperior degree, and holding offices of a lefs fervile nature than the others. (1)

References to entries in the Survey in which the Teigni Regis are mentioned will be found in great abundance in the Index Rerum. We have alfo Teigni Reginæ, Teigni Heraldi Comitis, Teigni Stigandi Archiepifcopi, Teigni Comitis Algari, Teigni homines Alrici filii Goding, Teigni liberi, and in one inftance "unus francus Teignus." (2) The Taini Sciræ, whofe teftimony appears fo often to have decided the Returns of the Commiffioners in the appropriation of property (3) were, no doubt, of the order of "mediocres." In the account of the Manor of Wicheburne in Nottinghamfhire, it is faid "Duas bou de hac tra tenuer. v. taini. unus eoz erat fenior alioz." (4)

3. The Vavassores, in dignity, were next to the Barons and higher Thanes. Selden fays, they either held of a mefne lord, and not immediately of the King, or at leaft of the King as of an honour or manor, and not in chief. (5) Vavaffores, however, are mentioned but twice in the firft volume of the Survey, at leaft under that denomination. At Avicetone in Hampfhire we read, "Ibi manet qdā uauaffori9 hñs. II. uac." (6) And at Caldecote in Buckinghamfhire it is faid, "Ibi funt II. uauaffores redd XXXII. fol. 7 VI. den." (7) At the clofe of the account of Suffolk, however, we find a diftinct title of "Terra Vauafforum," (8) the perufal of the contents of which fatisfactorily proves that throughout the greater part of the Survey the title was funk in the general name of Liberi homines.

"The Grantees" fays Sir Henry Spelman, "that received their Eftates from the Barons or Capitanei and not from the King, were called Valvafores (a degree above Knights,) and were unto their Lords (the Capitanei or Barones Regis) as they the Capitanei were unto the King: and did in like manner fubdivide their Lands among their Socmen and military followers, who in old time were called Valvafini; whom I take to be the fame at this day that are the Lords of every Manour, if not thofe themfelves that we call Knights, as owners of a Knight's Fee. For in this, the feodal Law itfelf is doubtful and various, as of a thing loft by antiquity or made uncertain by the differing manners of feveral nations. Infomuch that Valvafores and Valvafini grew to be confounded, and both of them at laft to be out of ufe, and no other military Tenures to be known amongft us than tenere per Baroniam, and tenere per Feodum militare. But in a Charter of Henry I. (9) it is faid: 'Si exurgat Placitum de divifione Terrarum, fi intereft Barones meos Dominicos, tractetur in Curia mea; et fi inter Valvafores duorum Dominorum, tractetur in Comitatu,' &c. where the Valvafores were alfo, and the Barons themfelves fuitors and attendants. (10) Bracton mentioneth them in Henry III.'s time, to be Viri magnæ dignitatis. (11)

§ 1. Persons.

Nor was their memory clean gone in Richard II.'s days; as appeareth by Chaucer. Yet do I not find in any of our ancient Laws or Monuments, that they ftood in any claffick kind of Tenure, other than that we may account the Baron, Vavafor, and Knight, to be (as our Lawyers at this day term them) the Chief Lord, Mefne, and Tenant." ([1])

Fleta, whofe Book was written after the thirteenth of Edward the firft, places the Vavaffores next to the Milites. ([2]) Kelham, from Madox's Baronia Anglica fays, " We read of Vavaffours in the time of Henry the firft belonging to the Barony of the Archbifhop of York, to the Barony of Robert Foffard, and others; but they were not numerous." ([3])

The Relief of the Vavafor will be hereafter given. In the Conqueror's Laws it follows that of the Baron. ([4])

4. The Aloarii, Alodarii, or Alodiarii, Tenants in Allodium, are the next to be mentioned. " The tenure of Allodium," fays Kelham, " refers to the tenants and poffeffors chiefly before the Conqueft. It fignifies an hereditary and perpetual eftate, free and in the power of the poffeffors to difpofe of by gift or fale, but fubject to the common and conftant land-tax of hidage; ([5]) and, in Kent, the King on the commiffion of particular offences was entitled to pecuniary mulcts from all the allodial tenants and their men. He was alfo on the death of an allodial tenant entitled to Relief." ([6]) Entries relating to this tenure are found in the Survey in Kent, Suffex, Surrey, and Hampfhire, and a few times in Berkfhire.

One or two entries in Suffex feem to reprefent allodial property, at leaft in England, as of a more qualified nature than Sir William Blackftone, who follows the opinions of the feudifts abroad, is willing to allow. Under Bercheham it is faid " Goduin9 comes tenuit de rege E. ficut Alodiū." ([7]) At Briftelmeftune we are told, " Tres Aloarij tenueř [vi. hid 7 uñ v] de rege E. 7 potueř ire qlibet." ([8]) And in another inftance they occur as under-tenants to Earl Goduin, at Lanefwice in Suffex. ([9]) At Codintone in Surrey we read, " Leuuin9 com tenuit. Tc̃ fe defđ p xxx. hiđ. De qb3 teneƀ com xx. hiđ 7 x hiđ teneƀ Alodiarij uillæ q cū fuis tris quo uoleƀ recede poterant." ([10]) At Solafel in Berkfhire we find Alodiarii ftill exifting as tenants at the formation of the Survey. " Ibi funt v. Alodiarij cū ii. cař 7 borđ uno." ([11])

Of the defcription of Allodial Tenants were the Drenchs or Drenghs, mentioned upon the lands between the Ribble and the Merfey in Lancafhire. Sir Henry Spelman confiders them as military vaffals, "Tenentes per fervitium Militare:" ([1]) and, from the few entries in which they occur, ([2]) it certainly appears that the allotments of territory they poffeffed were held as manors. Sir Edward Coke calls them free tenants of a Manor. ([3]) The Dinges, mentioned tom. i. fol. 298. are fuppofed to have been perfons of the fame defcription.

5. Milites. The term Miles appears not to have acquired a precife meaning at the time of the Survey. Sometimes implying a foldier, or mere military fervant, and fometimes a perfon of higher diftinction. The "Miles Regis dominicus" occurs once in the account of Berkfhire: ([4]) and in another entry, under Dorfetfhire, "Bricfi miles Regis Edwardi" occurs. ([5]) In fol. 4. of the Survey, after "Terra Archiepifcopi Cantuarienfis," we have "Terra Militum ejus," under which title we find Hamo the Sheriff, and even the Earl of Ow, holding land. ([6]) In the account of Wiltfhire, at Poterne, among the poffeffions of the Bifhop of Salifbury, it is faid, "De ead tra huj9 ϖ ten. II angli. VI. hid. 7 unā v træ. Vn9 ex eis ē Miles juffu Regis. 7 nepos fuit Hermanni epi." ([7]) At Giftelefworde in Middlefex we have, "Francig 7 qdā anglicus. IIII. hid 7 funt Milites pbati. Sub eis manent int uilt 7 bord. XII." ([8]) Another entry which appears to relate to the Milites of higher confequence occurs in the return of the Lands between the Ribble and the Merfey. "Int Ripā 7 Merfham VI. Hund. Modo tenet Rex 7 hr in dñio XII. car 7 IX. Milites feudū tenentes. Int eos 7 eoȝ hoēs. funt CXXV. car. 7 III. boues. Qd dedit militibȝ .' XX. lib. 7 XI. folid appciatur." ([9]) The Barons and greater perfons who held under the Archbifhop of Canterbury, were probably his milites in confideration of taking the command of his foldiers jointly with their own, when brought into actual fervice. Many of the Milites who held under the Bifhops appear to have had larger allotments of land than under other tenants in capite. ([10])

§ 1. Persons.

Under the lands of the Bishop of Baieux in Surrey, it is said, "Wadardus ten de epo Ditone. Ille q ten de Wadardo: redd ei L. sol. 7 seruitium uni⁹ militis." (1) Cumbe, also, one of the Bishop's manors in Kent, appears to have yielded four pounds "7 seruitiū uni⁹ militis." (2) The instances, throughout the Survey, are very numerous where the Milites hold a single hide.

Of the entries in which the Milites appear as mere soldiers, and in which they are sometimes classed with the inferior orders of tenantry, the following, taken as they occur in the record, may serve as specimens. Under the manor of Wingeham in Kent, belonging to the Archbishop, it is said, "De hoc ⓜ ten Wills de Arcis. I. folin. in Fletes. 7 ibi hr in dnio. I. car. 7 IIII. uills. 7 un' militē cū I. car." (3) Under "Terra Eccl. August. I. car. 7 I. uillm. 7 unū bord. 7 I. acram prati." (5) At Heortha, in Wiltshire, under "Terra Hugonis Comitis," "Ibi I. miles. 7 III. cofcez. 7 V. ac pti." (6) In Devonshire, at Ratreu, "De hac tra ten. II. milites unā v træ." (7) The Milites belonging to the Abbey of Westminster, in Middlesex, appear to have resided on the demesne of the Monastery, "in Villa ubi sedet æccla S. Petri" "Silua C. porc. 7 XXV. dom⁹ militum Abb'is 7 alioꝝ hōum. qui reddt VIII. sol. p annū." (8) At Hichetone in Hertfordshire, it is said, "In ead uilla ten II. milites de comite [Eustachio] XX. acras." (9) Among the Bishop of Worcester's lands at Crumbe in Rippel, in Worcestershire, we find a singular entry. "Hanc trā tenuit Sirof de epo T. R. E. quo mortuo ded eps filiā ei⁹ cū hac tra cuidā suo militi. qui et matrē pasceret 7 epo inde seruiret." (10) On the lands of Turchil de Warwic at Cestreton in Warwickshire, we find, "V. milit Angli hntes IIII. car 7 dimid." (11) At Saint Edmundsbury in Suffolk, we find, "XXXIII. milites int Fr. 7 Anglic. 7 sub eis XXII. bord." (12) The word Milites, as used by Matthew Paris in his account of the Survey, must undoubtedly be understood as of Soldiers. Among the customs of Berkshire, we have a passage which clearly proves this. It relates to their pay. "Si rex mitteb alicubi exercitū: de V. hid tant un⁹ miles ibat. 7 ad ej⁹ uictū t stipendiū de unaquaq, hida dabant. ei. IIII. solidi. ad II. menses. Hos uero denar Regi n mittebant sed militib⁹ dabunt." (13) In the account of Colchester in Essex, the word Soldarii is used as a substitute for Milites. "Est autem consuetudo unoqq, anno quinto decimo die post pascha reddunt burgenses regij duas marcas argenti 7 hoc ptinent ad firmā regis. Pt ea de unaquaq, domo p annum. VI. denarios. quæ redde potest ad uictū soldarioꝝ regis. vl ad expeditionē træ ul maris; & hoc n. ē. ad firmā. Et hoc fit si rex soldarios habuerit ut expeditionē fecerit. Et propt hos. 6. LIBERI HOMINES appears to have been a term of considerable latitude; signifying not merely the freemen or freeholders of a manor, but occasionally including all the ranks of society already mentioned, and indeed, all persons holding in military tenure. Many of the liberi homines were tenants of the King in capite. ([1]) We find the same latitude of expression in the Conqueror's laws: ([2]) and the term is used in a sense equally general by William of Malmesbury, even at a later period. ([3])

The ordinary freemen, before the Conquest, says Kelham, and at the time of compiling Domesday, were under protection of great men; but what their quality was, further than that their persons and blood were free, that is, that they were not nativi or bondmen, it will give a knowing man trouble to discover to us. ([4]) These freemen under protection, are called in the Survey Liberi homines commendati. They appear to have placed themselves by voluntary homage under this protection; their Lord or Patron undertook to secure their estates and persons; and for this protection and security they paid him an annual stipend, or performed some annual service. ([5]) The great similarity of this bond of homage to that of the Patron and Client among the Romans, will not be overlooked by the most ordinary reader. The origin of this "Commendatio" is unquestionably to be sought for in the Roman civil law.

According to the Returns of the Survey, some appear to have sought a patron or protector for the sake of obtaining their freedom only: such, the Liberi homines commendatione tantum may be interpreted. According to the Laws of the Conqueror a quiet residence of a year and a day, upon the King's demesne lands, would enfranchise a villein who had fled from his lord. "Item si Servi permanserint sine calumnia per annum et diem in Civitatibus nostris vel in Burgis in muro vallatis, vel in Castris nostris, a die illa liberi afficiuntur et liberi a jugo servitutis suæ sint in perpetuum." ([6])

The Commendati dimidii, says Kelham, were persons who depended on two several lords, and were to pay half their annual rent for their protection to one, and half to the other. Sub-Commendati were such as, like under-tenants, were under command of those who were themselves depending on some superior Lord. Sub-Commendati dimidii were those who were under the Commendati dimidii, and had two patrons or protectors, and the same as they had. ([7]) Liberi homines integri are occasionally mentioned as those who were under the full protection of one lord, in contradistinction to the Liberi homines dimidii, whose homage was divided. Under Vluestuna in Suffolk, we have a singularly minute division of the Commendatio. "Aluin⁹ pbr. lib. hō. 7 sexta pars cōm'dationis suæ erat cuidam Commendato." ([8])

6 LL. Will. Conq. 66. Wilk. p. 229. Blomefield, in his History of Norfolk, vol. i. p. 657. fol. edit. quotes a remarkable instance of the Appeal to this Law. Sir John de Clavering, in 1312, sued William Fiz and seventeen others, villanes of his Manor of Cossey, for withdrawing themselves, their goods and chattels, out of his manor, and dwelling in other places, to his and the King's prejudice, upon which a writ was directed to force them to come and dwell in the Manor, and bring all their goods with them, upon execution of which, six of them pretended to be free-men, and came to their trial, and pleaded that they came by their freedom in this manner, viz. by being citizens of the City of Norwich, having lived there, and paid scot and lot for above thirty years with the free citizens there, and two of them pleaded they were born in the walls of the City, and as such produced the Conqueror's Charter, in which it was contained that if any Servants or Villanes lived without claim of their Lords, (i. e. without paying Chevage, or a fine for licence so to do) for a year and a day, in any of the King's Cities, walled Towns, or in the Camp, from that day they should be free-men, and their posterity for ever, upon which these six were declared Free-men, and an Appeal from the King's Charter was not admitted; and two more pleaded and obtained their Freedom, by proving that Edward I. granted their Fathers houses and lands in Norwich, to hold of him and his heirs, according to the custom of the City, and that they were their fathers heirs; but all the rest were forced to return and live in Villenage under their Lord. The original of this case is on the Placita Roll. Term. Pasch. 6 Ed. II.

This Commendatio appears in the Domesday Survey under different forms, exclusively in the second Volume, and principally in the Descriptions of Norfolk and Suffolk. ([1]) From numerous entries in both counties it appears to have existed in the time of King Edward the Confessor. ([2]) It is possible that it might have fallen into disuse after the Conquest as a separate and distinct reciprocal duty, in consequence of the prevalence of military tenure. Commendatio sometimes signified the annual rent paid for the protection.

Liberi homines ad nullam firmam pertinentes were those who held their lands independant of any lord. Of others, it is said, "qui remanent in manu regis." ([3])

In a few entries of the Survey we have LIBERÆ FEMINÆ; ([4]) and one or two of liberæ feminæ commendatæ. At Aspeleia in Bedfordshire it is said, "Hoc M̄. tenuit Leueua cōmdata Wallef comitis 7 quo uoluit cū terra sua recedere potuit." ([5])

7. The SOCHEMANNI, or Socmens, says Nichols, were those inferior land-owners who had lands in the Soc or franchise of a great baron; privileged villans, who, though their tenures were absolutely copyhold, yet had an interest equal to a freehold. Their services were fixed and determinate. They could not be compelled to relinquish these tenements at their lord's will, nor against their own: et ideo, says Bracton, denominantur liberi. ([6]) It seems idle, Nichols adds, to suppose that they took their name from the soca or plough; ([7]) for it no where appears that they held by plough service. Such men were actual freeholders, and a certain number of them were necessary in every manor to hold the pleas of the Manor Court. Socmen were, of consequence, those who owed suit and service to the lord's court; and it is from the word Soc, which gave them their name, that we must derive our tenures in free and common socage. Domefday, however, exhibits different conditions of Socmen; fometimes enjoying the ufu-fruct within the foke freely, and fometimes performing certain inferior fervices of hufbandry. On the manor of Bochetone in Yorkfhire, it is faid, " In hac uilla ẽ foca de xii. carucatis 7 vi. bouatis ad gld. Ibi funt nc̃ vii. fochi hñtes xii. uittos. 7 vi. bord cũ ix. car̃. 7 i. molend. ii. folidoꝝ." ([1]) In the five wards of Stamford in Lincolnfhire, it is faid, " funt lxxvii. mañs fochemanoꝝ qui hñt tras fuas in dñio. 7 qui petunt dominos ubi uolunt. fup quos rex nichil aliud hr̃ nifi em̃dationẽ forisfacturæ eoꝝ. 7 heriete. 7 theloneũ." ([2]) " Sochemanni cũ omni c̃fuetudine" occur feveral times in Norfolk. Among the lands of Roger Bigot in Norfolk we read, " In Hadefcou unus fochemanus Edrici de Laxfefelda xxx. acras et iii. bordarios. 7 una carruca & dimidia. vi. acræ prati. & iii. libos homines fub illo xix. acras. tc̃ ual. x. folidos modo. xiii. & iiii. đ. Ibi ẽ &iam paftura ad l. oues. hic focheman⁹ com̃dauit fe Aluuino tempore. Witti regis. & erat inde faifitus quando rex dedit terram Rogero bigoto." ([3])

Lord Lyttelton fays, by miftake, that in Domefday Book the Socmen are diftinguifhed from other free tenants called there liberi homines, by not having the power, which thefe enjoyed, of giving away or felling their eftates without leave of their lords. ([4]) This certainly was the cafe with a defcription of Socmen different from thofe which have been juft noticed: but it is not a general defcription of tenure in focage. At Widemondefort in Effex, it is undoubtedly faid, " Ifti Sochemani fic̃ comitat⁹ teftat. non pot̃ant remouere ab illo man." ([5]) At Holeslea in Effex, it is faid, " Huic manerio ptinent v. foc. de lvi. acr. Hii. v. non potuer uendere trã fuam nec dare alicui." ([6]) and at Brumefwella, in Suffolk, " In ead. i. foc. xxx. acr. 7 ñ potuit uendere nec dare." ([7]) Thefe appear rather like exceptions from the general condition of the Socmen.

The following entries afford proofs that the Socmen fometimes performed fervices of Hufbandry: " In Soca de Walecote," in Lincolnfhire, it is faid, " Ibi. i. fochs arat. ii. bobꝫ." ([8]) On the manor of Brochelefbi in the fame county, it is faid, " Ibi Nigellus hõ Iuoñ hr̃ ii. foch cũ. ii. bob⁹ arantes." ([9]) And in Tavelefbi in the fame county, we find, " iii. foch arantes v. bobꝫ." ([10])

8. Of this defcription of tenantry alfo were the Rachenistres or Radchenistres, who appear likewife to have been called Radmanni, or Radmans. From the following, which appear to be the principal entries relating to the Radcheniftres, it will be feen that like the Sochmen fome were lefs free than others.

The tenant could either part with his land, or place himfelf under the protection of any lord he pleafed. So again, " recedere non poterat a domino fuo," he could not depart from his lord; or, as Dr. Nafh interprets it, he was unalienable from the manor; he could not feparate himfelf from the manorial foke, the court-baron of later times. Among the cuftoms of the Lands between the Ribble and the Merfey, we find a heavy compenfation paid by thofe who withdrew from the King's protection. Hi hnt. II. car." (¹⁰) Dr. Nafh conjectured that the Radmanni and Radcheniftres were probably a kind of freemen who ferved on Horfeback. (¹¹)

9. VILLANI. The cleareft notion of the tenure of the VILLANI is probably to be obtained from Sir William Blackftone's Commentaries. " With regard to folk-land," fays that learned writer, " or eftates held in Villenage, this was a fpecies of tenure neither ftrictly feodal, Norman, or Saxon; but mixed and compounded of them all: (¹²) and which alfo, on account of the Heriots that ufually attend it, may feem to have fomewhat Danifh in its compofition. Under the Saxon government there were, as Sir William Temple fpeaks, (¹³) a fort of people in a condition of downright fervitude, ufed and employed in the moft fervile works, and belonging, both they, their children, and their effects, to the lord of the foil, like the reft of the cattle or ftock upon it. Thefe feem to have been thofe who held what was called the folk-land, from which they were removable at the lord's pleafure. On the arrival of the Normans here, it feems not improbable that they, who were ftrangers to any other than a feodal ftate, might give fome fparks of enfranchifement to fuch wretched perfons as fell to their fhare, by admitting them, as well as others, to the oath of fealty; which conferred a right of protection, and raifed the tenant to a kind of eftate fuperior to downright flavery, but inferior to every other condition. (¹⁴) This they called Villenage, and the tenants Villeins, either from the word vilis, or elfe, as Sir Edw. Coke tells us (¹⁵) a villa; becaufe they lived chiefly in villages, and were employed in ruftic works of the moft fordid kind.

"These villeins, belonging principally to lords of manors, were either Villeins regardant, that is annexed to the manor or land; or else they were in gross, or at large, that is, annexed to the person of the lord, and transferrable by deed from one owner to another. (1) They could not leave their lord without his permission; but, if they ran away, or were purloined from him, might be claimed and recovered by action, like beasts or other chattels. They held, indeed, small portions of land by way of sustaining themselves and families; but it was at the mere will of the lord, who might dispossess them whenever he pleased; and it was upon villein services, that is to carry out dung, to hedge and ditch the lords demesnes, and any other the meanest offices: (2) and these services were not only base, but uncertain both as to their time and quantity. (3) A villein could acquire no property either in lands or goods; but if he purchased either, the lord might enter upon them, oust the villein, and seise them to his own use, unless he contrived to dispose of them again before the lord had seised them; for the lord had then lost his opportunity. In many places also a fine was payable to the lord, if the villein presumed to marry his daughter to any one without leave from the lord: (4) and, by the common law, the lord might also bring an action against the husband for damages in thus purloining his property. (5) For the children of villeins were also in the same state of bondage with their parents; whence they were called in Latin Nativi, which gave rise to the female appellation of a villein, who was called a neife. (6) In case of a marriage between a free man and a neife, or a villein and a free woman, the issue followed the condition of the father, being free if he was free, and villein if he was villein; contrary to the maxim of the civil law, that partus sequitur ventrem. But no bastard could be born a villein, because by another maxim of our law he is nullius filius; and as he can gain nothing by inheritance, it were hard that he should lose his natural freedom by it. (7) The law, however, protected the persons of villeins, as the King's subjects, against atrocious injuries of the lord."

"Villeins," continues Sir William Blackstone, "might be enfranchised by manumission, which is either express or implied: express; as where a man granted to the villein a deed of manumission: (8) implied; as where a man bound himself in a bond to his villein for a sum of money, granted him an annuity by deed, or gave him an estate in fee, for life, or years: (9) for this was dealing with his villein on the footing of a freeman; it was in some of the instances giving him an action against his lord, and in others vesting an ownership in him entirely inconsistent with his former state of bondage. So also if the lord brought an action against his villein, this enfranchised him; (10) for, as the lord might have a short remedy against his villein, by seizing his goods, (which was more than equivalent to any damages he could recover) the law, which is always ready to catch at any thing in favour of liberty, presumed that by bringing this action he meant to set his villein on the same footing with himself, and therefore held it an implied manumission. But, in case the lord indicted him for felony, it was otherwise; for the lord could not inflict a capital punishment on his villein, without calling in the assistance of the law.

"Villeins by this and many other means, in process of time, gained considerable ground on their lords; and in particular strengthened the tenure of their estates to that degree, that they came to have in them an interest in many places full as good, in others better than their lords. For the good-nature and benevolence of many lords of manors having, time out of mind, permitted their villeins and their children to enjoy their possessions without interruption, in a regular course of descent, the common law, of which custom is the life, now gave them title to prescribe against their lords; and, on performance of the same services, to hold their lands, in spight of any determination of the lord's will. For, though in general they are still said to hold their estates at the will of the lord, yet it is such a will as is agreeable to the custom of the manor; which customs are preserved and evidenced by the rolls of the several courts baron in which they are entered, or kept on foot by the constant immemorial usage of the several manors in which the lands lie. And, as such tenants had nothing to shew for their estates but these customs, and admissions in pursuance of them, entered on those rolls, or the copies of such entries witnessed by the steward, they now began to be called tenants by copy of court roll, and their tenure itself a copyhold. (1)

"Thus copyhold tenures, as Sir Edward Coke observes, (2) although very meanly descended, yet come of an antient house; for, from what has been premised, it appears, that copyholders are in truth no other but villeins, who by a long series of immemorial encroachments on the lord, have at last established a customary right to those estates, which before were held absolutely at the lord's will. Which affords a very substantial reason for the great variety of customs that prevail in different manors, with regard both to the descent of the estates, and the privileges belonging to the tenants. And these encroachments grew to be so universal, that when tenure in villenage was abolished, (though copyholds were reserved,) by the Statute of Charles II. there was hardly a pure villein left in the nation. For Sir Thomas Smith testifies, (3) that in all his time (and he was Secretary to Edward VI.) he never knew any villein in gross throughout the realm; and the few villeins regardant that were then remaining were such only as had belonged to bishops, monasteries, or other ecclesiastical corporations, in the preceding times of popery." (4)

There are, however, numerous entries in the Domesday Survey which indicate the Villani of that period to have been very different from Bond-men. (5) They appear to have answered to the Saxon Ceorls, while the Servi answered to the Þeoþaꝛ or Ƿnen. By a degradation of the Ceorls and an improvement in the state of the Ƿnen, the two classes were brought gradually nearer together, till at last the military oppression of the Normans thrusting down all degrees of tenants and servants into one common slavery, or at least into strict dependance, one name was adopted for both of them as a generic term, that of Villeins regardant.

§ 1. Persons.

It has been already noticed that "VI. uillani uniuscujusque villæ" formed a part of the Jury or Inquest who made the Domesday Returns. ([1]) The Relief of a Villane will be noticed in a future Section. The Dimidii Villani appear to have been persons who held moieties only of villenage tenements ([2]): or who were half liberi and half villani.

10. The BORDARII of the Survey appear at various times to have received a great variety of interpretations. Lord Coke calls them "boors holding a little house with some land of husbandry, bigger than a Cottage." ([3]) Some have considered them as cottagers, taking their name from living on the borders of a village or manor: ([4]) but this is sufficiently refuted by Domesday itself, where we find them not only mentioned generally among the agricultural occupiers of land, but in one instance as "circa aulam manentes," dwelling near the manor house; and even residing in some of the larger towns. In two quarters of the town of Huntingdon, at the time of forming the Survey as well as in King Edward's time, were a hundred and sixteen burgesses, "7 sub eis" it is said "sunt c. bordarii qui adjuuant eos ad persolutionē geldi." ([5]) In Norwich there were no less than four hundred and eighty bordarii, "q̄ ppt pauperiē, nullā reddnt c̄suetudinē." ([6]) And of twenty bordarii in Thetford it is said, "De supdictis bord. hab& rex scotū de suo capite tantū." ([7])

Bishop Kennett says "The Bordarii often mentioned in the Domesday Inquisition were distinct from the Servi and Villani, and seem to be those of a less servile condition, who had a bord or cottage with a small parcel of land allow'd to them, on condition they should supply the Lord with poultry and eggs, and other small provisions for his board and entertainment." ([8]) Such also is the interpretation given by Blomefield in his History of Norfolk. ([9]) Brady says "they were drudges, and performed vile services, which were reserved by the lord upon a poor little house, and a small parcel of land, and might perhaps be domestic works, such as grinding, threshing, drawing water, cutting wood, &c." ([10])

Borð, as Bishop Kennett has already noticed, was a Cottage. In a Charter of King Edgar printed in the Monasticon we read "quinque videlicet mansas cum XV. carucis terræ, cum XVIII. servis, et XVI. villanis; et X. Bordis cum LX. acris prati." ([11]) Bordarii, it should seem, were Cottagers merely: and in the Ely Manuscript, we find bordarii where the Breviate of the same entry in Domesday itself reads Cotarii. Their condition was probably different on different manors. In some entries in the Survey we have "Bordarii arantes." At Evesham, on the abbey demesne, we have "XXVII. Bordarii servientes curiæ." ([12]) On the demesne appertaining to the castle of Ewias were twelve Bordarii "opantes una die ebdomad." ([13]) At St. Edmundsbury in Suffolk the Abbat had a hundred and eighteen "homines," "7 sub eis LII. bord. a qb; abb potest habe aliqd adjutorii." ([14])

The COSCETS, Coscez, Cozets, or Cozez, were apparently the same with the COTTARII and COTMANNI; cottagers who paid a certain rent for very small parcels of land: although, tom. i. fol. 71. we have there mentioned distinctly, "XIII. coscez. 7 II. cotar." The shade of difference is undiscoverable. At Tateshale in Yorkshire "XVI. COTERI" occur. ([15]) Bishop Kennett says, "Spelman and Du Fresne make Cotarius and Coterellus to be both fervile inhabitants. But I think in the Domefday Regifter and other antient Manufcripts there does appear a diftinction, not only in their name, but in their tenure and quality. The Cotarius had a free focage tenure, and paid a firm or rent in provifions or money, with fome cuftomary fervice. But the Coterellus held in abfolute villenage, and had his perfon and goods difpos'd at the pleafure of the lord." (1) Coterellus however does not occur in Domefday. In a folitary inftance, at Stoches in Shropfhire, " IX. Feminæ Cotar" occur. (2)

11. The Bures, Buri, or Burs, are noticed in the firft Volume of Domefday itfelf as fynominous with Coliberti. In an entry relating to the manor of Dene in Hampfhire, fol. 38. " ł Bures " is an interlineation, in a coeval hand, above the word Colibti. (3)

The name of the Coliberti was unqueftionably derived from the Roman Civil Law. They are defcribed by Lord Coke as Tenants in free focage by free rent. (4) Cowel fays, they were certainly a middle fort of Tenants, between fervile and free, or fuch as held their freedom of tenure under condition of fuch works and fervices; and were therefore the fame landholders whom we meet with [in after times] under the name of Conditionales. (5) In Du Cange's Gloffary the tenure of the Coliberti is difcuffed at confiderable length. (6)

Such are the different defcriptions of Tenantry, and their rights, more particularly noticed in Domefday.

12. Servi. It is obferved by Bifhop Kennett, and by Morant after him in his Hiftory of Effex, that the Servi and Villani are, all along, in Domefday, divided from each other; but that no author has fixed the exact diftinction between them. The Servi, Bifhop Kennett adds, might be the pure villanes, and villanes in grofs, who without any determined tenure of land were at the arbitrary pleafure of the lord appointed to fervile works, and received their wages and maintenance at the difcretion of the lord. The other were of a fuperior degree, and were called Villani, becaufe they were Villæ et glebæ adfcripti, i. e. held fome cottage and lands, for which they were burthened with fuch ftated fervile works as their lords had annexed to them. (7)

" Our Northern Servi," fays Bifhop Kennett, " had always a much eafier condition than the Roman flaves. " Servis nos in noftrum morem defcriptis per familiam minifteriis utuntur. ' Suam quifque fedem, fuos penates regit. Frumenti modum Dominus, aut pecoris, aut veftis, colono injungit, et fervus hactenus paret.' Tacit. de Morib. German. which plainly defcribes the condition of our Saxon and Norman Servants, Natives, and Villanes."

The Saxon name for Servus was Ȝrne. The amelioration of the Servi from any thing like abfolute flavery, forms a ftrong feature in the Anglo-Saxon laws: and we have the authority of Bracton, at a later period, for afferting, that, however unhappy the condition of the Servi was in other refpects, yet their lives and their limbs were under the protection of the laws; fo that if the mafter killed his bondman, he was fubject to the fame punifhment as if he had killed any other perfon. § 1. Persons.

The form for emancipation of the Servi is minutely described in the laws of the Conqueror. ([1]) And, we have one instance, at least, in Domesday, where such an emancipation took place. "In Terra Willi Levric" at Heile in Gloucestershire, it is said, "Ibi erant XII. serui quos Will's liberos fecit." ([2])

The ANCILLÆ of the Survey were females under circumstances nearly similar to the Servi. They were disposed of in the same way at the pleasure of the lord. The laws, however, protected their chastity; they could not be violated with impunity even by their owners.

At Witelavesford in Warwickshire, the Abbey of Evesham is said to have had "v. serui. 7 II. ancillæ 7 IIII. uillani in dñio." ([3])

13. CENSARII, CENSORES, or CENSORII, were also among the occupiers of land. They appear to have been free persons censum reddentes. ([4]) The Relief of such persons is noticed in the Conquerors Laws. ([5])

14. PORCARII. Although in one or two instances in the Domesday Survey, mere Swine-herds seem to have been intended by Porcarii, ([6]) yet in the generality of entries in which they are mentioned they appear in the rank of free occupiers, who rented the privilege of feeding pigs in the Woodlands, some for money ([7]) and some for payments in kind. ([8])

15. The HOMINES, who are so frequently mentioned, included all sorts of feudatory tenants. They claimed a privilege of having their causes and persons tried only in the Court of their Lord: ([9]) to whom they owed the duty of submission and professed dependance. ([10])

That the tenure of a Manor was not incompatible with the service of a Homo, may be seen in an entry in the account of Huntingdon. "Dicunt [homines qui juraverunt in Huntedune] trã Wluuini chit de Westone p se fuisse maneriũ. 7 non pertinuisse ad Kenebaltone. sed tam eũ fuisse hoẽm haroldi comitis." ([11])

The Angli and Francigenæ were alike called upon in the valuation of property before the Conqueror's Commiſſioners, as we learn from the Ely Inqueſt. Sect. 2.—LANDS.

1. Their Denominations.

Principal Matters noticed in this Record.

§ 2. Lands.

IN the Domesday Survey, four principal descriptions of Land are mentioned: Terra; Silva; Pastura; and Pratum.

Terra, put simply, uniformly signifies arable land, as distinct from wood, meadow, and common pasture." (¹)

" Cultura Terræ," " Frustum Terræ," " Lucrum Terræ," " Membrum Terræ," "Particula Terræ," and " Parum Terræ," were names for inferior parcels or slips of land. Among the King's lands in the Isle of Wight, it is said, tom. i. fol. 39 b. " In insula hĩ rex uñ frustũ træ. unde exeunt vi. uomeres." " Plañ," " Planum," or "Plana tra," was plain, or open ground, opposed to woods and coppices. In Worcestershire, tom. i. fol. 176 b. it is said, " T. R. E. fuit numerata pro xv. hid. int silua' 7 planu'."

In folio 8. of the first volume of the Survey, we read of " ii. Mansuræ træ in Cantuaria de xii. denar." as appertaining to the manor of Otringdene. Hasted says that these were pieces of land of no determined size. Thorn, Script. X. Twysd. p. 180 b. speaks as if the Solidata and Mansura terræ were the same, sub ann. 1144. " Illas uero tres solidatas terræ quas monachi in curia Romana conventionati sunt reddere, sicut exitus ipse probat, prædicti abbas et monachi de proprio jure suo dederunt præfato Archiepiscopo et Ecclesiæ suæ extra aquilonalem portam civitatis Cant. tres videlicet Mansuras simul conjunctas contra scilicet australem angulum cimiterii Sancti Gregorii juxta magistram viam a dextris sicut itur in civitatem."

Silva and nemus are the usual terms in the Survey for wood: and in a few entries silvula. The woodland appears to have been every where carefully entered. " Not that the timber was at that time of great value," says Nichols, " but principally on account of the acorns and beech mast, which, when the country was in a very imperfect state of cultivation, had a degree of importance of which we can form a very inadequate idea at this time. (²)

At Broteham in Kent, tom. i. fol. 3. we have, " Silua qdo fructific. q'ngent porc." At Marovrde in the same county, fol. 14. " tant siluæ unde exeunt. lx. porc de pasnag." At Seneorde in Hampshire, fol. 44 b. " Silua de iiii. porc. maxima pars ej⁹ uento corruit." Of the manor of Adelingham in that county, fol. 50. it is said, " De isto Ϻ. ẽ. una hida in foresta regis. 7 tantũ siluæ unde exibant. xx. porc de pasnag." At Fuleham in Middlesex, fol. 127 b. on the land in the Bishop of London's demesne, " Silua mille porc " occurs; and on the tenemental land of the See held by Fulcheredus on the same manor, " Silua ccc. porc." At Totehele in the county of Middlesex, we have, " Silua cl. porc;" and at Westminster, " Silua c. porc." Ibid. 127 b. 128. At Mundene in Hertfordshire, " Silua cl. porc. 7 altera Silua unde. cc. porc. pascerent." At Cestrehunt in the same county, " Silua mille cc. porc 7 xl. denar." Ibid. fol. 137.

¹ See Kennett, Glossar. Par. Antiq. Terra arabilis, however, is nevertheless occasionally mentioned; several times in Yorkshire and Lincolnshire, and once in Essex. In one or two entries in the first Volume of the Survey, " terra arabilis duplex" or " ad duplum" occurs: and once, " terra duplicit ad arand." Once the phrase occurs " xli. ac. de aratura." tom. ii. fol. 2 b. Tom. i. fol. 306. we find " campus arabil."

§ 2. Lands.

Paſnagium, or Pannage, had a double acceptation in the Survey. It meant firſt the running and feeding of Hogs in the Woods, and, in a ſecondary ſenſe, the price or rate of their running. In one or two entries it is termed Paſtio.

In Huntingdonſhire, under the poſſeſſions of Thorney Abbey, the abbot of Bury is ſtated to have held of that monaſtery a fiſhing veſſel, two fiſheries, two fiſhermen, and a virgate of land, "7 ꝑ his dat paſtionē ſufficientē cxx. porcis. 7 ſi paſtio deficit de annona paſcit & impinguat LX. porcos:" (1) and at Stanlei in Warwickſhire we have "paſt ad II mil porc." (2) Among the rents of Patriceſy, belonging to the abbey of Weſtminſter, it is ſaid "De uillo habente x. porc̃. uñ porc⁹. ſi min⁹ nil dat." (3) And again at Leofminſtre in Herefordſhire, "Quiſq, uillanus hñs x. porcos dat uñ porcũ de paſnagio." (4) Under Cedesfelle in Suſſex, we have "Silua III. porc. 7 herbag v. porc." (5) So at Cherchefelle in Surry, "Silua CXL. porc de paſnag. 7 de herbagio XLIII. porc." (6) and in numerous other inſtances. Under Wochinges in Surry, it is ſaid, "Iſtud ꝧ habet 7 habuit c̃ſuetudinē in ſilua regis de Wochinges hoc ẽ qđ dñs uillæ huj⁹ poteſt habe in ipſa ſilua cxx. porc ſine paſnagio" (7)

"Silua infructuoſa," "Silua inutilis," "Silua ad ignem tantum," "Silua nil reddens," and "Silua ſine paſnagio," are terms of frequent occurrence in the Survey, indicating that the woods ſo deſcribed afforded nothing that could, comparatively ſpeaking, become an object of attention. The Saxons, Nichols obſerves, even eſtimated the value of a tree by the number of Hogs that could lie under it. (8) In the laws of Ina, it is ſaid, "Si quis autem detruncet arborem ſub qua triginta porci conſiſtere queunt, et fiat convictus, ſolvat ſexaginta ſolidos." (9) Even treſpaſſes on the woods were puniſhed with ſeverity. "Si quis in querceto ſuo porcum abſque Domini venia inveniat, ſumat tunc ſex ſolidos pignoris pretium. Si ibi non fuerint plus una vice tunc unum ſolvat ſolidum proprius ejus Dominus, et confirmet per capitale ſuum, quod amplius non ſit intraturus ibi. Si duo ibi fuerint, ſolvat duos ſolidos. Si paſnagium a porcis ſumatur, de tridigitali tertius, de duo digitali quartus, de pollicis craſſitudine quintus porcus ſumatur." (10) The laws of Hoel Dha, Nichols obſerves, which were written not long before the time of the Survey, ſeem to have been made with the ſame view.

It muſt not however be paſſed over that wood, ſuch as might be uſeful, even for domeſtic purpoſes, is occaſionally particularly ſpecified in Domeſday. "Silua ad clauſuram," for making fences, is commonly noticed: as well as "Nemus ad ſepes reficiendas." "Nemus ad ſepes et domos," "Nemus ad domos Curiæ," and "Silua ad faciendos domos," alſo occur. "Silua in defenſo," or "in defenſo Regis," implied that it was fenced in to ſecure its growth. "Silua minuta" or "modica" was under-wood, or coppice. Once we have "Rifpalia ad fepes." (1) And in a few entries "Broca" or brufhwood, (2) and "Grava." "Alnetum" occurs feveral times, and at Spallinge in Lincolnfhire, "Silua alnorum." (3) "Fraxinetum," a grove of Afh trees, a furlong both in length and breadth, is mentioned at Langeport in Northamptonfhire. (4) "Querci," Oaks, are mentioned by name but three times: yet the great encouragement which the cultivation of them received is not proved merely by the entries already quoted concerning pannage. In Dorfetfhire, under Bridetone, it is faid "Bofcus ten Havocumbe. ptin ad Bridetone. ita qđ T.R.E. duæ partes ej⁹ erant in firma. regis tcia u pars ł tcia quercus erat Edwini comitis quæ m ptinet ad Frantone 𝔖 S. Stefani cadomis. (5) At Tovetune in Nottinghamfhire we have "paruum Salictum," and in Ciluuelle in the fame County "IIII. ac Salicti": plantations of Ofiers. (6) "Spinetum" occurs feveral times, according to Kelham for thorney ground, (7) or perhaps for a Spinney, as it is provincially called, or young plantation. (8) In two entries we have "Virgultum": and once, "X. ac runceti." (9) "Dena Siluæ," a Valley or low ground of Wood, occurs in different entries in both volumes of the Survey. At Tarentefort in Kent we have "de Silua VIII. denæ paruæ. 7 III. magnæ." (10) We have alfo "Silua paftilis per loca," in many inftances, where the Woods appear to have been mixed with pafturage.

In the mention of "Effarz" we have probably the earlieft notices of increafing cultivation. In the account of Merchelai in Herefordfhire we read, "In eođ 𝔖 funt LVIII. acræ træ pjectæ de filua. 7 ppofitus 7 alii II. hoës teñ plures acs de ipfa tra. (11) Under Leofminftre it is faid "de Exfartis filuæ exeunt XVII. folid 7 IIII. denar." (12) At Wibelai in the fame county "tra ad I. car de Effarz" occurs. (13) Effarts was a foreft-phrafe for a cultivated fpot, from the French affartir to make plain. (14)

PASTURE was another of the leading features into which the Domefday Survey appears to have divided the face of the country. "Paftura ad pecuniam Villæ" perpetually occurs, (15) and in a few inftances "Pafturæ communes." Of a fmall parcel of land at Svere in Dorfetfhire we read "prius erat pafcualis m feminabilis." (16) At Sunburne in Hampfhire the King's bailiff claimed for the manor a virgate of land and "pafcuã quã vocant dunã," a Down. (17) "Herbagium" is a term alfo ufed for feed.

"PRATUM bobȝ" or "Carrucis," is to be interpreted Meadow fufficient for the Oxen employed in tilling the arable land, or proportionable to the ploughlands. At Fuglemære in Cambridgefhire we have "Ptum omib⁹ car." (18)

MARESC, Merfc, or Mora, is Marfh or Fen Land, and occurs principally in Cambridgefhire, Huntingdonfhire, and Lincolnfhire, the rent being chiefly paid in eels.

Forests, Parks, &c.

Principal Matters noticed in this Record.

§ 2. Lnads.

Forests, being no objects of asseffment, and being of private and special jurisdiction, are rarely noticed in the Domesday Survey; the names of four only, exclusive of the New Forest in Hampshire, being discoverable in that Record: viz. Windsor Forest in Berkshire, (1) the Forest of Grauelinges in Wiltshire, (2) Winburne in Dorsetshire, (3) and Hucheuuode, or Whichwood in Oxfordshire. (4)

The formation of The New Forest has added much to the load of reproaches laid on the memory of the Conqueror. Our historians concur in accusing him of laying waste the country in Hampshire to a very large extent, of expelling the inhabitants from their houses, seizing their property, and even destroying Churches, without giving the sufferers any compensation for the injury. Knyghton, who makes William Rufus a partner in the devastation with his father, represents opinion to have varied in the number of Churches destroyed, from twenty-two, beside dependant Chapels, to fifty-two. (5) Domesday undoubtedly bears testimony to the afforestation; and numerous entries occur in which portions only of Manors appear to have been afforested. Under Borgate we read, "Silua huj⁹ ŏ. ē in foresta regis": (6) under Avere, "Tot nem⁹ huj⁹ ŏ est in foresta regis" (7) under Bichetone, "Pastura huj⁹ ŏ est in foresta Regis. 7 quædam pars siluæ": (8) under Riple, "De isto ŏ. sunt III. hidæ in foresta regis. 7 totū nemus": (9) under Esselei, "Siluā huj⁹ ŏ. de VIII. porc. ten rex in sua foresta." (10) Besides these, the lands "in Nova Foresta et circa eam" form a distinct division of Hampshire in the Survey, in the Hundreds of Rodbridge, Rodedic, Egeiete, Rincuede, and Bovre. (11) The enquiry after the condition of property in the time of Edward, and the circumstance that numerous plots of land were in part only afforested, were perhaps the reasons why so much notice was taken of the forest.

On the destruction of Churches by the Conqueror, we have only to observe that the fact is allowed even by his own chaplain, Willielmus Gemeticensis; who, speaking of the death of William Rufus and his brother Richard, (12) in the Forest, says, "Ferunt autem multi, quod ideo hi duo filij Willielmi Regis in illa silva judicio Dei perierunt; quoniam multas villas et Ecclesias, propter eandem Forestam amplificandam, in circuitu ipsius destruxerat." Lewis, in his "Historical Inquiries concerning Forests and Forest Laws;" 4° Lond. 1811. p. 2. says, "At the time of the Conquest, the number of Forests in this kingdom, according to Cowel, was sixty-eight." Cowel, however, only says that "besides New Forest, there are sixty-eight Forests in England." He took his list from Spelman's Glossary, and Spelman says nothing of the Conquest.

§ 2. Lands.

It is remarkable, that out of ſeventy-three allotments of territory noticed in this part of the Survey of Hampſhire, two Churches only occur, one at Melleford, and the other at Brocеſte, while, in the reſt of the county, we find no fewer than a hundred and fifteen.

It has been clearly proved that the names of places, ſuch as Church Place in one walk, and Church Moor in another, Caſtle Malwood, Peel Hill, Caſtle Hill, Lucas Caſtle, the caſtle in Burley, Thomſon's Caſtle, Roe Caſtle, and Queen's Bower, are not the only indications of former edifices within the preſent circuit of the Foreſt. Theſe different ſpots, by ridges and inequalities of ſurface, and by fragments of building materials which have been found within them, upon digging, ſhew ſtrong marks of former foundations. At the caſtle in Burley the foundation of a church or chapel is ſaid to have been formerly viſible. (1)

Gough in his edition of Camden, (2) and Warner in his Topographical Remarks relating to the South Weſtern parts of Hampſhire, (3) gave, each, a tabular eſtimate of the quantum of injury which William was ſuppoſed really to have occaſioned to the population and agriculture of this part of England by the afforeſtation, abſtracting the quantity of land in hides, virgates, and acres, with the reſpective values of the different allotments of property in the Confeſſor's and the Conqueror's reigns. A third tabular arrangement has been made by the Rev. Mr. Bingley, among his preparations for a hiſtory of Hampſhire. From this table it appears, that at leaſt a hundred and forty hides had been afforeſted between the time of Edward the Confeſſor, and that of the Survey. Theſe, reckoning four virgates in each hide, and thirty acres to make a virgate, will amount to nearly ſeventeen thouſand acres. The greater part of the additions, thus made, appear to have been on the borders of an anterior foreſt, mentioned by ſeveral writers under the name of Ytene, and, in the making of them, there can be little doubt of the deſtruction of numerous habitable places. The latter is evident, from the names of many of them terminating in ham and ton, or tune: as Truham, Greteham, Adelingeham, Wolnetune, Bermintune, and others, all indicating former villages or hamlets. Two hundred and fifteen hides, four virgates, four acres of land, producing in the reign of Edward the Confeſſor £363. 19. 10. appear to have been reduced by the Conqueror to ſeventy-ſix hides, one virgate, twenty-ſix acres, yielding only £129.

Gough's Table was the leaſt extenſive of the three already mentioned; taking in only that part of the Survey which in itſelf purported to relate immediately to the New Foreſt and its environs, and omitting all the other parts of the Survey of the county in which lands are ſtated to have been afforeſted: thus reducing the quantity of land really added by the Conqueror almoſt an half.

Of certain manors in the Hundred of Broctone, it is ſaid, "De iſtis m̄ habebat olim p̃poſit⁹ mel 7 paſturā ad firmā ſuā. 7 ſiluā ad faciendas domos. Modo hñt ħ foreſtarij. p̃poſiti nichil." (4) Under Edlinges, we read, "T. R. E. ualƀ. xxxviii. liƀ. 7 viii. ſolid 7 iiii. den. 7 poſt: ſimilit. Modo: xx. liƀ. 7 tam̄ redd. lii. liƀ. 7 vi. ſot 7 uñ den. cū illis reb3 quæ cadunt in Foreſta." (5)

The Venatores in the Survey are numerous. They appear frequently among the officers of the great barons. Waleran the huntſman is entered in Hampſhire as holding ſeveral manors in that county in capite: with ſtill larger poſſeſſions held in chief in Wiltſhire and Dorſetſhire. (6) He alſo held lands in Hampſhire under the abbey of Saint Peter Wincheſter. (7) Croch the huntſman likewiſe occurs among

([4]) Richard the Foreſter, who is alſo called Richard Venator and Richard Chinen, is ſaid to have held his lands in Warwickſhire, of the gift of the Conqueror, by the ſervice of keeping the foreſt of Kenoc in Staffordſhire, and paying to the King ten marks yearly. ([5])

Among the cuſtoms of Berkſhire, as exiſting in the time of Edward the Confeſſor, it is ſaid, " qui monitus ad ſtabilitionem venationis ñ ibat. L. ſol regi em̃dabat." ([6]) The " Stabilitio in ſilua" mentioned under Hereford, will be noticed among the cuſtoms of the Burghs. The " Stabilitio Venationis" alſo occurs in the account of Shrewſbury. ([7]) Stabilitio meant ſtalling the Deer. To drive the Deer and other Game from all quarters to the centre of a gradually conſtructed circle where they were compelled to ſtand, was ſtabilitio. Malmeſbury, Script. poſt Bedam. edit. 1596. p. 44. ſpeaking of the mildneſs of Edward the Confeſſor's temper, ſays, " Dum quadam vice venatum iſſet, et agreſtis quidam STABULATA illa, quibus in caſſes cervi urgentur, confudiſſet, ille sua nobili percitus ira, per Deum, inquit, et matrem ejus tantundem tibi nocebo, ſi potero."

At Fledberie in Worceſterſhire, the Biſhop of Worceſter had a Wood, " II. lew lg̃ 7 dimid lat̃. de qua hĩ ep̃s quicquid de ea exit in uenatione et melle." ([8]) Among the lands of Oſbern Fitz Richard, "in Marcha de Walis" it is ſaid, " Excreuer̃ ſilua in quib3 iſd Osb̃nus uenationẽ exercet. 7 inde hĩ qd cape poteſt. Nil aliud." ([9]) At Chingeſtune in Herefordſhire, upon the King's demeſne, we read, " Ibi ſilua nõe Triueline. nullã reddens c̃ſuetudinẽ niſi uenationem. Villi T. R. E. ibi manentes. portab uenationẽ ad Hereford. nec aliud ſeruitiũ facieb ut ſcira dicit." ([10])

The Foreſts, conſiſting of woody and deſart tracts which had never been diſpoſed of in the firſt diſtribution of lands, were conſidered, even in the Saxon times, as belonging to the Crown. Freeholders, however, had the liberty of ſporting on their own territories, as is fully expreſſed in the following law of King Canute: " Volo etiam, ut quilibet homo ſit dignus venatione ſua in ſylva, et in agris ſibi propriis, ac abſtineat quilibet a venatione mea ubicunque pacem haberi volo pro plena mulcta." ([11]) So, alſo, in the laws of the Confeſſor: " Et omnis ſit venatione ſua dignus in nemore, in campo, in dominio ſuo, et abſtineat omnis homo a venariis Regis, ubicunque pacem eis habere voluerit, ſuper plenam witam, i. e. Forisfacturam." ([12])

Theſe laws, it is probable, gave riſe to the PARKS, which we find entered in the Survey; ſome of which were of conſiderable extent. The perſons who are enumerated as holding Parks, beſide the King, are the Biſhop of Baieux, the Earl of Ow, Earl Roger, the Biſhop of Wincheſter, Ernulf de Heſding,

Hugh de Grentemaifnil, Peter de Valongies, Walter Giffard, Urfo, Roger de Laci, the Countefs Judith, Hugh de Belcamp, Suein of Effex, the Earl of Moretaine, Robert Malet, and Robert Blund. The ufual term is "Parcus," "Parcus beftium filuaticarum," or "Parcus ferarum filuaticarum." The monaftery of Saint Alban appears to have had a Park in the vill adjoining. ([1]) Stow, in his Annals, ([2]) and Sir William Dugdale in the Hiftory of Warwickfhire, appear to have been mifled by John Rofs into the opinion that the Park of Woodftock in Oxfordfhire, faid to have been made by King Henry the Firft, was the earlieft in England. ([3])

The HAIÆ noticed in the Survey occur chiefly in Worcefterfhire, Herefordfhire, Shropfhire, and Chefhire. In the firft of thefe counties, under Chintune, we find, "I. Haia in qua capiebant feræ." ([4]) In Herefordfhire, under Rvifcop, it is faid, "Ibi ē una Haia in una magna filua:" ([5]) and under Bernoldune, "Silua ē ibi magna. fed q̄titas ñ fuit dicta. Ibi ē una Haia. in qua qđ poteft cape captat." This is among the lands of Hugh Lafne. ([6]) In Shropfhire, at Lege, "III. Haiæ firmæ" are noticed: ([7]) at Wrdine, "Silua in qua funt IIII. Haiæ:" ([8]) at Cortune, "Ibi ē Haia capreolis capienđ:" ([9]) and at Lingham, on the land of Ralph de Mortemer, "III. Haiæ capreol capiendis." ([10]) In Chefhire, at Wivreham, "II. Haiæ capreolorum:" ([11]) at Chingeflie, "IIII. Haiæ." ([12]) In Warwickfhire, upon the Earl of Mellent's lands at Dornelei, we read, "Ibi Haia hñs dimiđ leuu lḡ. 7 tantđ lat." ([13]) At Lailand in Lancafhire, among the lands between the Ribble and the Merfey, it is faid, "Hōes hujᵍ M 7 de Salford non opabunt ad aulā regis. Tantm. I. haiā in filua facieƀ." ([14]) and, among the poffeffions of Saint Peter Gloucefter at Hamme and Nortune in Gloucefterfhire, it is faid, "Ibi habuit Æcclia uenationē fuā p III. haias." ([15]) Beafts were caught by driving them into a hedged or paled part of a wood or foreft, as Elephants are in India, or deer in North America. This is the Haia. ([16])

In one inftance only, at Hache in Lincolnfhire, on the lands of Earl Alan, we have WARENNA LEPORUM. ([17])

Vineyards.

A Controverfy arofe a few years ago, relating to the culture of the Vine in England. Agard firft ftarted a doubt, whether by Vineæ we were not to underftand Orchards. ([18]) The lovers of paradox encouraged the interpretation, which was patronized by Sir Robert Atkyns in his Hiftory of Gloucefterfhire, ([19]) and purfued at confiderable length by Barrington, firft in his Obfervations on the Statutes, and afterwards in the Archaeologia of the Society of Antiquaries. (1) Dr. Pegge, however, confidered the queftion ftill farther, and proved from undeniable authorities, that by the term Vineæ true and proper Vineyards only could have been intended. (2)

Domefday furnifhes, at leaft eight and thirty times, in the different counties, entries of Vineyards, which are ufually meafured by the Arpent, or Arpenna. (3) At Biftefham in Berkfhire, on the land of Henry de Ferrieres "XII. arpendi uineæ" are entered. (4) At Wilcote in Wiltfhire, "Æccła noua 7 dom9 obtima 7 uinea bona." (5) At Holeburne in Middlefex, it is faid, "Wiłłs Camerarius redđ uicecomiti regis p annum VI. fol. p terra ubi fedet uinea fua." (6) In the village of Weftminfter, at Chenetone in Middlefex, and at Ware in Hertfordfhire, Vineyards recently planted occur. (7) At Hantun in Worcefterfhire, "uinea nouella." (8) Under Rageneia, in the fecond volume of the Survey, among the lands of Suein of Effex, we have the moft remarkable of all. "M. I. parc9 7 VI. arpenni uineæ. 7 reddit XX. modios uini fi bene procedit. (9) At Wdelesfort in Effex, on the land of Ralph Baignard, "II. arpenni uineæ portantes. 7 alij ĩi portantes" are entered. (10) Again, under Stabinga, "II. arpenni uineæ 7 đ. 7 dimidi9 portat": (11) and laftly, on the property of Alberic de Ver, at Belcamp in Effex, "M. XI. arpenni uineæ I. portat." (12) In four inftances, Vineyards are meafured by the acre. (13)

That our records and hiftorians were as well acquainted with the words Pomerium and Hortus as with Vinea, cannot be queftioned. Pomerium, indeed, occurs but once in the Domefday Survey, but that once is quite fufficient for our purpofe. At Nottingham, it is faid, "Wiłłmo Peurel ĉceffit rex X. acras terræ. ad faciendū Pomeriū." (14)

Horti, Orti, and Hortuli, occur in the Survey. At Warwick, it is faid, "Extra burgū. c. borđ cū hortulis fuis reddt L. foliđ." (15) Our word Orchard is derived from the Anglo-Saxon word Oꞃceaꞃd, and that from an elder word Oꞃt-ᵹeaꞃd, or Ƿeoꞃtᵹeaꞃd, a plantation of Herbs; fo that its application to fruit trees is of later date.

Vopifcus carries the antiquity of the Vine in England at leaft as far back as A. D. 280. He informs us that the Emperor Probus, toward the latter part of his reign, reftored the privilege of the Vineyard to moft of the provinces to the North and Weft. "Gallis omnibus, et Hifpanis, ac Britannis hinc permifit ut vites haberent vinumque conficerent." (16) We have the authority of Bede, for the exiftence of the Vine

3 In feveral entries in Wiltfhire the Arpenz or Arpenni are ufed as meafures of Meadow-land. tom. i. foll. 73. 74 b. and once we find "II. arpenz filuæ." ibid. fol. 74 b. The Arpen, Arpent, or Arpenna, properly fignified an Acre or Furlong of Ground. Cowel, however, quotes the Register of Wormfley Priory in a paffage where it feems to be a quantity fomething lefs than an Acre. In England, probably, as in France, the meafure of the Arpenna was various. See Spelman and Du Cange's Gloffaries. The latter, from Gregory of Tours, Hift. lib. v. cap. 29. fays, "ftatutum fuerat ut poffeffor de propria terra unam Amphoram Vini per Aripenne redderet." Quoting the Vetus Regeftum Cameræ Computor. amongſt us in the middle of the eighth century: and Vineyards are noticed in the Laws of Alfred. ([1]) Excluſive, however, of the teſtimony of Vopiſcus, or Bede, or Alfred's Laws, the following paſſage in Malmeſbury's Hiſtory "de Geſtis Pontificum," lib. IV. affords a deciſive proof, if any were wanting, that the difference between the Vineyard and the Orchard was ſufficiently known in the Norman times. He is deſcribing Glouceſterſhire, "Terra omnis frugum opima, fructuum ferax hic et ſola naturæ gratia, illic culturae ſolertia, ut quamvis tædioſum per ſocordiam provocet ad laboris illecebram, ubi centuplicato fœnore reſponſura ſit copia. Cernas tramites publicos veſtitos pomiferis arboribus non inſitiva manus induſtria, ſed ipſius ſolius humi natura. . . . . Regio pluſquam aliæ Angliæ provinciæ Vinearum frequentia denſior, proventu uberior, ſapore jucundior. Vina enim ipſa bibentium ora triſti non torquent acredine, quippe parum debeat Gallicis dulcedine." ([2]) In another paſſage, relating to Thorney, he deſcribes the very growing of the Vine. "Nulla ibi vel exigua terræ portio vacat, hîc in pomiferas arbores terra ſe ſubigit; hic prætexitur ager VINEIS quæ vel per terram repunt, vel per bajulos palos in celſum ſurgunt."([3])

From the entries in the Survey, and from other authorities, we learn that in the Norman times few of the great Monaſteries were without their Vineyards. ([4]) Vinitor, a vine-dreſſer, once occurs in the Survey. ([5])

The compiler of the life of Bulleyn, in the laſt edition of the Biographia Britannica, ſays, "It is affirmed we have ſtill upon record ſome treaty of peace between France and England, in which it is ſtipulated, that we ſhould root up our Vineyards, and be their cuſtomers for all our Wine. If ſuch extirpation of the Engliſh Vineyards was not owing to this, it might be to the falling of Gaſcony into the hands of the Engliſh, whence Wine was imported cheaper and better than we could make it." ([6])

Other proofs beſide thoſe which Domeſday affords might certainly be brought, that Wine of native growth was formerly uſed in England.

Mills.

In Domeſday Book wherever a Mill is ſpecified we generally find it ſtill ſubſiſting. ([7]) Mills antiently belonged to Lords of Manors; and the tenants were permitted to grind only at the Lords Mill. This circumſtance ſufficiently accounts not only for the great number of Mills noticed in the Survey as objects of profit to the landholder, but for the large ſums which they are continually ſtated to yield. Sometimes even the ſite of a Mill is mentioned, which had formerly exiſted, no doubt as a valuable capability. In one inſtance, "fract⁹ molin⁹ q̄ nichil redd̄" a broken Mill, or one out of repair, occurs: ([8]) and at Merchelai in Herefordſhire, "Moliñ nil redd̄ niſi tanẽ uictū ej⁹ qui eū cuſtodit." ([9]) The "Molinum hiemale ñ æſtivum" meant a Mill, the water-courſe of which was dry in ſummer.

The produce of Mills is variously stated in the Survey; sometimes in money, sometimes in grain, sometimes partly in money and partly in grain, and occasionally from the fishery in the Mill stream. In one instance we have "i. Molin̄ de v. Ores." ([1]) At Lolingeston in Kent we have, "Un̄ Molin̄. de xv. solid. 7 CL. anguill." ([2]) At Wichendone in Buckinghamshire, "i. molin̄ de xx.[ti] sol. 7 q[a]t xx.[ti] anguill." ([3]) At Maurdine in Herefordshire, "Molin̄ de xx.[ti] solid. 7 xxv. stiches anguill." ([4]) At Avretone in the same county, "Molin̄ redd. IIII.[or] modios annonæ 7 xv. stiches anguill." At Wasmertone in Warwickshire, it is said, "Ibi molin̄ de xx. sol. 7 IIII. sūm sal. 7 mille anguill." ([5]) At Dovere in Kent "Hugo ten uñ molin̄. qui reddit. XLVIII ferlingels de frum̄to. 7 n̄ ptin ulli Manerio." ([6]) At Arundel Castle, we have "Un̄ molin̄ reddens x. modia frum̄ti. 7 x. modia grossæ annonæ. Insup. IIII.[or] modia." ([7]) The average value in Sussex, where were a hundred and forty-eight Mills, was eight shillings and two-pence.

In the very first page of the Survey, we are told, "In introitu portus de Douere est unū molendin̄. qd om̄s pene naues confringit p magnā turbationē maris. 7 maximū dānū facit regi 7 hominib3. 7 non fuit ibi. T. R. E. De hoc dicit nepos Herberti. quod eps baiocensis concessit illū fieri Auunculo suo Herberto filio Iuonis." This could scarcely be any but a Tide-Mill; either afloat, or worked by a reservoir filled at high water.

Another complaint relating to a Mill erected after the time of Edward the Confessor, occurs among the Clamores in Lincolnshire. "In Crosbi debet habe Wills blund[9] unū hortū. in tra Iuonis tallebosc sed impedit ppt Molendin̄ qd non fuit ibi T. R. E." ([8])

Barrington, in his Observations on the Statutes, ([9]) says, "less is to be found with regard to Mills in the laws of England, than perhaps [in] those of any other European country. ([10]) The Statute de Pistoribus, between the 51st of Hen. III. and 13th of Edw. I. is the first in which they are mentioned.

Mills are mentioned, in Records of a later date, as things of considerable value. In Stratford upon Avon, the Bishop of Worcester had in the year 1291, two carucates of land rated at twenty shillings, and one Mill yielding a hundred shillings. In the year 1299, part of the Bishop's revenues there was eleven score acres and an half of arable and, at five pence per acre yearly; twenty-seven acres of meadow at two shillings and sixpence per acre yearly; seven acres of pasture value seventeen shillings and eight-pence; his Mills there nine pounds per annum. See Nash's Observ. on the Return of Domesday for Worcestershire, p. 12. from Dugd. Warw. edit. by Thomas. p. 683. col. a.

In the eleventh and twelfth years of K. Henry III. the bishoprick of Durham was in the King's hands. Master Stephen de Lucy accounted to the Crown for the issues and revenues of it arising in the vacancy. He answered to the King, amongst other issues, "de DCCCC & xxvj l. xij s. & v d. ob. de firmis Molendinorum de eodem tempore" See Madox, Hist. Excheq. 4° edit. vol. ii. p. 717. note l.

[10] Mills form one of the principal heads of the Law of Scotland. To thirl, in the Scottish dialect, which in its primary sense signifies to enslave or thrall, in a secondary meaning signifies "to bind, by the terms of a lease, or otherwise, to grind at a certain Mill." Thirlage is the Scottish term for the servitude by which lands are so astricted. The jurisdiction attached to a Mill, or that extent of ground, the tenants of which are bound to bring their grain thither, is called in the Scottish Law the Sucken of a Mill. Probably from the Anglo-Saxon socne, privilegium. Compare Jamieson's Etym. Dict. of the Scottish Language. See also Erskine's Instit. B. ii. tit. 9. f. 20. § 2. Lands.

The toll is directed to be taken according to the cuſtom of the land, and according to the ſtrength of the water-courſe, either to the twentieth or four and twentieth Corn. ([1])

At Cetelingei, in Suſſex, we find the miller valued with the Mill. ([2]) Molinarii occur, tom. i. foll. 176 b. 180 b. 260 b. 264. The "Molini reddentes plumbas ferri" were Mills belonging to Iron Works. ([3])

Salt Works.

The frequent occurrence of Salt Works in the Domeſday Survey, requires explanation. Thoſe mentioned in counties bordering on the coaſts, were, unqueſtionably, ponds and pans for procuring Marine Salt by evaporation. Thoſe in more inland parts were what are called the Refineries of Brine or Salt Springs. At the time of forming the Survey, Rock or Foſſil Salt was not known in England. The firſt Pits of it were accidentally diſcovered in Cheſhire, on the very ſpot where Domeſday mentions Brine Springs, as late as the year 1670. ([4])

In the Returns for Kent and Suſſex, Salinæ occur frequently: though in Surrey, Hampſhire, Dorſetſhire, Devonſhire, Buckinghamſhire, Glouceſterſhire, Herefordſhire, Warwickſhire, and Shropſhire, we find them more ſparingly entered. In the earlier counties returned in the Survey, the Salt Works do not ſeem to have been objects of the greateſt importance; ſometimes yielding ſcarcely any thing. Two hundred and eighty-five Salinæ in Suſſex averaged at two ſhillings and five-pence halfpenny. At Stollant in Dorſetſhire, ([5]) thirty-two Salt Pans yielded only forty ſhillings. In Devonſhire, at Flueta, eleven Salinæ yielded but eleven pence per annum. ([6]) At Ermentone in the latter county, however, we have a Salina yielding thirteen pounds ten ſhillings "ad penſā 7 arſurā." ([7])

Berkſhire, Wiltſhire, Cornwall, Middleſex, Hertfordſhire, Oxfordſhire, Cambridgeſhire, Huntingdonſhire, Northamptonſhire, Leiceſterſhire, Staffordſhire, Derbyſhire, and Yorkſhire, ſeem to have been ſome almoſt, and ſome entirely, without them. At Sopeberie in Glouceſterſhire, it is ſaid, "Ad hoc m̄ ptin̄ una v̄ in Wiche. q̇uæ reddeƀ. xxv. ſext̄ ſalis. Vrſus uicecom̄ ità uaſtauit hoēs. qđ m̊ redde ñ poſſunt ſal." ([8])

In Worceſterſhire, the Salinæ are very numerous. At Bremeſgrave, in the King's demeſne, thirteen Salt Works were appendant to the Manor, and three Salinarii, wallers or boilers of the Salt, ([9]) who rendered three hundred mitts, or meaſures, for which, in the time of King Edward, three hundred cart loads of wood were given by the managers of the timber. In the Conqueror's time here were ſix "plumbi," or leaden vats for boiling the Salt. ([10]) In Wich, in the ſame county, alſo in the King's demesne, King Edward is stated to have had eleven houses, and his share in five Salt Pits. At one Pit, Upewic, fifty-four Salinæ and two Hocci yielded six shillings and eight-pence. At another Pit, Helperic, were seventeen Salinæ. At a third Pit, (1) Midelwic, twelve Salinæ and two portions of a Hoccus, or lesser Pit, (2) yielding also six shillings and eight-pence. At five other Pits there were fifteen Salinæ. Of all these, it is said, King Edward had for rent fifty-two pounds. In these Pits Earl Edwin had fifty-one Salinæ and a half, and from the Hocci six shillings and eight-pence. The whole paying twenty-four pounds rent. At the time of forming the Survey, King William had in his demesne both the share of King Edward and that of the Earl. The Sheriff, to whose care the Salt Works seem to have been consigned, paid thence sixty-five pounds (3) and two measures of Salt, when he was allowed wood. If the wood (used in boiling the Salt) was not allowed, the rent went unpaid. (4)

In Terdeberie were seven Salinæ and two Plumbi, paying twenty shillings and a hundred measures of Salt. (5) In Norwiche in the same county, a Salina paid a hundred measures of Salt for a hundred cart-loads of wood. (6) Dr. Nash observes that a Salt-pan in Droitwich was worth four shillings, when a house at Worcester was valued at one. (7)

The Salt Works of Cheshire, however, were those of the greatest consequence. The detail of the laws and customs of the Cheshire Wiches form a singular and a very curious article in the Survey.

In Warmundestrou hundred, it is said, in King Edward's time, was a Wich with a Pit for making Salt, and eight Salinæ. Of the rents and profits of these Salinæ, King Edward had two portions, and Edwin Earl of Chester the third: beside which, the Earl had a Salt Work of his own adjacent to the Manor of Acatone, from which his own household was supplied. If the Earl sold any from it, the King had two-pence as toll, and the Earl the third penny. The owners of private Salt Works were also permitted to have Salt, for the use of their families, toll free; but paid toll for all which they sold, whether at the works or in any other part of the county of Chester. The Salinæ, both in and out of demesne, were encircled in one part by a stream, and on the other by a foss. In King Edward's time the rent of this Wich, including the profits of the hundred, amounted to twenty pounds. When Earl Hugh received it, one Salina only was productive: the rest of the Wich was disused. At the time of forming the Survey the rent was reduced to ten pounds. In Mildestvich, now Middlewich Hundred was another Wich, the Salt Works of which had also belonged jointly to King Edward and Earl Edwin, though none were in demesne. In King Edward's time this Wich had yielded a rent excluding the profits of the Hundred, of five pounds. When Earl Hugh received it, in King William's time, the disuse of the Wich had reduced the rent to twenty-five shillings. A third Wich, called Norwich, in Mildestvic hundred, likewise belonging in the Saxon time to King Edward and Earl Edwin, also produced eight pounds. When Earl Hugh received this Wich it was totally unproductive; but at the time of making the Survey it produced thirty-five shillings. (8)

It is probable, say the authors of the new Magna Britannia, that the chief exportation of Salt at this early period, from Cheshire, was to Wales; the people of which country are said to have called Nantwich, Hellath Wen, or the White Salt Pit, from the whiteness of the Salt there made. (9)

1 From the Pit the brine was pumped into the Salt Pans for evaporation before boiling.

2 Dr. Nash, Obs. on Domesd. for Worc. p. 10. conjectures that Hoccus signified a small measure of Salt-water.

§ 2. Lands.

It is fingular, that at Lentune, now Lymington, in Hampfhire, no Salt Works are entered in the Survey, although in the year 1145 a tithe of the Salt manufactures there was granted by Richard de Redvers to the abbey of Quarre in the Isle of Wight. ([1]) Lymington has ftill the moft confiderable manufacture of Marine Salt of any place upon the Southern coaft of England.

In fol. 265 b. of the firft volume of the Survey, William Malbedeng is faid to hold Actune of Earl Hugh, " 7 in Wich. I. domū quietā ad fal faciendū." At Spallinge in Lincolnfhire "Area Salinarum" occurs. ([2])

In Effex and Norfolk, in the fecond volume of the Survey, the Salinæ are numerous: but not fo numerous in Suffolk.

The Meafures of Salt noticed in the Survey, are Ambræ, Bulliones, Menfuræ, Mittæ, Sextaria, and Summæ.

An Ambra was four bufhels. ([3]) At Waffingeton, in Suffex, we have " v. falinæ de cx. ambris falis." ([4]) Bulliones occur but once in the Survey: fifteen are faid to have made a Summa or Horfe-load of Salt. ([5]) Menfuræ are mentioned at Muceltude in Gloucefterfhire: " XXIIII. menfuræ Salis in Wich." ([6]) The Mitta, according to fome writers, was ten bufhels. ([7]) At Hadefore in Worcefterfhire, feven Salinæ yielded a hundred and eleven Mits of Salt. ([8]) The Sextarium appears to have been of uncertain quantity. In moft of the entries in the Survey in which it occurs, it is mentioned as a meafure of honey, ([9]) and two or three times for corn or flour. ([10]) The Summa, Seme, or Horfe-load, is ufed in the Survey for Salt, Corn, Flour, Malt, Peas, and Fifh. ([11]) Its relative quantity for Salt has been already noticed under Bulliones.

Iron and Lead Works

§ 2. Lands.

The circumſtance that the arts of refinery and working Metals could not have been unknown even in the Saxon times, renders it ſingular that ſo few notices ſhould occur in the Domeſday Survey concerning the mineral productions of the country. No mention whatever of Tin occurs in that part of the Survey which relates to Cornwal; (1) but Iron is mentioned in different Counties: and Blomes, Maſſes, and Plumbæ of Iron, are ſeveral times noticed as rents. In Somerſetſhire, under "Terra Regis," at Sudperet, we read, "Huic Ɱ reddebat T. R. E. de Cruche p̄ anñ ĉſuetudo. hoc. ẽ. vi. oues cū agnis totidẽ. 7 qſq; lib hõ. i. blomā ferri." (7) At Pulcrecerce in Glouceſterſhire, belonging to Glaſtonbury Abbey, it is ſaid, "Ibi x. ſerui, 7 vi. hoẽs reddt c. maſſas ferri. x. minus. 1 The conqueſt of Cornwall by Athelſtan, it will be remembered, was not completed till the year 935. In 997 the province was ravaged by the Danes: and again in 1068 by Godwin and Edmund the ſons of Harold, in their return to Ireland. Theſe convulſions will probably account for the neglect of the Corniſh Tin Mines in the Eleventh Century. Certain it is, that from the time when Cornwall was governed by its native Earls, till after the formation of the Domeſday Survey, its product of Tin muſt have been inconſiderable. Had Edward the Confeſſor received any revenue from the Mines, there can be no doubt but it would have been noticed in the Survey.

Madox informs us, (Hiſt. Excheq. 4°. edit. vol. ii. p. 132.) that "in the tenth of K. Richard I. William de Wrotcham accounted at the Exchequer for the ferm and iſſues of the Mines of Devonſhire and Cornwall, and for ſeveral receipts as well in money as in tin, for one whole year." Mag. Rot. 10 R. I. rot. 12 b. He adds, "In the fourteenth year of K. John, William de Wrotham accounted for CC. marks, the ferm of the Stannary of Cornwall for the 13th and 14th years of that King; and for CC l. the ferm of the Stannary of Devonſhire for the ſame ſpace of time; and for Dxlij l. v s. for the Marks proceeding from the Tin of Cornwall and Devon for the 13th year, and for Dclxviij l. xij s. ix d. for the like for the 14th year." This operation they call ſhingling the Loop. Kennett's Gloſſary. MS. Lanſd. num. 1098. fol. 43. Baldewin de Execestre, "Ibi molin̄ redd. II. plūbas ferri." (1) In Cheshire, in the Hundred of Atiscross, we find Robert de Roelent holding, beside a Moiety of the castle and burg of Roelent, "medietatem æcctæ 7 monetæ. 7 Minariæ ferri ibid' inuentæ. 7 medietatē aquæ de Cloith." &c. (2) In Lincolnshire, at Westbitham, seven foreigners appear to have held two carrucates of land and three Iron-forges, yielding forty shillings and eight-pence. "Ibi VII. francigene hn̄t II. car̄. 7 III. fabricas ferri de XL. solid 7 VIII. den." (3)

Fabri, smiths, occur several times in the Survey, as will be hereafter noticed; but in two instances, in the Return for Northamptonshire, from the great sums paid, they seem to have been rather Iron-workers. At Norton in that County, it is said, "Fabri reddeb̄ VII. lib̄. T. R. E." In the same page, (4) at Toveceſtre, "Fabri reddeb̄ c. sol m̊ nichil."

The LEAD-WORKS mentioned in the Survey are all upon the King's demesne in Derbyshire. In Mestesforde, we read, "Ibi VIII. ac̄ pti 7 una Plūbaria." (5) In Werchesworde, "Ibi sunt III. plumbariæ." "In Badeqvela, una plumbaria." "In Aisseford, una plumbaria." (6) After Badeqvella, Aisseford, and Hope, it is said, "H. tria Maneria reddebant T. R. E. XXX. lib̄. 7 V. sestarios mell 7 dimidiū 7 V. plaustratas plūbi de L. tabulis. Modo reddunt. X. lib̄. 7 VI. solid. Wills Peurel custodit." (7) Kelham translates "V. plaustratas plūbi de L. tabulis," five cart-loads of Lead of fifty tables. Pilkington, speaking of the pieces, or blocks of Lead cast in moulds, of which two make a pig, says "Lead is not always disposed of in this state and form. Sometimes it is first rolled into sheets at works erected for that purpose in the neighbourhood of the furnaces." (8) The Tabulæ of Domesday Book, for roofing Cathedrals, must have been cast at the Foundery.

Fisheries.

FISHERIES form another of the more important sources of rent noticed in the Domesday Survey. Where the produce in kind is mentioned it seems to have consisted chiefly in Eels, Herrings, or Salmon.

The rent in Eels appears sometimes to have been paid numerically, as, at Thapeslav one of the Bishop of Bayeux's manors in Buckinghamshire, "De piscar̄. mille anguill." (9) At Archelov in Shropshire, we have, "Piscaria de mille 7 qngent 7 II. anguill magnis:" (10) and in Yorkshire, under Bevreli, "Piscar. VII. miliū Anguillarū." (11) Sometimes they were paid by stiches or sticks, every stick having twenty-five. (12) Among the Bishop of Lincoln's dependants at Dorchester in Oxfordshire, we find,

Principal Matters noticed in this Record. § 2. Lands.

"Piſcator redd. xxx. ſtich anguill." ([1]) At Leofminſtre in Herefordſhire ninety ſtiches were paid to the King, which were not included in the computation of the rent of the manor. ([2]) The payment of Eels in rent from mills has been already noticed in a former page; it was then that they were uſually meaſured by ſtiches. At Patriceſham in Surrey, we have, "Piſcar de mille anguill 7 mille Lampridul." ([3])

The Herring Fiſheries occur in Kent and Suſſex, once in Norfolk, and very numerouſly in Suffolk. Sandwich in Kent, which belonged to Chriſt Church Canterbury, yielded annually forty thouſand Herrings for the refectory of the monks. ([4]) The church of Saint Peter Wincheſter, had thirty-eight thouſand five hundred Herrings from the villeins on their manor at Lewes in Suſſex. ([5]) William de Warene had ſixteen thouſand Herrings from the burgeſſes of Lewes. ([6]) He had alſo four thouſand "de gablo" from the villani and bordarii of Briſtelmeſtune. ([7]) The manor of Beccles in Suffolk, in King Edward's time, yielded thirty thouſand Herrings to the abbey of Saint Edmund. This rent in the Conqueror's time was increaſed to ſixty thouſand. ([8]) Hugh de Montefort's manors in Suffolk yielded numerous rents of Herrings. ([9])

Salmon are mentioned in the Survey, by name, but in few entries. Among the poſſeſſions of Judhel de Totenais in Devonſhire, we find two Fiſheries, one at Lodeſwille, and the other at Corneorde, each yielding thirty Salmon, as rent. ([10]) Both in the time of Edward, and in King William's time, the Church of Saint Peter Glouceſter received ſixteen Salmon in part of rent from its own burgeſſes in the city. ([11]) A hide of land belonging to Merchelai in Herefordſhire, in the time of King Edward, yielded ſix Salmon, in part of rent to the crown. ([12]) Earl Hugh had a Fiſhery at Etone in Cheſhire, which yielded annually a thouſand Salmon. ([13]) Fiſheries in the Severn and the Wye, no doubt principally for Salmon, are frequently noticed in Glouceſterſhire. Under Tedeneham, among the lands belonging to the crown, we find, "In Sauerna. XI. piſcariæ in dñio. 7 XLII. piſcariæ uillanoꝝ. In Waia. I. piſcaria. 7 uillanoꝝ II. piſcariæ 7 dimidia. Rogerꝰ comes creuit in Waia II. piſcarias." ([14])

At Mortelage in Surrey, "Una Piſcaria ſine cenſu" occurs. It is added, "Hanc Piſcariã habuit Heraldus comes in Mortelaga T. R. E. 7 Stigandꝰ arch habuit diu. T. R. W. 7 tam dñt qđ Heraldꝰ ui conſtruxit eã T. R. E. in terra de Chingeſtune. 7 in terra S. Pauli. ([15]) This Fiſhery was a Weir. There are Haiæ for fiſhing at Kingſton now.

At Saham in Cambridgeſhire, we find, "VII. Piſcatores reddentes regi p̃ſentation Piſciũ ter in anno ſcdm quod poſſunt." ([16]) The abbey of Ely appears to have enjoyed great advantages from the fiſheries in the two Hundreds of Ely: as, "Ꝺ Dodinton. De piſcariis. XXVII. mil anguill. 7 CL. De p̃ſentationibꝰ XXIIII. ſol." "Ꝺ Litelport. De piſcar. XVII. mil anguill. De p̃ſentation piſciũ XII. ſol 7 IX. den." "In Stuntenei. De Piſcar. XXIIII. mil Anguill. De p̃ſent. XVIII. ſol. ([17]) At Saham, alſo, "una nauis quæ piſcat in mara p conſuetuđ" is reckoned, with the demeſné there, belonging to the Abbat. ([18]) At Saham too, the abbat of Saint Edmund had his Fiſhery. "In Sahã ten ipſe abb. VI. acras træ.

Twenty-four fiſhermen in Gernemutha [Yarmouth] were appendant to the royal manor of Gorleſtuna in Suffolk. (5)

The Piſcinæ or Vivaria were ſtews or fiſh-pools, the greater number belonging to the religious. At Tudeuuorde in Yorkſhire, among the poſſeſſions of Robert Malet, it is ſaid "Ibi xx. Piſcinæ redđ xx. milia anguillar̃." At Svafam in Cambridgeſhire, the Abbat of Ely is ſaid to have received ſix ſhillings, "de theloneo retis: (8) and Walter de S. Waleri, at Hamntone in Middleſex, "de Sagenis et Tractis in Aqua Temiſiæ III. ſol." (9)

The Heiemaris was a Sea-hedge, now called a Pitched Net, or Choll Net. It is mentioned in the following entry under Sudwolda in Suffolk, among the lands belonging to the abbey of Saint Edmund: "Medietas uni⁹ Heiemaris. 7 qr̃tā pars alũ⁹ medietatis. Not as Polydore Vergil fancies, from the hide of a beaſt, as if an Engliſh hide of land were like the extent of Carthage, Quantum taurino poſſint circundare tergo; but from the Saxon hẏꝺ, a houſe or habitation, from hẏꝺan to cover: the word was ſometime taken for a houſe, as we ſtill preſerve the word Hut for a cottage. And what Bede calls Familias (which Familia ſeems to have been a circuit of ground ſufficient for the maintenance of a family) his Saxon interpreter King Alfred calls hẏꝺelanꝺeꞃ. of a Hide was never exprefsly determined. The Dialogus de Scaccario makes it one hundred acres. ([1]) The Malmfbury manufcript cited by Spelman, computes it at ninety-fix acres: one hide four virgates, and every virgate four acres. And yet the hiftory of the foundation of the Abbey of Battle ([2]) makes eight virgates go to one hide. But Polydore Vergil blunders moft, who reduces a hide to twenty acres. The truth feems to be that a hide, a yardland, a knight's fee, &c. contained no certain number of acres, but varied according to different places. In the Domefday Inquifition the firft enquiry was how many hides." ([3])

Selden fays, the juft value of a hide that might fit the whole kingdom never appears from Domefday, and was ever of an uncertain quantity. ([4]) From an entry in Buckinghamfhire, one would fuppofe the hide in that county at leaft had been meafured with peculiar exactnefs. In Latefberie, it is faid, "ten Eps Lifiacenfis de Epo Baiocfi I. hid v. pedes minus." ([5]) Hutchins, in his Differtation on Domefday Book, prefixed to the Hiftory of Dorfetfhire, fays, "The Hide was the meafure of land in the Confeffor's reign; the Carucate that to which it was reduced by the Conqueror's new ftandard." Among the poffeffions, however, of Goisfridus de Werce in Leicefterfhire, we read, "Ipfe G. ten Medeltone. Ibi st. VII. hidæ 7 una car træ 7 una bouata. In unaqq hida. st. XIIII. car træ 7 dimid." ([6]) In the fame county, under Cilebi, we read, "Ogerus Brito ten de rege. II. partes uni9 hidæ. id eft XII. car træ. ([7]) And, in the lands between the Ribble and the Merfey in Lancafhire, it is exprefsly ftated, "in unaquaque hida funt. VI. caruc træ." ([8]) Even at Odetun in Dorfetfhire, we read, "Bricfi tenuit. miles regis E. 7 geldb p XII. hid. Tra eft XVI. car. De ea st in dnio IIII. carucatæ." ([9])

Agard takes confiderable pains to prove, that both before and after the Conqueft, fix fcore acres went to the Hide. He quotes a manufcript entitled, "Reftauratio ecclefiæ de Ely," in which were thefe words: "Et non invenerunt de terra quæ mulieris jure fuiffet, nifi unam HIDAM per fexies XX. Acras, et fuper Hidam XXIV. Acras:"* and again, "In Wilberham emit Abbas ab Alfuuino et uxore ejus duas HIDAS duodeciis XX. Acrarum, et totum Hundredum unius cujufque emptionis fuit in teftimonium." ([10])

In illuftration of the fame meafure, as having been ufed for the Hide fubfequent to the Conqueft, Agard quotes the "Placita de Jur. et Affif. coram Joh. de Vallibus et aliis Juftic. Itin. apud Cant. 14 Edw. I. Dicunt quod funt in Hokinton XII. Hidæ terræ, quarum quælibet HIDA continet in fe fexies viginti acras terræ." ([11])

§ 2. Lands.

Under Caplefore, in Herefordſhire, a diſtinction is made in Domeſday between the Engliſh and Welſh Hides. ([1]) Biſhop Kennett ſays, that in the 15th of Henry the ſecond, A.D. 1169, a hide of land at Cheſterton contained ſixty-four acres. He adds, the yearly value of a hide of land at Blechingdon in Oxfordſhire, in the 35th of Henry III. was forty ſhillings. ([2])

The CARUCATA, which is alſo to be interpreted the plough-land, was as much arable as could be managed with one plough and the beaſts belonging thereto in a year; having meadow, paſture, and houſes for the houſeholders and cattle, belonging to it. ([3]) The Carucate was of Norman introduction, and uſually, in the Domeſday Survey, follows the meaſure of the hide. Thus every place is ſaid to have paid geld for ſo many hides T. R. E. and then follows its preſent meaſure of ſo many carucates. It has been already ſhewn that with reference to the Hide the meaſure of the Carucate was various, even in the Survey. It probably differed according to the nature of the ſoil, or the cuſtom of huſbandry in every county. Agard thought that in thoſe counties of Domeſday where no Hides are mentioned, the Carucate and the Hide were co-extenſive: ([4]) as in Derbyſhire, Nottinghamſhire, Rutlandſhire, Yorkſhire, and Lincolnſhire. ([5]) He quotes Walter Wyttleſey, a monk of Peterborough, who, as far as one county is concerned, writes, "In provincia Lincolniæ non ſunt Hidæ ſicut in aliis Provinciis, ſed pro Hidis ſunt Carucatæ terrarum, et non minus valent quam Hidæ." He alſo cites a paſſage from Knyghton "de qualibet Hida, id eſt Carucata terræ." Biſhop Kennett informs us from a Deed in the Monaſticon that a Carucate in the reign of Richard the firſt was computed at ſixty acres. ([6]) "Yet," he adds, "another charter, 9 Rich. I. allots a hundred acres to a Carucate. And Fleta temp. Edw. I. ſays, if land lay in three common fields, then nine ſcore acres to a Carucate, ſixty for winter tillage, ſixty for ſpring tillage, and ſixty for fallows. But if the land lay in two fields, then eight ſcore acres to a Carucate, one half for tillage, and the other for fallow." ([7]) "The meaſure of a carucate," he continues, "was different according to time and place. In 32 Edw. III. one carucate of land in Burceſter in Oxfordſhire, contained a hundred and twelve acres; and two carucates in Middleton were three hundred acres." ([8])

In abbreviating the Domeſday returns, the Norman ſcribes appear occaſionally, even in the ſame county, to have uſed the contraction car̃ or car' both for caruca and carucata: although the one ſignified the plough and team, and the other, as Dr. Naſh expreſſes it, the team's tillage. The omiſſion to obſerve this has led many of the tranſlators of Domeſday into error.

In different parts of the Survey we have frequent intimations that the land could maintain more ploughs, that is, was capable of improvement. As in Herefordſhire, at Bertune, "In dñio poſſent eſſe II. car' pluſquã ſunt." ([9]) Again, at Moneſlai in the ſame county, "una car̃ plus poteſt eſſe." ([10])

§ 2. Lands.

In Yorkshire the entries of this description are extremely numerous. As "x. carucatæ 7 vi. car̃ poss ẽẽ:" "xii. carucatæ 7 vii. car̃ .poss esse:" "xxv. carucatæ 7 xiii. carucæ poss ẽẽ:" "quat xx. 7 xvi. carucatæ træ in qb3 poss esse lx. carucæ." (1) These latter entries are perhaps to be ascribed to the slow recovery of Yorkshire from devastation. In Norfolk, at Caustituna, after the description of the manor in the time of King Edward the Confessor, it is said, "Tnc 7 p9 iiii. car in dñio. m iii. & due possnt restaurari." "Tnc 7 p9 xxvi. car. hom. [belonging to the tenemental lands] m xvi. & alie possent restaurari." (2)

The Solin is a measure of land only found in Kent. In the Register of Battle Abbey, preserved among the Cotton Manuscripts in the British Museum the Manor of Wi in Kent, which was given to that monastery by the Conqueror, is noticed, "cum omnibus appendiciis suis septem Swulingarum, id est Hidarum." (3) In the second folio of the Survey of Kent is this entry: "In cõmuni t̃ra S. Martini sunt cccc acræ 7 dimid. quæ fiunt ii. solinos 7 dimid." "Now," says Agard, "this word dimidium first named, must have relation to half an Hundred, and not to half an Acre. For in all the whole book there is not named half an Acre. (4) And then I take it, that a Solin of Ground, after English account, containeth two hundred and sixteen Acres. If after Norman tale, then nine score Acres. And to this agreeth somewhat near a Note taken out of a Leiger Book, which the Bishop of Norwich Dr. Redman hath, in these words: 'Item Abbas dicit quod in libro vocato Domesday Sancti Edwardi apud Westm. sic habetur, Abbas Sancti Augustini tenet Manerium de Langeport. Ibi est unum Solin et unum Jugum, &c. Et ulterius idem Abbas dicit secundum interpretationem antiquorum terminorum unum Solin continet cc Acras." (5)

The Carucate bore the same variety of proportion to the Solin as to the Hide. Sometimes, when it is said of land "p uno Solin se defd." it is added "Terra ẽ vi car̃." At others, "Tra ẽ iii. car." "Tra ẽ v. car̃." "Tra ẽ iiii. car." "Tra ẽ ii. car̃."

On the Jugum, or Yoke of land, a measure likewise confined to Kent in the Survey, the opinions of writers also differ. Matthew Paris, Ralph de Diceto, Bromton, and the Annalist of Dunstaple, write as if the Jugum and the Hide were the same. But this is not the case in the Domesday returns. Agard notices a passage in which the Jugum appears to have been equivalent to half a Carucate. It is among the entries relating to the property of the Bishop of Baieux. "Odo ten de epo in Hadone i. jugum. Tra ẽ dim car̃." (6) From another entry, however, it should seem as if four Juga went to the Solin. "Hugo de Montfort ten uñ ꝺ Estwelle. qđ tenuit Frederic de rege E. 7 p uno Solin se defđ. Tria Juga sunt infra divisionẽ Hugonis. 7 qrtũ jugũ ẽ extra. 7 ẽ de feudo epi Baioc." (7)

The Virgate, it is probable, differed from itself in different places at the time of the Survey, as much as at subsequent periods. In the Account of Oxford, the "uirg quæ c̃suetudinariæ erant T.R.E." are mentioned. (8) Webb, from the consideration of the Ely and Exeter Manuscripts, decides that four virges or virgates muſt have formed the Hide of the Survey: ([1]) although the Regiſter of Battle Abbey, ([2]) which is of early authority, ſays eight Virgates made the Hide. Agard ſays, "Virgata is taken diverſly, as I find in a Regiſter Book of Ely, which now the Dean hath, in ſundry towns ſundry meaſures, as in Leverington a Yard-land is LX. acres, in Fenton XXX. acr, in Tyd XXXII. acr. In bundello Eſchaet. 26° E. I. infra Turrim Lond. ſunt ibi VII. Virgatæ terræ in dominico continentes quinquies XX. & XII. acras, quarum quælibet Virgata valet VIII. s. prec. Acr. VI. d. Ergo XVI. Acr. pro Virgata. In Coln Virgata operabilis XV. Acr. And in another Town, not named by my note, XX. Acr. And ſo I have ſeen in Extents." ([3]) Dr. Naſh ſays, the Virgata is explained in a MS. t. Hen. V. to contain thirty acres, ſometimes twenty-four, and ſometimes fifteen. He adds, in the Receipt of the Exchequer is an antient Deed from John Wace to St. Mary's of Stanleig of a Virgate of land in Henton, where the Virgate appears to be eighteen acres. ([4])

The BOVATA, or Oxgang, was originally as much as an Ox-Team could plough in a year. Eight bovates are uſually ſaid to have made a Carucate: but the number of acres which made a Bovate are variouſly ſtated in different records, from eight to twenty-four. Dr. Naſh ſays, "Bovata terræ continet VIII. acras terræ in campis Doncaſtriæ." Trin. 21 Edw. I. Rot. 26 Ebor. coram Rege. "Una Bouata de XVI. acris, et alia bovata continet XVII. acras." Trin. 26 Edw. I. Ebor. de Banco. ([5])

In a few entries of the Survey we find the FERDING mentioned as a meaſure of Land. At Dolvertune in Somerſetſhire, it is ſaid, "Huic ẽ ſť additæ. II. hidæ træ dimid ferding min⁹." ([6]) It is, no doubt, the ſame with the FERLING which occurs ſeveral times in Somerſetſhire and Devonſhire, and evidently in its original ſignification meant the feorðling, or fourth part. ([7]) From a compariſon of different entries it will be found to be leſs than either the Hide or the Virgate. Agard conſidered it of the ſame dimenſions with the Oxgang, about fifteen Acres. ([8]) Lord Coke is certainly wrong in making the Ferling and Quarentena the ſame. ([9])

ACRA an acre, from the Anglo-Saxon Æcer a field, and that from the Roman Ager, appears originally to have ſignified no determined quantity of land. It is mentioned however as a meaſure at a very early period; and from a paſſage in the Battle Abbey Regiſter, ſo often quoted, it appears that the Normans had an Acre confeſſedly differing from that of the Saxons. We find a grant in it of "triginta acras prati, ad menſuram Normanniæ dimenſas, in fundo manerii ſui vocabulo Bodeham." ([10]) The different proportions of the Acre in the time of King Edward the firſt, with the intermediate admenſurations, are laid down in the "Statutum de Admenſuratione Terrarum:" when the Acre was ten perches in length, it was to be ſixteen in breadth; and when eighty perches in length, to be two in breadth. ([11]) The elementary Acre, however, was forty perches long by four perches wide.

The PERCA, or PERTICA, according to the Regifter of Battle. confifted of fixteen feet. [1] Agarde fays, in the Arrentations of Affarts for Forefts, made in the reigns of Henry the third and Edward the firft, for foreft ground the commiffioners let the land "per perticam xx. pedum." [2] Spelman fays, the Pertica Regis upon the Clofe Rolls of the 11th of Henry the third was of twenty-four feet. [3] Different meafures of the Perch, from ten to twenty feet, may be found in deeds in the Monafticon. [4] Abroad, it extended to twenty-five, and even twenty-feven feet. [5] By the Statutum de Admenfuratione Terrarum five yards and a half of the Ulna Regis, or yard of three feet, were to make a Perch. [6]

The LEUCA and QUARENTENA of the Survey were moft commonly applied to Woodland. The LEUCA, LEUGA, and LEUUA, according to the Regifter of Battle Abbey, confifted of four hundred and eighty perches, or twelve Quaranteines. Ingulphus, however, who is good authority, fpeaks of the Leuca as a mile. [7] The ordinary mile of England, it will be remembered, in former times, was more of a traditionary than an afcertained Meafure. It was nearly a mile and a half of the prefent ftandard. [8]

The QUARENTENA, called Quadragenaria in the Exeter Domefday, was the Forty long, or Furlong: from the French Quarente, forty. A meafure of forty Perches. [9]

The Libra ad numerum, was the pound of ready money, made up not of fhillings but of Oræ, and, as we afcertain by different entries, was valued at the rate of twenty-pence to the Ora. The Libræ albæ, de albo argento, blancæ, candidæ, de albis denariis, denariorum candidorum, alborum nummorum, or candidorum nummorum, appear to have been the fame

8 Blomefield, in his Hiftory of Norfolk, renders Leuua a league, meaning by the term an extent not exceeding two miles, which appears to have anfwered in the generality of places he examined as to their extent. It muft not be forgotten that LEUUA or LEUGA has another meaning in a few Entries of the Domefday Survey. The Leuua or Lowy as it is called, of Tonbridge Caftle in Kent, will be found noticed in p. lxvii. See a particular account of the "Leuga S. Wilfridi," in Yorkfhire, Domefd. tom. i. fol. 303. with the Libræ ad numerum, as may appear from several quotations, in which they are likewise valued at twenty-pence to the Ora. ([1]) The Libræ ad pensum, were by weight. The Libræ ad ignem et ad pensam, arsæ et pensatæ, or ad pensam et arsuram, formed the payment when the coins offered at the Exchequer were defective in fineness as well as in weight. On this occasion the Receivers at the Exchequer either melted a sample of the money paid, or received sixpence or a shilling over every twenty in lieu of actual combustion. Madox tells us, that in cases where the money had a baser alloy than ordinary, the King's officers required even a larger sum than the shilling in every pound for a compensation. The money so melted, or having the supplemental payment added, was said to be dealbated or blanched. ([2]) Brady, in his History, says, "When Domesday was compiled, there was always a fire ready in the Exchequer, and if they liked not the allay of the money, they burnt it, and then weighed it." ([3]) One of the entries of money paid ad pensam et arsuram seems to indicate a great depreciation of the currency at the time of the Survey. Under Boseham in Sussex we read, "Totū ꝑ. T. R. E. 7 post : ualuit XL. lib. Modo similit XL. lib. Tam̄ reddit L. lib. ad arsurā 7 pensū quæ ualent LXV. lib." ([4]) Under Godalminge in Surrey, it is said, "T. R. E. ualb XXV. lib 7 post : XX. lib. Modo XXX. lib ad numerū 7 tam̄ reddt ad pensū 7 arsurā XXX. lib." ([5])

The Marka Auri is noticed in the following and probably in other passages. Tom. i. fol. 23. Of the Manor of Salletone in the County of Sussex, it is said, "Modo apꝑciat qt xx^ti^ 7 XIII. lib. 7 unā mark auri. Tam̄ redd CXX. lib. 7 unā mark auri." Fol. 32. At Totinges in Surrey, "Hanc trā accep̄ Comes Wallef de Suan. pᵍ mortē regis E. 7 inuadiauit ꝑ II. mark auri Alnodo Lundoniensi." Fol. 50. Of a small portion of land at Herlei in Hampshire it is said "Qui ten hanc trā dicit qa emit eā de Witto

"redd XII. lib blancas de xx^ti^ in ora.", Madox Hist. Excheq. edit. 4°. 1769. tom. i. p. 284, makes a variation in some cases between the payments blank and de numero. He recites some precedents wherein the two are compared together, but acknowledges his inability to adjust the difference. He ascribes it to the temporary corruptness of the money paid; and considers the difference to have varied in some measure after that proportion. In one instance in Domesday, tom. i. fol. 220. we have "XL. lib ad pondus de xx^ti^ in ora."

MS. 313. fol. 32. we read, "Thomas de la Fede tenet villam de Fede per ponderacionem denariorum ad Scaccarium." Of the mode of making the Assay we read the following in the Dialogus de Scaccario. Lib. i. cap. 6. "Quid ad Militem Argentarium. "Porro Miles Argentarius ab inferiori Scaccario ad superius defert loculum examinandi argenti, cujus supra meminimus; quem cum intulerit signatum sigillo Vicecomitis, sub omnium oculis effundit in Scaccario quadraginta quatuor solidos, quos de acervo sumptos prius signaverat, factaque commixione eorundem, ut ponderi respondeant, mittit in unum Vasculum trutinæ libram ponderis, in alterum vero de denariis quod oportuerit, quo facto numerat eosdem, ut ex numero constare possit, si legitimi ponderis sint; cujuscunque vero ponderis inventi fuerint, seorsum mittit in Cissum libram unam, hoc est xx. sol. ex quibus examen fiat; reliquos vero xxiiij sol. mittit in loculum. Item duo denarii præter libram examinandam, dantur Fusori, non de fisco sed de parte Vicecomitis, quasi in præmium sui laboris. Tunc eliguntur a Præsidente, vel a Thesaurario si ille absens fuerit, alii duo Vicecomites, ut simul cum Argentario nec non et Vicecomite cujus examen faciendum est, procedant ad ignem; ubi Fusor ante præmonitus præparatis necessariis eorum præstolatur adventum: ibi iterum præsente Fusore et hiis qui a Baronibus missi sunt, diligenter computantur, et fusori traduntur. Quid ad Fusorem. Quos ille suscipiens manu propria numerat, et sic disponit eos in Vasculum ignitorium cinerum quod in fornace est. Tunc igitur artis fusoriæ lege servata redigit eos in massam, conflans et emundans argentum." Hist. Excheq. ut supr. vol. ii. p. 377.

§ 3. Money.

The Marka Argenti occurs several times in the first page of the Survey of Dorsetshire. In the account of Bertvne in Gloucestershire (2) it is said "Hoc ϖ 7 Bristow reddt regi c. 7 x. mark argenti. Burgenses dĩit qd eps G. ht xxxIII. mark argenti 7 unã mark auri pter firmã regis."

The Half-Mark, both of Silver and Gold, occurs in numerous passages referred to in the Index Rerum. Both the Mark and the Half-Mark were computations of money only.

Such also was the Ora, whatever it might have been in other parts of Europe. In the Domesday Survey, and (as Dr. Hickes assures us) in many articles of bargain and sale, it is used for the ounce, or twelfth part of the nummulary pound. (3)

The Shilling of the Domesday Survey, like the Pound, the Mark, and the Ora, was only Money of account. Tom. i. fol. 180. we have "c. sol. de alb denar." The Saxon Shilling consisted of five pence. (4) That of Domesday Book is always twelve-pence.

The Penny was the only coin known in England till long after the date of Domesday Book. In the Survey it is usually called Denarius; but in a few instances Nummi occur for Denarii. (5)

3 Clarke on the Connexion of the Roman, Saxon, and English Coins. 4°. Lond. 1771. p. 316. says, "The perpetual valuation of the Ora at twenty pence is, as Ducange has observed, an abundant proof that there were, or had been, several sorts of Oras then in use; and therefore, to prevent all ambiguity or dispute between the Crown and the subject, the sums payable to the Exchequer were fixed at a certain value in their current cash. The "Denarii S. Petri" are only once noticed. tom. i fol. 87 b. They are mentioned in the Laws of William the Conqueror. Wilk. p. 222.

The Wardepeni also occurs but once; under Lidlintone in Cambridgeshire. "Hoc ϖ tenuit com Algar. Hões huj ϖ reddeb Warpennã vicecomiti regis, aut custodiam faciebant." tom. i. fol. 190. It occurs in different Charters of the Conqueror. See Madox. Formul. Anglic. p. 176. Monast. Anglic. tom. i. p. 622. tom. ii. pp. 14 16. 17. 134. 827. The "Denarius tertius Comitis," or "de Scira," is thus commented on by Bishop Kennett. "In the fines and other profits arising from the County Courts, two parts were allotted to the King, and a third part or penny to the Earl of the County, who either received it in specie, at the Assizes and Trials, or had an equivalent composition paid from the Exchequer." Glossar. Par. Antiq. Madox, Baron. p. 137. says, the most ancient way of creating Earls was by Charter; the King thereby granted the Earl "tertius Denarius Comitatus," the third penny of the County, and then

§ 3. Money.

In one entry we read of the penny of Rouen. Of the manors of Otrei and Rovrige in Devonshire, belonging to St. Mary's Church at Rouen, it is said, " H'. II. Maner. reddt p annũ LXX. lib denar rodmensium." ([1]) The Exeter Domesday p. 178. reads " Rothomagensium." Libræ Rodomenses are more than once mentioned by Ordericus Vitalis, Hist. Norm. Script. antiq. fol. Par. 1619. pp. 468. 583.

The Obolus, or Halfpenny, and the Ferding, Ferdinc, Ferting, or Quadrans, were literally fractions, or broken parts of the penny. Parcels of Coins, from the Saxon times to the reign of Edward the Third, are rarely found without containing some of these. A remarkable instance occurred a few years ago at Winterslow in Wiltshire; where an earthen pot was discovered, containing a large assemblage of pennies from the Saxon times to the reign of Stephen, many of which were found neatly and accurately cut into halves and quarters. The cross, sometimes double, which appears on the reverse of so many of our early pennies, was intended to facilitate the breaking of the silver.

The Minuta occurs once only. ([2]) From the circumstance of its being mentioned in Cheshire, it is suspected to have been the small copper coin used by the Northumbrian Kings, called the Styca. ([3])

It is curious that the Etymology of the word Money (from Pecus cattle) should be its usual meaning in Domesday Book, so that the word Pecunia appears to occur but three times as denoting Money. Tom. i. fol. 40 b. " per pecuniam suam habuit a rege." fol. 196 b. Under Papeuuorde in Cambridgeshire, " Hanc trã Ricard⁹ sup regẽ occupauit 7 de ea XX. sol pecuniæ accepit." fol. 376 b. " Archieps Ældrid⁹ adqsiuit Lauintone 7 Schillintone cũ Berew Harduic. de Vlf tope sune p pecuniã suã quã ei dedit uidente Wapent. 7 postea uider sigillũ regis." &c. ([4]) In one instance it seems to imply property in general: tom. i. fol. 176. " Si quis morte præuentus non diuisisset quæ sua erant : rex habeb omem ej⁹ pecuniã." In all the rest it implies Cattle. " Pastura ad pecuniam uillæ" (for the cattle of the village) is a common entry in the accounts of Middlesex, Hertfordshire, Herefordshire, Cambridgeshire, Huntingdonshire, and Bedfordshire. ([5])

As an appendage to this section the Aurum Reginæ, or Queen Gold, must be introduced. The following are the principal passages of the Survey in which it is noticed. At Lestone, in Bedfordshire, under Terra Regis, we read, " Int totũ redd p annũ XXII. lib ad pensum. 7 dimid die ad firmã regis. in [3] The words " duo Minuta" in the Latin Gospels, Mark xii. 42. are translated in the Saxon version ꞇpeᵹen Sꞇýcaꞅ. Leake, in his Account of English Money, Introd. p. 14. speaking of the Saxons, says, " They had copper Stycas also, smaller than the Penny, having the King's name on one side, and coiner's on the other, eight of which made a penny, and served them for ordinary change. Of these, a vast quantity were found at Rippon in Yorkshire in the year 1695, before which we had much fewer of brass than silver." Compare also Hickes, Thesaur. Pars iii. Dissert. Epist. pp. 164, 165. tab. x. The Northumbrian Stycas are the only ones we are now acquainted with.

Prynne wrote "Aurum Reginæ; or a Compendious Tractate and Chronological Collection of Records in the Tower and Court of Exchequer, concerning Queen Gold:" dedicated to Katherine Queen-Confort of King Charles II. 4°. Lond. 1668. He defines it to be "a royal debt, duty, or revenue, belonging and accruing to every Queen-Confort, during her marriage to the King of England, due by every perfon of what quality or calling foever within the realms of England or Ireland, who hath made a voluntary oblation or fine to the King amounting to ten marks or upwards, for any privileges, franchifes, difpenfations, licenfes, pardons, grants, or other matters of royal grace or favour conferred on him by the King, arifing from and anfwerable to the quantity of fuch his oblation or fine; to wit, one full tenth part over and above the entire fine or oblation to the King; as one mark for every ten marks, and ten pounds for every hundred pound fine, and fo proportionably for every other fum exceeding ten marks; or one mark of gold to the Queen for every hundred marks fine in filver to the King, which fum becomes a real debt and duty to the Queen by the name of Aurum Reginæ, by and upon the parties bare agreement with the King for his fine, without any promife to or contract with the King or Queen for this tenth part exceeding it, which becomes a debt on record to the Queen by the very recording of the Fine." Lord Coke, in the twelfth part of his Reports or Inftitutes, having "over-much clipped this Gold Coine, and miftaken or mifapplied fome Records concerning it," Mr. Prynne wrote his Book upon the fubject. During the reigns of Edward the Sixth, Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth, a period of fixty years, there being no Queen-Confort, this duty was fufpended, but it was again claimed in the fourth year of King James the Firft by Queen Anne, and, upon a reference to the Judges, it was determined to be her undoubted right. It was alfo claimed by Henrietta Maria the Queen of King Charles the Firft. The oldeft account of Queen Gold is that in the Dialogus de Scaccario." (4)

Payments "de Gerfumma Reginæ," as a free-gift to the Queen, are mentioned in the entries relating to the cuftomary rents of the Counties of Oxford and Warwick, (5) as well as in what relates to Norwich in the fecond Volume of the Survey. (6) In the account of the rents from Northamptonfhire we have "de dono Reginæ 7 de feno x. lib. 7 v. oras." (7)

2. Moneyers, and the Liberty of Coinage.

FROM the Laws of Æthelftan, we learn that a mint was antiently one of the ufual privileges of a Burgh. In Canterbury, it is faid, there are feven Moneyers, four belonging to the King, two to the Bifhop, and one to the Abbat; in Rochefter three, two belonging to the King, and one to the Bifhop; in London eight; in Winchefter fix; in Lewes two; one at Haftings; one at Chichefter; two at [South] Hampton; two at Wareham; two at Exeter; two at Shaftfbury; and one in the other Burghs. (8)

In the Domefday Survey, payments de Moneta, (9) for the privilege of coining, are mentioned at Pevenfey, Lewes, Malmfbury, Bath, Taunton, Oxford, Gloucefter, Roelent, Nottingham, and Thetford:

and Monetarii occur at Lewes, Wallingford, Dorchefter in Dorfetfhire, Bridport, Wareham, Shaftfbury, Oxford, Worcefter, Hereford, Huntingdon, Leicefter, Shrewfbury, Chefter, Nottingham, York, Lincoln, Colchefter, Norwich, Tingoḥu, Sudbury, and Ipfwich. The workmen who were employed in coining did not enjoy the fame liberty with other artifts, of following their own fancies, and making fuch coins as they pleafed; but they received all their dyes from the Exchequer, and they wrought under the infpection of officers, who were called "Examinatores Monetæ," and "Cuftodes Cuneorum," Effayers and Keepers of the dyes, whofe bufinefs it was to take care that their coins were of the ftandard weight and finenefs. ([1])

At Hereford there were feven moneyers, one of whom belonged to the Bifhop. On a re-coinage, the royal moneyers paid twenty fhillings to the King, and the Bifhop had the fame fum from his moneyer. When the King went there, the moneyers were to make as many pennies of the King's filver as he pleafed. The feven moneyers had their own foc and fac. If any one of the King's moneyers died, the King had twenty fhillings for a relief: and if he died without having difpofed of his effects the King became poffeffed of his property. ([2]) At Shrewfbury, the King had three moneyers, who, after they had purchafed their dyes like the other moneyers of the country, on the fifteenth day, gave, each, twenty fhillings to the King; and this was done while the money was in coining. ([3]) At Chefter, there were, in the time of Edward the Confeffor, feven moneyers. At Norwich, the Bifhop was allowed a moneyer if he wifhed for one. ([4])

It is a fact worthy of remark that many places of mintage occur upon the coins both of Edward the Confeffor and the Conqueror, which are not noticed as fuch in the Domefday Survey. Exeter, Haftings, London, Rochefter, Southampton, Southwark, Stamford, and Winchefter, occur upon the coins of both Monarchs. Aylefbury, Bedwind, Chichefter, Hertford, Hornidune, and Maldon, are found on thofe of the Confeffor only. Bridgenorth, Bricfi, (fuppofed to be Briftol,) Canterbury, Dover, Hithe, Marlborough, Salifbury, Stafford, Wilton, and Witney, occur on thofe of the Conqueror.

THE greater Subdivifions of the Shires or Counties in the Domefday Survey appear to have been Tredings, or Ridings, Lefts, Rapes, Wapentakes, Hundreds, Half-Hundreds, and Half-Lefts.

The TREDING, or Riding, is only found in Yorkfhire and Lincolnfhire, and implies a third part ([5]).

§ 4. Territorial Jurisdictions and Franchises.

It had its court, inferior to that of the county, but superior to the jurisdiction of the wapentake (¹). These Ridings in Yorkshire still have distinct Lieutenancies and Commissions of the Peace; the three parts of Lincolnshire the latter only.

The LEST, Last, or Lathe, is stated in the laws of Edward the Confessor to have been the same with the Riding. It could not, however, have comprised the third part of the shire, as, in Kent, the only county in which it is named, no less than seven distinct Lasts occur. It derived its name from the Saxon ȝelaðian to assemble: and Spelman cites a passage in his Glossary (²), from the "Ordinatio Marisci Romeneiensis," pa. 73. where it has a similar signification. "Si aliquis super hoc convincatur per testimonium ballivi et juratorum in communi LASTO, amercietur in x. solidis." (³)

The RAPE of Suffex appears to have answered generally to the Lest or Lathe of Kent. Lye, in his edition of Junius's Etymologicon, calls it "Comitatus portio, cujusmodi sunt sex portiones in agro Suffex." (⁴)

We have no mention in the Domesday Survey of any Mote or Court attached to the Rape: nor is there any reference to its testimony, as in the case of the Hundred. Indeed the Rapes seem to have been intrusted to the jurisdiction of individuals: for in the account of Suffex, in the Survey, we read of Rapum Comitis de Moritonio, Rapum Willielmi de Braiose, Rapum Comitis de Ow, Rapum Willielmi de Warene, and Rapum Comitis Rogerii (⁵). The Rapes mentioned by their own names are those of Arundel, Hastings, Lewes, and Penevesel. (⁶) Chichester Rape does not appear. It was under Earl Roger's authority; but perhaps usurped from the Bishop. Hreppar means District in Iceland to this day: and it is not improbable that the Rapes of Suffex were military districts for the supply of the Castles which existed in each.

The WAPENTAKE occurs in the Northern Counties, and is synonymous with the Hundred in the Counties of Nottingham, York, and Lincoln to this day. The best explanation of the Wapentake is given in the laws of King Edward the Confessor: "De Hundredis et Wapentachiis. Ewerwickshire, Nicolshyre, Notinghamshyre, Leycestershire, Northamptonshire, usque ad Watlingstrete, et octo miliaria ultra Watlingstrete sub lege Anglorum sunt. Et quod Angli vocant Hundredum, supradicti comitatus vocant Wapentachium: et non sine causa: cum quis enim accipiebat præfecturam Wapentachii, die statuto in loco ubi consueverant congregari, omnes majores natu contra eum conveniebant, et descendente eo de equo suo omnes assurgebant ei. Ipse vero erecta lancea sua ab omnibus secundum morem fœdus accipiebat: Omnes enim quotquot venissent cum lanceis suis ipsius hastam tangebant, et ita se confirmabant per contactum armorum, pace palam concessa. The Court belonging to the Treding, or Trihing, was called the Tridingmot. In a Charter of King Henry the First to the Church of St. Peter York, it is said, "Nemo de terra Canonicorum S. Petri Wapentacmot, nec Tridingmot, nec Shiresmot sequebatur, sed calumpnians vel calumpniatus ante ostium Monasterii S. Petri rectitudinem et recipiebat et faciebat." ⁴ He adds: "Somnerus derivat à ɼap funis. Ego malim derivare ab Isl. repp vel ripp, quod, teste Verelio, districtum vel tractum terræ notat." Sir Thomas Smith, in his Work, "De Republica Anglorum" lib. ii. cap. 9. gives etymons of Lathe and Rape of too ludicrous a kind to be gravely quoted.

Quamobrem potest cognoſci quod hac de cauſa totus ille conventus dicitur Wapentac, eo quod per tactum armorum ſuorum ad invicem confœderati ſunt." (1)

Ranulphus Ceſtrenſis tells us (2), "quod quoties novus eſſet Hundredi Dominus ei in ſubjectionis ſignum arma redderent Vaſſalli:" an explanation which, in ſome meaſure, connects the Engliſh Wapentake with the Wapinſchaw, or Wapinſchawing, of the Scots (3).

That the Wapentake was one of the earlieſt terms uſed by the Saxons in this Country for a diſtrict of territory, ſeems more than probable. It may be traced among the more ancient tribes of the North. Profeſſor Ihre tells us that among the Goths Wapntak implied the manner in which decrees were paſſed by the people at large, by the claſhing of their arms. Tacitus, he adds, has deſcribed the uſage in his time. He further informs us that Wapntak alſo denoted the confirmation of a judicial edict by the touch of arms. The votes being collected, the Judge reached forth a ſpear, by touching which all his aſſeſſors confirmed the ſentence. (4)

The Gemote, or judicial aſſembly in the different Wapentakes, is expreſsly defined in the Laws of Æthelred. "Et ut habeantur Conventus in quolibet Wapentachio, et exeant Seniores XII Thani et Præfectus cum eis, et jurent ſuper Sanctuarium quod eis in manus datur, quod nolint ullum innocentem accuſare, nec aliquem noxium celare. (5) That the Wapentake was in every reſpect the ſame, and paid the third penny, like the Hundred, is evident from a paſſage in the very firſt page of the account of Nottinghamſhire, fol. 280. where it is ſaid, "Duo nūmi regis 7 tcius Comitis qui exeunt de Apletreu Wapent ſunt in manu uicecomitis teſtim duarū ſcirarū."

The diviſion of the HUNDRED has been variouſly accounted for by our antiquaries and hiſtorians. In the Dialogus de Scaccario, it is ſaid, "Hundredus vero ex Hydarum aliquot centenariis ſed non

Villages. (1) The origin of the Hundred is usually ascribed to King Alfred; though we find it among the oldest of the Saxon institutions on the Continent. (2) The Centenary, or Hundredor, an officer who was retained among the Franks, Lombards, and Wisigoths, as well as the Anglo-Saxons, is termed in the Survey Custos, Prefectus, or Prepositus de Hundret. (3)

Exclusive of what is said in the Survey relating to the legal privileges, services, and transgressions (4) in the different Towns and Burghs, we find the customs of some of the Shires occasionally entered separately; in many instances after the enumeration of the principal burgh-customs in each have been given. The customs agreed upon by an inquest of four of the Lests in Kent are enumerated (after what relates to Dover) in the very first page of the larger Volume. Those of Berkshire in the time of King Edward follow the account of Wallingford. fol. 56 b. Those of Wiltshire, fol. 64 b. The customs of Oxfordshire, in the time of William, are given at fol. 154 b. The customs and services of Worcestershire follow the account of Worcester, fol. 172 b. Northamptonshire follows Northampton, fol. 219. And the customs of Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire precede the list of Tenants in capite of the former county, in fol. 280. Beside which, the Customs of the Hundred of Oswaldeslow in Worcestershire are given separately in folios 172 b. and 174. The "Consuetudines Walensium in Arcenefeld," in the time of King Edward, in the account of Herefordshire, fol. 179. The Laws of the Wiches of Cheshire, fol. 268. And the Customs of the Lands between the Ribble and the Mersey, in folios 269 b. and 270. No account of the Services and Customs of the Shires of Essex, Norfolk, or Suffolk, occur in the Second Volume of the Domesday Survey.

Cities and Burghs, and their Customs.

The Services, Charges, and Customs of the Cities and Burghs noticed in the Survey, form a valuable illustration of the Saxon laws. A comparison of the two shows in how small a degree the Normans interfered with the ancient institutions of the people. (5)

London, Winchester, Abingdon, and a few others, were omitted, probably on account of Charters of immunity previously granted. (1) They probably compounded for all Dues and Consuetudines. The City of London does so now for all Middlesex. Of the following Cities and Burghs, the Customs are particularly noticed. In the first Volume, at Dover, fol. 1. Canterbury, fol. 2. At Dover, the Burgesses appear to have had a Guild-Hall. They supplied the King with twenty ships for fifteen days once in every year, each vessel having twenty-one persons on board, and this, because he had granted them sac and soc. When the King's Messenger arrived they paid three pence in winter, and two in summer for transporting his Horse. They also found a pilot and his assistant. Whosoever, constantly residing in the town, paid his customary rent to the King, was free of toll through England. It is expressly added that these customs were found here at the King's coming. The burning of the town at the Conqueror's first arrival in England prevented any computation of its value at the time it was given to the Bishop of Baieux. When the Survey was formed it was appreciated at forty pounds though it paid considerably more.

In Canterbury the larger portion of land held by the burgesses was in the tenure of Allodium: a species of free-hold which will be hereafter explained.

At Lewes, if the King sent a force to keep the sea, twenty shillings were collected of every burgess, which were paid to those who manned the vessels. Whoever sold a horse in the town paid a penny to the bailiff, and the purchaser paid another: for an ox, a halfpenny: for a man four-pence, wheresoever the purchase might have been made within the Rape. For blood-shed, seven shillings and four-pence were made the mulct: for adultery or rape, eight shillings and four-pence by each of the parties; and, as in Kent, for adultery, the man became the property of the King, and the woman of the archbishop.

The customary services of Taunton in Somersetshire, a burgh belonging to the Bishop of Winchester, were, "Burgheristh, Latrones, Pacis infractio, Hainfare, Denarii de Hundret, et Denarii S. Petri, Circieti, ter in Anno Placita Episcopi sine ammonitione, Profectio in exercitum cum hominibus Episcopi (2)."

At Oxford, in the time of King Edward, the burgesses in the room of toll, gable, and all other customary rents, paid the King twenty pounds and six sextaries of honey; and to Earl Algar ten pounds besides the mill which he had within the city. When the King went on an expedition twenty of the burgesses went

1 For the liberty of London, see Mat. Paris, and the London Charters. It is singular that Ciltecumbe, now Chilcomb, a mile and half from Winchester, which, according to the Abstract of Answers and Returns to the Population Act of 1811, contains but twenty Houses, should be entered in the Survey as having nine Churches. tom. i. fol. 41. The manor was "de victu Monachorum Wint." There is no accounting for the difference between the statement of the Domesday Survey and that of the Population Act concerning Chilcomb, without adverting to the probability that it must have formerly included a part of the suburbs of Winchester. The petition of the City of Winchester to King Henry the sixth in 1450, printed in the first volume of the Archaeologia, enumerates no fewer than seventeen Churches and nine hundred and ninety-seven "householdes" which had fallen down, chiefly, within the eighty years preceding.

with him for the reft, or they paid twenty pounds that all might be free. At the time of forming the Survey the city paid fixty pounds in tale, every ora of the value of twenty pence. Within and without the walls of the city two hundred and forty-three houfes paid geld; and, befide thefe, four hundred and feventy-eight houfes were fo defolated that they could not pay geld. The King held twenty mural manfions, which in the time of the Confeffor had been Earl Algar's, paying thirteen fhillings and ten pence. They were called mural manfions, becaufe, if need required and the King commanded, the tenants were bound to repair the city wall. A hundred and ninety-one manfions belonging to individuals, "liberæ propter reparationem muri" are alfo enumerated, of which eighty are ftated to have been "vaftæ ([1])."

In Hereford, in the time of Edward the Confeffor there are faid to have been a hundred and three tenants fettled within and without the wall of the city, whofe cuftoms are very fully enumerated. If any one wifhed to depart from the city, with leave of the bailiff he might fell his mafure, or houfe and plot of land adjoining, to any other perfon who engaged to perform the proper fervice, and then the bailiff had the third penny of the fale. But if any one from poverty could not perform fervice, he relinquifhed his houfe to the bailiff without reward, who took care that no houfe remained untenanted, and that the king did not lofe his rent. Every entire mafure within the wall of the city paid feven-pence halfpenny, and four-pence toward hiring horfes, and the tenants did the perfonal fervice of reaping at Maurdine three days in Auguft, and of gathering hay, one day, wherever the fheriff directed. Whoever had a horfe went three times in the year with the fheriff to the County and Hundred Courts at Vrmlauia. When the King went to hunt, one perfon went from each houfe to the ftand or ftation in the wood. Other tenants, not having entire mafures, found three men to guard the king when he came into the city. When a burgefs ferving [in the army] with his horfe died, the King had his horfe and arms; or, if he ferved without a horfe, ten fhillings, or his land and houfes. If any one had not devifed his property before his death, the King had the ftock belonging to his land. Every man whofe wife brewed, either within or without the city, paid ten pence. Six fmiths paid every one a penny for his forge, and made a hundred and twenty nails from the King's iron. Each received three pence by cuftom; and thefe fmiths were free from all other fervice. The moneyers, who will be more particularly noticed hereafter, were feven in number, and performed a fervice not altogether unfimilar: when the King came to the city, they were bound to coin as much of his filver into pence as he demanded, and had fac and foc. When a moneyer died, the King had twenty fhillings for a heriot; or, if he died without having difpofed of his effects the King had all. When the fheriff went with an army into Wales the tenants of the burgh went with him: or if any one who was called upon did not go, he paid forty fhillings to the King.

[1] The extraordinary number of houfes fpecified as defolated at Oxford requires explanation. If the paffage is correct, Matthew Paris probably gives us the caufe of it, under the year 1067, when William the Conqueror fubdued Oxford in his way to York. "Eodem tempore Rex Willielmus urbem Oxoniam fibi rebellem obfidione vallavit. Super cujus murum quidam, ftans nudato inguine, fonitu partis inferioris auras turbavit, in contemptum videlicet Normannorum, unde Willielmus in iram converfus, civitatem levi negotio fubjugavit." Mat. Par. ed. Watts. fub. ann. 1067. p. 4. See alfo William of Malmefbury, Script. poft Bedam, p. 58. whom Matthew Paris copies. It muft not however be concealed, that although the Manufcripts of Matthew Paris (MS. Reg. 14 C. vii. and MS. Cotton. Nero D. v.) read *Ox*oniam, three Manufcripts of William of Malmefbury (MS. Cotton. Claud. C. ix. and Harl. MSS. 447. 528.) read *Ex*oniam. The fiege of Exeter in 1067 is alfo mentioned by Simeon of Durham, col. 197; Hoveden, col. 258; Ralph de Diceto, col. 482; Florence of Worcefter, fol. Francof. 1601. p. 635. and Ordericus Vitalis, p. 510. In the account of Lincoln, Domefd. tom. i. fol. 336 b. there is a remark, which deferves attention, on the "Manfiones waftæ," enumerated in that city. "Reliquæ LXXIIII. waftatæ funt extra metam Caftelli, non propter oppreffionem vicomitum et miniftrorum, fed propter infortunium, et paupertatem, et ignium exuftionem."

§ 4. Territorial Jurisdictions and Franchises.

The King had three forfeitures in his demefne; the breach of his Peace, Heinfara, and Foreftel. Whoever was guilty of either, was mulcted a hundred fhillings to the King, notwithftanding his being under the protection of any tenant in capite. At the time of making the Survey, Hereford was the King's demefne. The Englifh burgeffes continued with their former cuftomary fervices. The foreigners who were burgeffes paid twelve pence for all forfeitures befide the three above mentioned. (1) This city paid fixty pounds by tale to the King "de candidis denariis."

At Cambridge, the cuftomary payments amounted to feven pounds; and, for Landgable, feven pounds and two oræ and two pence. The burgeffes in King Edward's time lent their ploughs to the fheriff three times in the year: though at the time of forming the Survey nine turns were exacted. In the time of King Edward they found neither ploughs nor carts, but both appear to have been required by the fheriff at the formation of the Survey. Picot the fheriff had as a heriot of the Lagemen in the town, eight pounds, a palfrey, and the arms of a knight. When Aluric Godricfon was fheriff, it is faid, he took twenty fhillings for a heriot.

The city of Leicefter in King Edward's time paid yearly to the King thirty pounds by tale, every ora of the value of twenty pence, and fifteen fextaries of honey. When the King marched with his army through the land, twelve burgeffes of that borough went with him. If the King went over fea againft the enemy, they fent from that borough four horfes as far as London, to carry arms or fuch other things as circumftances required. At the time of forming the Survey, King William had, for all Rents from that city and county, forty-two pounds and ten fhillings in weight. Inftead of one hawk, he had ten pounds by tale; and inftead of a baggage or fumpter horfe twenty fhillings.

At Warwick the King had a hundred and thirteen houfes, and his barons a hundred and twelve, of which the King had the geld or tax. The refidue of the mafures in the city, nineteen in number, belonged to as many burgeffes, who enjoyed them with fac and foc, and all cuftoms, as they had done in the time of King Edward. In the time of the Confeffor the fhrievalty of Warwick, with the burgh and royal manors, paid fixty-five pounds and thirty-fix fextaries of honey, or twenty-four pounds and eight fhillings in lieu of the honey. But, at the time of the Survey, in the firm of the royal manors, they paid yearly one hundred and forty-five pounds in weight, twenty-three pounds for the cuftom of dogs, twenty fhillings for a fumpter horfe, ten pounds for a hawk, and a hundred fhillings to the Queen as a fine or gift. Befide this, they paid twenty-four fextaries of honey, of the greater meafure, and the Burgh fix fextaries, viz. fifteen pence a fextary, and five fhillings. The cuftom of Warwick was, that whenever the King went in perfon in any expedition by land, ten of the burgeffes went for all the reft. Whoever was fummoned to give his attendance and did not go, paid a hundred fhillings to the King. If the King went againft his enemies by fea, the burgeffes provided four batfueins, (2) or paid four pounds in money.

At Stafford, in the time of King Edward, the town paid nine pounds in money for all cuftomary payments. Two portions were the King's; the third belonged to the Earl. At the time of the Survey, the King received feven pounds as rent from the burgh between himfelf and the Earl: a moiety of the King's own part was paid to Robert de Stadford by grant.

1 Thefe foreigners muft have taken up their refidence in Hereford after the arrival of the Conqueror: they would otherwife have continued with the fame cuftomary fervices as the Englifh burgeffes. Among the Conqueror's Laws there is one which explains this point. "54. De jure Normannorum qui ante adventum GUILIELMI cives fuerant Anglicani. Et omnis Francigena qui tempore Edwardi propinqui noftri fuit in Anglia particeps confuetudinum Anglorum, quod ipfi dicunt an hloꞇe & an ꞅcoꞇe, perfolvat fecundum legem Anglorum." Shrewſbury had two hundred and fifty-two houſes belonging to the ſame number of burgeſſes, paying ſeven pounds ſixteen ſhillings and eight-pence by way of rent. The Cuſtoms as they ſtood in the reign of Edward the Confeſſor are very minutely enumerated. If any one knowingly broke the peace which the King had given under his hand, he was outlawed. If any one broke the peace which the Sheriff preſerved, he was fined a hundred ſhillings: and he gave the ſame for Foreſtel or Heinfare. Theſe three forfeitures, it is added, the King had throughout England, excluſive of rents. When the King reſted in the city, twelve of the principal inhabitants formed his guard; and, in like manner, when he took the exerciſe of hunting, the principal burgeſſes who had horſes attended him armed. The Sheriff ſent thirty-ſix men on foot to the deer-ſtand while the King remained there. He alſo found, by cuſtom, thirty-ſix men for eight days at the park of Marſetelie. When the Sheriff went into Wales, whoever was called upon to attend him and did not go, paid forty ſhillings as a forfeiture. A widow receiving a huſband, paid twenty ſhillings to the King; a maid paid ten ſhillings. If any burgeſs's houſe was burnt, either by negligence or accident, he paid a forfeiture of forty ſhillings to the King, and two ſhillings each to his two neareſt neighbours. When a burgeſs in the King's demeſne died, the King had ten ſhillings for a heriot. If any Burgeſs broke the time aſſigned him by the Sheriff, he paid ten ſhillings. Whoever was guilty of blood-ſhed, paid forty ſhillings. When the King (at any time) left the city, the Sheriff furniſhed him with twenty-four horſes, and the King took them as far as the firſt houſe in Staffordſhire. The Engliſh burgeſſes of Shrewſbury complained that, at the time of forming the Survey, they paid the whole geld, or civil tax for the ſupport of the ſtate, as it was paid in the time of King Edward, although the caſtle of Earl Roger had occupied the ſite of fifty-one maſures, and fifty others were laying waſte. In the time of King Edward too, forty burgeſſes, who were francigenæ, held taxable manſions; and Earl Roger had given to the abbey at its foundation thirty-nine burgeſſes, who formerly had paid tax with the reſt.

The laws of Cheſter as they ſtood in the time of the Confeſſor are enumerated at greater length than thoſe in almoſt any other city; and they are as full upon the rights allowed to the Earl as on thoſe of the Crown. The forfeitures upon breaking the King's peace are firſt enumerated. If any free-man committed burglary, and murdered a man, all that belonged to him became a forfeiture to the King, and he was himſelf declared an outlaw. The Earl had the ſame forfeiture of any of his own homagers. No outlaw, however, could be reſtored to the King's peace but by the King. Whoever was guilty of blood-ſhed between Monday morning and the ninth hour on Saturday, was to forfeit ten ſhillings; or, from the ninth hour on Saturday to Monday morning twenty ſhillings. The ſame puniſhment of twenty ſhillings fine was inflicted for the twelve days of the Nativity, the day of the Purification of the Virgin, the firſt days of Eaſter and Whitſuntide, Aſcenſion Day, the Aſſumption or Nativity of the Virgin, and the feaſt of All Saints. On theſe holidays, whoſoever ſlew a man forfeited four pounds; though, on other days, only forty ſhillings. Whoever committed Heinfare or Foreſtel on theſe days or on Sunday, alſo forfeited four pounds; but on ordinary days, forty ſhillings. For Hangewithe the forfeiture was ten ſhillings, or if the King's or the Earl's bailiff was the perſon, the forfeiture became twenty ſhillings. Whoever was guilty of Revelach, Latrocinium, or violence toward a Woman, was to forfeit forty ſhillings. A widow, "ſi alicui ſe non legitime commiſcebat," forfeited twenty ſhillings. Whoſoever ſeized upon, or laid claim to, the land of another within the city, and could not prove his right to it, forfeited forty ſhillings. Whoever wiſhed to have relief either for his own or a relation's land, paid ten ſhillings; and the ſame ſum was to be forfeited by him who neglected to pay his gable or rent at the regulated time. If a fire happened in the City, the perſon at whoſe houſe it broke out forfeited three Oræ of twenty pence in the Ora, and to his neareſt neighbour two ſhillings. Of all theſe forfeitures two parts were the King's. The third belonged to the Earl. If any veffels came to or departed from the haven of the City without the King's licence, the King and the Earl had forty fhillings from each perfon on board. If, contrary to the King's peace, and againft his prohibition, a fhip arrived, both it, the perfons on board, and the cargo, were forfeited to the King and the Earl. If, however, a veffel came with the King's licence, thofe who were in it were allowed to trade, but, at its departure, the King and the Earl had four-pence duty upon every Laft of the cargo. If the cargo was of Martern skins the King's bailiff was to order, under the penalty of forty fhillings, that none fhould be fold till he had examined them. Any man or woman giving falfe meafure, or brewing adulterated beer, forfeited four fhillings, or was placed in the dung chair ([1]) and paid four fhillings to the bailiffs. This forfeiture was received by the officers of the King and the Earl in the City, of every perfon, whether under the protection of the Bifhop or of any one elfe. At this time there were twelve Magiftrates of the city felected from the homagers of the King, the Bifhop, and the Earl. For the repairs of the city-wall and the bridge, one labourer was demanded by the bailiff for every hide in the county. Whoever neglected to fend his homager on this occafion forfeited forty fhillings to the King and the Earl. This forfeiture was exclufive of rent. The city paid forty-five pounds as rent and three timbers of Martern fkins. At the time of making the Survey the bifhop of Chefter had alfo his cuftoms in the City. If any free-man worked on a holiday the Bifhop received eight fhillings as a fine; and from a fervus or a maid fervant, four fhillings. If a trader came into the city with his pack, and opened it, between the ninth hour on Saturday and Monday, or on any feftival, without licence from the bifhop's officer, he forfeited four fhillings. If one of the bifhop's homagers found a ftranger carting goods ([2]) within the leuua of the city, the bifhop had a forfeiture of four fhillings, or two Oxen.

At Nottingham, the Trent and the way to York were in the cuftody of the Town. If any one prevented the paffage of veffels in the river, or ploughed, or dug a ditch within two perches of the King's high way, he forfeited eight pounds.

In Derby there were, at the formation of the Survey, a hundred burgeffes, and forty others who are called minores. At Martinmas the burgeffes paid the King twelve thraves of corn, of which the abbot of Bertone had forty fheaves. The King had eight mafures in the town with fac and foc.

In York the burgeffes were exempt from payments for relief.

In Lincoln and Stamford Lagemen occur, as diftinct from burgeffes. Thefe were an order of men recognifed in the laws of King Edward the Confeffor. ([3]) In both towns the number of twelve only is mentioned; fo that they probably anfwered to the XII. Judices Civitatis of Chefter, and the XII. Lahmen mentioned in the "Senatus Confultum de Monticolis Walliæ." They have been already noticed in Cambridge. Their privileges in Stamford are minutely fet down. They were reduced to nine in number in that town at the formation of the Survey.

At Torkfey, whoever poffeffed a manfion in the vill was free of toll at entering or departing from it. When the King's Meffengers came there, the watermen of the place conducted them as far as York, the Sheriff fupplying the provifions for both "ex firma fua." If any burgefs removed from the town he could fell his houfe without licence from the bailiff.

At Colchefter there were, in common, among the burgeffes, fourfcore acres of land, and round the wall of the town eight perches; of all which the burgeffes, at the time of forming the Survey, had fixty fhillings a year for the King's fervice, if neceffary; but if not, they divided it in common. And the cuftom was, every year, on the fifteenth day after Eafter, for the King's burgeffes to pay two marks of filver. This belonged to the King's ferm. Likewife fixpence a year was paid out of every houfe which might be applied either for the maintenance of the King's foldiers, or for an expedition by fea or land. This payment, it is faid, did not belong to the King's ferm.

Norwich, in the time of Edward, paid twenty pounds to the King, and ten pounds to the Earl; and, befide thefe payments, twenty-one fhillings and four-pence for meafures of provender, fix fextaries of honey, a bear, and fix bear-dogs. At the time of forming the Survey, it paid to the King feventy pounds by weight, and a hundred fhillings by tale as a free gift to the Queen, a palfrey, and twenty pounds of filver uncoined to the Earl, and twenty fhillings by tale as a free gift to Godric. The manumiffion of Slaves, Turner obferves, increafed the numbers of the independant part of the lower orders: and, while fome of the emancipated became agricultural labourers, and took land of the clergy and the great, many went to the burghs and towns, and as the King was the lord of the free, they refided in thefe under his protection, and became free burghers or burgeffes. ([1])

From the entries relating to the different Cities and Burghs it appears that fome of their inhabitants were under other lords befide the King. In Romenel eighty-five burgeffes belonged to the Archbifhop. ([2]) In Bath, befide the burgeffes belonging to the King, ninety are enumerated belonging to other perfons, who paid fixty fhillings. ([3]) At Buckingham, we have a particular enumeration, not only of the fuperior Lords of the burgeffes in that town at the time of forming the Survey, but the names of the perfons to whom they had belonged in the time of King Edward. ([4]) Hamo Dapifer had fifteen burgeffes in Colchefter who had belonged in Edward's time to Thurbernus. ([5]) Many burgeffes were attached to particular manors, and fome even in the moft privileged cities. ([6]) In Norwich the burgeffes had no peculiar corporate rights. The majority paid their cuftom and rents to the King and the Earl. Stigand the archbifhop had the rent of fifty, and Harold of twenty-two. ([7]) Among the lands held in capite in Bedfordfhire, we have "Terra Burgfiū de Bedef." The burgeffes however did not hold in a corporate capacity, but individually.

The annual affeffments of the towns appear to have varied as much from each other in the time of Edward as in that of William, and probably differed according to the circumftances of the different places. London, York, Winchefter, and Exeter have been already mentioned as places enjoying fuperior privileges. In fome burghs, Turner obferves, the members had been fo wealthy as to have acquired themfelves a property in the burgh. At Canterbury, the burgeffes had forty-five mafures without the City, of which they took the gafol and the cuftom, while the King retained the legal jurifdiction. They alfo held of the King thirty-three acres of land in their gild. ([8]) The ftate of fubjection to gafols,

(1) In many of the Cities and Burghs the Conqueror appears to have raised the tolls and customs.

In Norwich meinburgenses are mentioned, answering probably to the burgenses minuti of Tateshalle. (2) Burgenses minores occur in Derby also. A hundred poor burgesses in Ipswich paid nothing but a penny a head toward the King's tax, or geltum regis. (3) It has been already noticed, that in Hereford the English burgesses enjoyed their ancient customs, while the alien burgesses, who were probably new settlers, were placed under a different arrangement. (4)

Castles.

Another point on which the Domesday Survey throws considerable light, is the history of our ancient Castles. Castles, walled with stone, and designed for residence as well as for defence, are said by Grose to be, for the most part, of no higher antiquity than the Conquest. The Conqueror himself was sensible that the want of fortified places had greatly facilitated his success. To remedy this defect, and to overawe his subjects, he erected numerous Castles. Matthew Paris says, "Ad Castra quoque construenda, Rex antecessores suos omnes superabat." (5) His reign was in fact a new era in the history of our castellated Structures.

In Kent, we have an incidental mention of the Castle at Canterbury, (6) and under Elesford an entry relating to the site of Rochester Castle. (7)

In Sussex, the Castelry of Hastings is stated to have been given by King William to the Earl of Ow. (8) Under Borne, "custodes Castelli" occur; (9) and again under Ferle. (10) Arundel Castle is noticed as existing in the reign of Edward the Confessor. (11) Brembre Castle is stated to have stood upon part federations of the Anglo-Saxons, are more frequently mentioned in the contemporary judicial codes than in the Domesday Survey. "They seem, on the whole," says Turner (p. 139.) "to have been friendly associations made for mutual aid and contribution, to meet the pecuniary exigencies which were perpetually arising from burials, legal exactions, penal mulcts, and other payments or compensations." In Canterbury the Clergy had their gild as well as the Burgesses. "In Civitate Cantvaria habet Archieps. XII. burgenses. 7 XXXII. mansuras quas tenent Clerici de villa in gildā suā."

([1]) Otringheia in Norfolk is mentioned in the second volume of the Survey as "de Castellatione de Lawes;" ([2]) "Castellum de Lauues" also occurs subsequently, ([3]) among the possessions of William de Warren, no doubt meaning the Castle of Lewes in Sussex. "Castellum de La quis," also intended for Lewes, occurs, fol. 164 b. 165. ([4])

In Hampshire, in the Isle of Wight, a Castle is noticed at Alwinestune, the lewa of which was also released. ([5]) This is now Carisbrook, the land on which the Castle stands being part of the manor of Avington. ([6])

In Berkshire, eight hagæ were destroyed at Walingford for the Castle works. ([7]) Under Clivore, now Clewer, the Castle of Windsor is mentioned. ([8])

In Somersetshire, the Earl of Moretaine had his Castle called Montagud at Biscopestone: ([10]) and among the possessions of William de Moion we find a Castle at Torre. ([11])

In Cornwall, the Earl of Moretaine had one Castle at Dunhevet, ([14]) and another at Tremetone with a Market. ([15])

In Gloucestershire, at Gloucester, sixteen houses had been taken down to make a site for the Castle. ([16]) In this county the Castle of Estrighoiel in Monmouthshire is entered. In Shropshire we have this notice of the Castle at Shrewsbury: "Dicunt anglig burg̃ses de Sciropesberie. multu graue sibi ee qd ipsi reddt tot geld sicuti reddebat T. R. E. quãuis castellũ comit occupauerit. LI. masur 7 aliæ. L. masuræ sint vastæ," &c. ([3]) Earl Roger, who was afterwards advanced to the Earldoms of Arundel, Chichester, and Shrewsbury, ([4]) is said to have held Meresberie and Rainaldus under him. It is added "Rex E. tenuit. Ibi VII. hidæ geld. 7 Ibi fecit Rainald castellum Lvvre." ([5]) One Helgot is said to have held of Earl Roger Stantvne: "Ibi hr̃ Helgot castellũ." ([6]) The Castle of Montgomery in this county is expressly said to have been built by Earl Roger: "Ipse com̃ construx̃ castrũ Mvntgvmeri vocatũ ad qd adjacent. LII. hidæ 7 dimid. quas tenuer̃ Seuuar Oslac Azor de rege E. qetas ab om̃i geldo. ad venandũ eas habuer̃." ([7])

In Cheshire, the Castle of Roelent is several times mentioned: "In ipso Ꝏ Roelend ẽ factũ nouit castellũ. similit Roelent appellat̃." ([8]) Among the lands between the Ribble and the Mersey, at Peneverdant, it is said, "Modo ẽ ibi castellũ." ([9])

In Derbyshire, "Terrã castelli in Pechefers Wiłłi Peurel tenuer̃ Gernebern 7 Hundine." ([10])

In Yorkshire, two castles appear to have been built by the Conqueror at York, at an early period of his reign. They are alluded to in the following extracts: "In Eboraco civitate tempore Regis Edwardi præter Scyrã archiep̃i fuer̃ VI. scyræ. Vna ex his. ẽ vasta in castellis. In q̇nq; scyris fuer̃ mille & quadringentæ & XVIII^to mansiones hospitatæ. De una harũ scyrarũ habet archiep̃s adhuc t'ciã partẽ. ([11]) The building of these is also noticed by our historians. ([12]) An entry among the "Clamores de Evrvicscire in Æstreding" says, "Hões autẽ de comitatu tã de illa quã de tota terra ej⁹ Willelmũ malet saisitũ uider̃. donec inuasũ est castellum." ([13]) One of the Castles of York is undoubtedly here alluded to. In another entry we have, "VI. carucatas ibidem habuit Wiłłs Malet quãdiu tenuit castellũ de Euruic. ([14]) Under the head of "Terra Rogerii Pictaviensis," we read "Ꝏ. in Bernulfesuuic Gamel. Ilbti." (1) Ilbert de Laci was, no doubt, the perfon alluded to. The Caftelry of Earl Alan, mentioned in the Summary of the North Riding of Yorkfhire, contained a hundred and ninety-nine manors, of which a hundred and eight were wafte. (2) This undoubtedly alludes to the Caftle of Richmond. (3)

In Lincolnfhire, at Lincoln, a hundred and fixty-fix manfions were deftroyed "ppter Caftellum:" (4) and, at Stanford, five were laid wafte "ppter opus Caftri." (5) In the fecond volume of the Survey, in Effex, at "Rageneia," we are told "fecit Suein fuũ Caftellũ." (6) This was Raleigh, in the hundred of Rochford, the chief of fifty-nine Manors held by the fame perfon, who was fettled here before the Conqueft. (7)

In Norfolk, we find the only Caftle noticed, in the county, is that of Norwich. (8)

In Suffolk, we are told, "W. Malet fecit fuũ caftellũ ad eiam 7 eadẽ die q̊ erat mercatũ iñ manerio epĩ. W. Malet fecit aliũ mercatũ in fuo caftello." (9)

Of forty-nine Caftles here mentioned, one only, Arundel, is noticed as exifting in the time of Edward the Confeffor. Eight are known, either on the authority of Domefday or our old hiftorians, to have been built by the Conqueror himfelf. Ten are entered as erected by greater Barons; and one, by an under-tenant to Earl Roger. Eleven more, of whofe builders we have no particular account, are noticed in the Survey, either exprefsly or by inference, as new.

It is fingular that the ruins which are now remaining of almoft all thefe Caftles have preferved one feature of uniformity. They are each diftinguifhed by a Mount and Keep: marking the peculiar ftyle of architecture introduced in our caftellated fortifications by the Normans at their firft fettlement.

The Caftles of Dover, Nottingham, and Durham, known to have been built by the Conqueror, with the White Tower in the Tower of London, are unnoticed in the Survey. (10)

The walled Towns and Cities noticed in the Survey are fewer than the Caftles. Canterbury, Nottingham, and York, appear each to have been furrounded with a fofs. Oxford, Hereford, Leicefter, Stafford, Chefter, Lincoln, and Colchefter, are noticed as walled Towns and Burghs.

Manerium.

Manors, although in fubftance, perhaps, as antient as the Saxon conftitution, (1) are confidered by our beft writers on Englifh Antiquities as of Norman introduction. (2) Dugdale fays, the reign of Edward the Confeffor is the firft in which they are mentioned; (3) a circumftance which is eafily accounted for by the fondnefs of Edward for Norman inftitutions. "Tenuit de rege E. p ꝑ" occurs frequently in the early part of the Survey. The name is either from the French Manoir, or from the Latin manendo, as the ufual refidence of the owner on his land. (4)

The ancient demefne of the Crown, as recorded in the Survey, confifted of 1,422 manors in different Counties, befides fome fcattered lands and farms not comprehended therein, and quit rents paid out of feveral other Manors. (5)

According to Brady's calculation, the Earl of Moretaine, the Conqueror's half brother, held no fewer than feven hundred and ninety-three Manors. (6) Alan Earl of Bretagne, who commanded the rear of the army in the battle of Haftings, poffeffed four hundred and forty-two Manors. (7) Odo Bifhop of Baieux held four hundred and thirty-nine. (8) The Bifhop of Coutance, who was alfo a foldier, two hundred and eighty Manors. (9) Roger de Bufli had a hundred and feventy-four Manors in Nottinghamfhire. (10) Ilbert de Laci had a hundred and fixty-four Manors, moft of them in Yorkfhire. (11) William Peverel, the Conqueror's natural fon, had a hundred and fixty-two Manors. (12) Robert de Stadford a hundred and fifty. (13) Roger de Laci a hundred and fixteen Manors. (14) Hugh de Montfort more than a hundred. (15) William de Warren had territorial allotments in Suffex, Hampfhire, Buckinghamfhire, Oxfordfhire, Cambridgefhire, Huntingdonfhire, Bedfordfhire, Yorkfhire, Lincolnfhire, Effex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

was voluntary, [1] and evidently given with a view to the poffeffions which were afterwards obtained. This accounts for the circumftance in Domefday, that the King's lands are almoft uniformly thofe which Edward, Harold, [2] Earl Godwin, Ghida the mother of Harold, [3] Goda the fifter of King Edward, Guert, Tofti, Stigand, Algar Earl of Mercia, [4] Earl Edwin, Earl Morcar, [5] Edric, or Editha the Confeffor's Queen [6] had held: while the lands of the Saxon nobles appear to have been doled out to the officers of the Conqueror's army, apparently either in proportion to their rank in Normandy, or according to the fupplies they furnifhed in the expedition. [7] "Thofe," fays Lord Chief Baron Gilbert, "who held their territories immediately from the Crown, were faid to hold in capite; but thofe who held in capite had other chiefs, or lords, or barons, fubordinate to them; they alfo granted to hold of themfelves. Thefe intermediate perfons were denominated the mefne lords, of whom fo much is fpoken in our laws. Even thefe divided their lands among their followers; and every Lordfhip or Manor was itfelf the fimilitude of the Kingdom at large. The lord divided his Manor, as the ftate had divided the kingdom, into two parts: the one he retained for his own fupport, and was partly cultivated by his villeins and copyholders, and was called his demefnes; [8] the other part was parcelled out among his dependants, who returned him their fervices." 1 William of Malmefbury, ap. Savile, fol. Bodl. num. 166.] written upon vellum, apparently about the thirteenth Century, one article in which is "De Navibus per Magnates Normanniæ provifis pro paffagio Ducis Willielmi in Angliam." It is printed at length in Taylor on Gavelkind, as well as in the Appendix to the firft Book of Lord Lyttelton's Hiftory of Henry the Second. Num. 1. Its authenticity, however, is doubtful.

Inland appears to be occafionally ufed in the Survey for the more antient part of the demefne, fuch as it exifted in the Saxon times. Bocheland, or Bocland, occurs but once in the Domefday Survey in its proper acceptation, tom. i. fol. 11 b. "Rannulf⁹ de ualbadon ten dimid jugū in HAMESTEDE. qd tenuer̃. II. libi hões. de rege E. in Bochelande." As the name of a place it frequently occurs.

Reveland occurs but three times: tom. i. fol. 69. fol. 179 b. and fol. 181. In the laft entry we read, "H' tra fuit tainland T. R. E. fed poftea c̃uerfa ẽ. in Reueland. 7 idõ dñt legati regis. qd ipfa tra 7 cenfus qui inde exit furtim aufert regi." Lepeꝛ-land is interpreted by Lye, Diction. Saxon. "tributarium Territorium." In the fecond volume, in which many of the Tenants are again repeated, there are a hundred and fixty-two titles entered.

Aula, Halla, or Haula, a hall or chief manfion houfe was the ufual appendage of a Manor. At Apedroe in Suffex, in the account of the Earl of Moretaine's lands, it is faid, "Ibi ẽ una v ubi com hř aulã fuã." (1) At Weftone in Nottinghamfhire "hbr Elmer. Eluui. Osbn. Grim. Edric. Stenulf. quifq, aulã fuã. 7 un⁹qsq, I. bõ tre." (2) Under Fentone in the fame county, "Tra I. car. cũ faca 7 foca fine aula." (3) In Lincolnfhire it is faid, "In Burtone hb Godric II. car tre ad gld. Tra II. car. foca in Scantune. f; tam̃ fuit ibi aula." (4) In Berkfhire, under Ebrige, of Hugolinus Stirman it is faid, "Tranfportavit Hallã 7 alios domos 7 pecuniã in alio ɱ." (6) In one inftance "Halla" is ufed for a Manor. "Iftos hões pofuit Ingelric⁹ ad fuã hallã." (7) In Northamptonfhire, we have another term for the Hall: under Pihteflea, we read, (8) "Hoc ɱ. fuit de firma monachorum [Ecclefiæ Lincolienfis] 7 ibi fuit dñicũ ædificiũ." "Caput Manerii" alfo occurs feveral times in both volumes in the fame fenfe. (9)

Curia, which occafionally feems to have implied the Court or Manor houfe only of the lord, (10) in one or two entries appears to have a more immediate reference to manorial jurifdiction. Tom. i. fol. 35 b. "Robt⁹ ten de Ricardo Scaldefor. Duo frs tenuer̃ T. R. E. Vn⁹quifq, habuit domũ fuã. 7 tam̃ manfer̃ in una Curia. 7 quo uoluer̃ ire potuer̃." Under Actune in Chefhire, it is faid, "Hoc ɱ hř fuũ placitũ in aula dñi fui." (11)

Of the increafe and decreafe of Manors, and of the removal of lands from one Manor to another, the inftances throughout the Survey are numerous. In the account of Surrey, in what relates to the property of the abbey of Weftminfter, we read, "Abb de Certefi ten unã hid. quã p̃fect⁹ uillæ huj⁹ [Patricefy] ppt inimicitiã qdã ab ifto ɱ abftulit 7 mifit in Certefi." A curious inftance of the formation of a new Manor occurs in the account of Gloucefterfhire. "In Lindenee fecit com̃. W. uñ ɱ de IIII. tris quas ab earũ dñis accepit. De dñio epi Hereford. III. hid. In Bura, in the county of Essex, we read, "Huic manerio addite sť xl. ac. t. regis Willi:" (1) and a similar entry occurs in the same county under Lallinga. (2) In another passage in the description of Essex, we read, "ccIIII. ac træ. 7 fnt additi huic Manerio postquã rex aduen. suo precepto." (3) In Norfolk we read, "Est gamera ten& Eluolt. I. lib homo. t. r. e. et fuit libata frederico p terra ad pficiendũ mañ." (4) So again, under Gunatorp, "Hæc terra fuit libata ad pficiendũ I. manerium. bernai." (5) In Suffolk, under Branteſtuna, it is said, "Addite sť huic manerio. LXXX. ac. terræ p man. t. r. e." (6) Under Wimundwelle, in Leicesterſhire, we read, "Hanc trã tenuer. II. frs p II. ϖ 7 postea emit alter ab altero partẽ suam. 7 fecit unũ ϖ de duob3. T. R. E." (7)

Sometimes instances occur of the removal of the "liberi homines," or "sochemanni," from one Manor to another. At Folsham in Norfolk, the record says, "Huic Manerio adjuncti fnt. II. libi hoes p radulfu talibosc. t. r. W." (8) Under Stiuecai, "Huic man additi sť. IIII. soceñ." (9) Again, under Taterforda, "De hoc Manerio sť ablati IIII. soc. XL. acr. 7 tenet W. de War." (10) In Suffolk, "LXXX. libi 7 III. fnt additi de hoc hundret [Wanneforda] ad maneriu de Montfort tẽpe regis W. de quib3 fnt supdicti. XII. qui ñ reddidert ullã consuetudinẽ:" (11) and, under Bura, it is said, "In ead. II. libi hoẽs heroldi ét poterant uende. et hñt LX. ac. et I. car et ual V. sol. et fuer libati ad pficiendũ mañ." (12) A certain number of freemen or socmen were necessary to every lord of a manor for holding the pleas of the Manor Court, or Soke.

Many of the Earl of Moretaine's Manors in Somersetſhire appear to have made payments to the paramount Manor of Cori, belonging to the King. (13) So, in the same county fol. 97. among the lands of Ralph de Limesi. Under Alresford, it is said, "Hoc ϖ redd p csuetudinẽ XII. oues p añn in Carentone ϖ regis. Radulf⁹ hanc csuetudinẽ usq, m detinuit." (14) At Leofminstre in Herefordſhire, we read, "Ad hoc ϖ ptineb. II. ϖ. Stanford 7 Merchelai T. R. E. qui reddt m regi XXX. lib. ut supius dictũ est." A large enumeration of lands follows, which in the time of Edward belonged to Leofminſtre. (15)

Among the Terræ Regis in Devonſhire, under Alſeminſtre, we read, "Huic ϖ debent XV. denar de Cherletone ϖ epi. cstantiens. 7 De Honetone ϖ comitis Morit. XXX. den. 7 de Smaurige ϖ Radulphi de Pomerei. XXX. den 7 de Maneberie ϖ. Willi cheure. XXX. den. 7 de Rouerige ϖ S. Marie Rotomag. XXX. denar. Hos denar jã p plures annos rex ñ habuit." (16) The parent Manor had belonged to King Edward. To the King's Manor of Mollande in Devonſhire, it is said, "Ipsi manerio ptin tcius denarius de Hund Nortmoltone. 7 Badentone 7 Brantone. 7 tciũ animal pasturæ morar." So, again, "Manerio Mortone ptin tci⁹ denari⁹ de Tanebrige Hund." (17)

That Manors were sometimes shifted from one Hundred to another, we have an instance in Gloucesterſhire, under Wenric, belonging to the abbey of Winchcombe. "Hoc ϖ quẽ ten Elsi de abbe. injuste jacuit in Salemonesberie hd. postq, Bolle mortuus fuit. Modo jacet in Bernitone hd. judicio hõum ej⁹dẽ hund." (18) In Northamptonſhire, the Manor of Tingdene, consisting of twenty-seven hides, was situated

In Yorkfhire, the Manors are frequently meafured more minutely than in other Counties: the length and breadth being ufually fet down.

Maneriolum occurs once in the Survey, in Lincolnfhire: "Remigius eps ht. I. maneriolū cū. I. car. contiguū in ciuitate Lincolia. cū faca 7 foca 7 cū Thol 7 Theim."

Villa,

In the Domefday Survey, was another term for a Manor or Lordfhip; "two, or more of which," fays Nichols, "were ufually united to form a Villata, though in fome few cafes a Villa was fufficiently large to ftand fingle, when it was faid to anfwer pro villa integra: and when two were joined together, each was called dimidia villatæ." (2)

A Berewic, or Berewite, according to Dr. Nafh, is in fome antient Books explained to be ufed fynonimoufly for Manerium: but it implied rather a member fevered from the body of a Manor, as a vill or hamlet of a Manor or Lordfhip. (3) Bromefgrave in Worcefterfhire had eighteen Berewicks, Chideminftre fixteen, Cedeflai eight. Recordine in Shropfhire had eight, Membrefeld eighteen. Suduuelle in Nottinghamfhire had twelve Berewicks. In Yorkshire they occur in greater numbers, and more frequently than in moft counties. In two or three entries they appear to be called Members of Manors: as in Leicefterfhire, under Rodolei, "Huic ꝍ ptin fubfequentia mēbra," to the amount of twenty. (4) So in Warwickfhire, "H duo mēbra jac ad Stanlei ꝍ regis." (5)

1 Domefd. fol. 220. Small parcels of land are fometimes entered as appertaining to no Manor; as tom. i. fol. 30 b. at Dorchinges, "Ex his hid. ht Ricard⁹ de tonebrige unā. quæ nulli ꝍ ptin."

5 Ibid. fol. 238. See alfo, fol. 260 b. In the firft volume of the Survey, fol. 111 b. in the account of Baentone in Devonfhire, it is faid, "Huic ꝍ adjacet una hida. quā teneb v. taini in Paragio p v. maner. T. R. E." Cowel fays, from Spelman, that Parage fignifies equality of name, blood, or dignity; but more efpecially of land, in the partition of all inheritance between co-heirs. Brady, from Dufrefne, fays, "Or it is when the younger brothers hold their fhare of the fee of the elder brother, and he of the lord, and does the homage and fervice, they contributing their fhares." Paragium, however, in the language of Domefday, meant holding in equal portions, as well in rights and privileges as in actual property. So, Du Cange, in one explanation of the word, "Quævis portio in re aliqua." He quotes "Tabularium Vindocinenfe, fol. 54. Guido de Blafone dominicus vaffus accedens ad Dom. Odericum Abbatem donavit eis tractum fagenæ unius in univerfis aquis fuis, ubicumque pifcaturas habere dinofcitur, ita ut ipfe in eadem fagena unius hominis habeat portionem, quam nominant Paragium, reliquæ autem portiones funt S. Trinitatis et Monachorum." So in Domefday, tom. i. fol. 7. "Hanc trā tenuer T. R. E. duo hōes in paragio." Fol. 45. Ipfe. H. ten. Warneford. Vluric⁹ 7 Oluuard⁹ tenuer in paragio de rege. E. 7 II. "Tres taini tenuer in paragio. 7 potuer ire cū terris fuis quo uoluer." Fol. 96 b. "Huic ꝍ additæ št. XXII. masuræ. quas teneb. xx. hōes in paragio. T. R. E. reddt. XII. folid."

Among the "Clamores quæ funt in Sudtreding Lincoliæ & Concordia eorū p homines qui iurauer." tom. i. fol. 375. are two entries explanatory of the tenure. "De calūnia int epm dunelm 7 Eudonē filiū Spireuuic. portauer teftimoniū hōes de Hornecaftre Wapent. annuente toto Treding. qd. Mansio.

In the Exeter Domesday Manfio is almoft conftantly ufed for Manerium: and there is one entry in the fecond volume of the prefent Survey which at leaft ferves to fhew that in the return for Effex the two words were confidered as fynonimous. " Haneghefelda—p̱ uno Mañ." " In ead tenueř xxiii. libi hões xiiii. hid. q poffent recede fine licentia dñi ipfius Manfiõis. (1) In other inftances the Manfio feems to have been but a member or hamlet of the Manerium. Under Alnoitone in Kent, we read, " Huic ϖ adjacent iii. Manfiones træ in Roucefttre." (2) In the account of Lincolnfhire it is faid, " In Stov. hb Eddiua iii. manfioñ cũ faca. 7 foca Rad ht." (3) In Huntingdon, " Siuuard⁹ com̃ hb i. manfioñ cũ domo cũ faca 7 foca quietã ab om̃i ɔ̃fuetudine quã m ht Judita comitiffa." (4) So, after the enumeration of the Manfiones and their poffeffors in Stafford, it is faid, " Hi om̃s hñt fachã 7 fochã. Rex ht de om̃ib; geldũ p anñ." (5) Under Cratafelda in Suffolk, it is faid, " 7 huic manerio iacent v. franci hoẽs de xxvi. ac̃. 7 femp ii. car & filua ad vi. porc. 7 ual. vi. fol 7 viii. deñ. Et ifti redd focã huic mañ p̃terea ii. hoẽs. de xl. ac̃. 7 i. car. 7 ual. v. fol. 7 foca de iftis duob; in bledeburc. Et has ii. manfiones tenet uuilielmus bainardus." (6)

Bracton, de Legibus et Confuetudinibus Angliæ, fol. Lond. 1569. lib. v. cap. 28. De Except. p. 434. gives us the following as an explanation of the difference between the Manfio, the Villa, and the Manerium. " Videndum igitur quid Manfio, quid Villa, et quid Manerium. Manfio autem effe poterit conftructa ex pluribus domibus, vel una quæ erit habitatis una et fola fine vicino; etiam etfi alia manfio fuerit vicinata non erit Villa, quia Villa eft ex pluribus manfionibus vicinata, et collata ex pluribus vicinis. Manerium autem fieri poterit ex pluribus villis vel una, plures enim villæ poffunt effe in corpore manerii ficut et una, et ad unam manfionem pertinere potuerunt plura tenementa." (7)

The Prefecti or Prepofiti Maneriorum or Villarum, were the Reeves, Bailiffs, or Stewards of Manors, whofe bufinefs it was to collect the rents, to levy diftreffes, to prevent trefpaffes, to keep the peace,

7 In a few entries of the Survey Manfiones feem to intend houfes fimply. " Manfio and Domus," fays Mr. Kelham, Illuftr. of Domefd. p. 267. " feem to be diftinguifhed, but wherein the difference confifted is not eafy to fay." Of the fame import was Manfura. Dr. Nafh, in his Collections for Worcefterfhire, fays that Manfura, in a town, fignified a Houfe; in the country, a Meffuage, that is houfe and land. Blomefield, in the Hiftory of Norfolk, fays that it fignified a manfion-houfe in decay, or a place where a manfion-houfe formerly ftood, or a place convenient to make a houfe in. Cowel fays, Manfura and Mafura are ufed in Domefday, and other ancient Records, for manfiones vel habitacula villicorum. In the Survey, tom. i. fol. 3. there are faid to have been three hundred and eighty-three manfuræ in Sandwich: and in Shrewfbury, a hundred and ninety-three manfuræ occur. In Hampfhire, under Edlinges, tom. i. fol. 38 b. it is faid, " In Forefta funt occupatæ. xvi. manfuræ uillanorɣ 7 bordariorɣ." At Thvinam in the fame County, fol. 44. " In burgo vi. mafuræ de xiii. fol 7 iiii. denar." In the account of Walingford in Berkfhire, we read, fol. 56. " In Suttone una acra in qua funt vi. mafuras de. xii. denar. 7 in Braio una acra. 7 ibi xi. mafuras de iii. folid. Rainald⁹ ht unã acrã in qua funt xi. mafuræ de xxvi. denar. 7 ptin in Eldeberie quæ ẽ. in Oxeneford." In Derby, fol. 280. " Hugo com̃ ht. ii. mafuras. 7 i. pifcař cũ faca 7 foca. Henric⁹ de ferariis iii. mafur cũ faca 7 foca fimit." " Adhuc in eod burgo funt. viii. mafuræ cũ faca 7 foca. Hæ fueř Ælgar. m funt regis."

Hagæ occur principally in the Cities, Burghs, and larger Towns, as at Rochefter, Canterbury, Chichefter, Lewes, Bofeham, Arundel, Rochintone, Waltham, Itratone, Epinges, Guildford, and Winchefter. From a paffage in tom. i. fol. 30. Haga and Domus appear to have been fynonimous: and from one or two entries under Walingford the fame opinion will probably be formed in refpect of Haga and Mafura. In the account of Norwich, however, a diftinction feems intended between Manfura and Domus.

and to do all the offices of Equity and Right between the Lord and Tenants. ([1]) The office of the Prepositus Villæ ([2]) is more particularly explained in the following of King Edward's laws: "28. De Animalibus et alia re inventa—Si quis adduxerit animal in villam, vel apportaverit pecuniam, et dixerit se inveniſſe, priuſquam in domum introducat ſuam vel etiam alterius, ante Eccleſiam ducat, et coram ſacerdote Eccleſiæ, et Præpoſito Villæ, et melioribus hominibus totum oſtendat inventum quicquid ſit. Præfectus Villæ mox mittat ad quatuor Villas propinquiores pro Sacerdotibus et Præpoſitis villarum, qui adducant ſecum tres vel quatuor de melioribus hominibus de unaquaque villa, quibus congregatis oſtenditur totum inventum. Poſtea vero teſtimonio ipſorum præpoſitus (de cujus dominio inventor eſt) cuſtodiat inventum uſque in diem craſtinum. Die autem craſtino cum aliquantis vicinorum ſuorum qui viderunt inventum, ad Hundredi eat præfectum, in quo Hundredo ſua villa eſt, et ipſi oſtendat totum. Et ſi homo alicujus domini ſit in cujus terra inventum eſt hoc, et Dominus in cujus terra inventum eſt non habet conſuetudines ſuas, ſcilicet ſake et ſoke, omnia tradat Præfecto Hundredi (ſi habere voluerit) cum bonis teſtibus. Sed ſi Dominus habuerit conſuetudines ſuas, in Curia Domini rectum teneatur." ([3])

The Bedelli were the Under-Bailiffs of Manors. In Leominſtre in Herefordſhire, the Manor of which had ſixteen members or berewicks, there were eight prepoſiti and eight bedelli. ([4]) At Feccheham in the ſame county we find "xxx. uilli 7 xi. bord 7 ꝑpoſit⁹ 7 bedel." ([5])

"Prefecti regis et Bedelli et Elemoſinarii" occur at the cloſe of the tenants in capite in Bedfordſhire. ([6])

The following is the enumeration of ſtock received with a ſmall eſtate of tenemental land held under Eudo Fitz Hubert, detailed in the Survey in the Hundred of Hertford in Hertfordſhire. "Cū qua ſūpſit Hunfrid⁹ qdo de Eudone recep̃: lxviii. Aalia ([7]) 7. ccc. l. oues. 7 cl. porc. 7 l. caps. 7 i. equā. 7 xiii. ſol. 7 iiii. den de cenſu regis. 7 int pannos 7 uaſa: xx ſol." The eſtate conſiſted of half a Hide, with one plough in demeſne, and another belonging to four bordarii. It had ſeven cottagers, a mill yielding ſix ſhillings and eight-pence, and wood for fifty porkers. It had belonged to one of King Edward's bailiffs, and its value both under the Confeſſor and the Conqueror had ſtood at ſixty ſhillings. ([8])

Markets and Tolls.

At what period the eſtabliſhment of public Markets firſt took place in England, we are not told; but the conſtantly increaſing ſeverity of the Anglo-Saxon laws againſt Theft, probably multiplied their number. To eſcape this ſeverity, it was neceſſary that every Man, and eſpecially a dealer in goods, ſhould be always able to prove his legal property in what he poſſeſſed. ([9])

In the Laws of Ina, it is expreſsly ſaid, "Si mercator inter vulgus mercetur, faciat hoc coram teſtibus. Si furto ablatum illud emptum inveniatur, et ipſe non emerit id coram bonis teſtibus, confirmet pœnæ loco, quod nec furti conſcius, nec furatus ſit, vel compenſet pœnæ loco triginta ſex ſolidos:" ([10]) and in those of Athelstan, it is enacted, that no one shall make a purchase beyond twenty pennies "extra portam;" but that such bargains should take place within the town, in the presence of the Port-reve, or some other person of veracity, or of the reves in the folc-mote. ([1])

The following, among the Conqueror's Laws, is copied almost verbatim from one of the Laws of Canute: 22. "Ne quis rem aliquam emat sine testibus. Nemo emat quantum IV. denariis æstimatur, neque de re mortua neque de viva absque testimonio IV. hominum aut de Burgo, aut de Villa. Et si quis rem vendicat, et is non habeat testimonium, si nullum habeat Warrantum respondeat alteri Catallum suum, et forisfacturum habeat qui habere debet, et si testimonium habeat ut jam diximus advocet tribus vicibus, et vice quarta disrationet, aut rem reddat."

In the county of Kent two Markets are mentioned in the Survey, one at Favreshaunt, which yielded four pounds; ([2]) the other at Newedene, which yielded thirty-nine shillings and seven-pence. ([3]) In Hampshire three Markets occur; one at Neteham yielding eight pounds, ([4]) one at Basingestoche, of thirty shillings, ([5]) and, at Ticefelle, "Mercatū 7 theloneū ꝛ xl. solid." ([6]) In Berkshire, we have one at Wallingford, and another newly established at Cocheham. "De nouo mercato qđ ibi ē modo ꝛ xx. sol." ([7]) Under Bertune it is said "x. mercatores ante portā æcclæ manentes redđ xl. den." ([8]) In Wiltshire a Market yielding forty-five shillings occurs at Bradeford. ([9]) In Somersetshire no less than seven Markets are mentioned, one at Frome yielding forty-six shillings, one at Mileburne not separately valued, a third at Givelcestre, producing with its appendages eleven pounds, one at Cruche producing four pounds, ([10]) one at Milvertone yielding ten shillings, ([11]) one at Tantone yielding fifty shillings, ([12]) and one at Ileminstre yielding twenty shillings. ([13]) In Devonshire a Market occurs at Ochementone. ([14]) In Cornwall, among the Bishop of Exeter's lands at Matele, it is said "forū hujꝰ Manerii hř coṁ Moritoñ qđ eṗs habeƀ T.R.E." ([15]) There was a Market at St. Germains, held on Sundays, but it produced nothing on account of its proximity to the Market belonging to the Earl of Moretaine. ([16]) Launceston had a Market, it is said, in the time of King Edward, which yielded twenty shillings, but it was taken away by the Earl of Moretaine. ([17]) Other Markets occur at Bodmine, ([18]) at Liscarret yielding four shillings, ([19]) and at Tremetone yielding three shillings. ([20]) This last is noticed with the Earl of Moretaine's Castle at Tremetone. In Oxfordshire, we find a payment of fifty shillings "de Mercato" at Bentone. ([21]) In Gloucestershire, a Market is noticed at Berchelai, "Ibi uñ forū in quo manent xvii. hōes. 7 redđt censū in firma:" and another at Teodekesberie, "qđ Regina constituit," yielding eleven shillings. ([22]) In Herefordshire, a Market recently established occurs at Etune. ([23]) in Bedfordshire, the toll of the Market at Lestone produced seven pounds; that at Loitone a hundred shillings; ([24]) a third at Alricesete produced ten shillings. ([25]) In Northamptonshire, under Vndele, we have a payment "de mercato" of twenty shillings. ([26]) A market also occurs at Hecham of the same value. In Leicestershire, a Market occurs at Medeltone. (1) In Staffordshire, at Tutbury. (2) In Lincolnshire, a Market occurs at Chirchetone; (3) another at Ludes yielding twenty-nine shillings; a Market in Bolinbroc lately established; (4) one in Spallinge producing forty shillings; (5) in Bertone, "I. Mercatū 7 passagiū de IIII. lib;" (6) and, in Partene, a Market yielding ten shillings. (7) At Dumham in Norfolk, we have, "dimidium mercatum;" (8) a Market at Coleneia apparently of recent establishment; (9) and at Turchetel "quarta pars unius Mercati." (10) In Suffolk, one at Tornai; (11) one at Beccles, of which the fourth part was the King's, with all customary payments; (12) the remainder, as appears by another entry, belonged to St. Edmondsbury abbey; (13) one at Sutberie; (14) one in Eia, in which twenty-five burgesses were constantly resident; (15) and one in Carahalla, "de dono regis." (16) Under Hoxana we have a curious entry, which seems to shew that the Norman tenants in capite had sometimes the power of establishing a Market for their own advantage. "In h. manerio erat unū Mercatū t. r. e. 7 p9q. Willmus rex aduen; 7 sedebat in sabbato, et W. malet fecit suū castellū ad eiam 7 eadē die q erat Mercatū in manerio epi. W. malet fecit aliū Mercatū in suo castello et ex hoc ita peioratū ē Mercatū epi ut parū ualeat. et m sedet die ueneris. Mercatū aut de heia sedet die sabbati. m ten Rob de dono regis." (17) The Bishop, to whose fee the Market had belonged, was Ailmarus bishop of Thetford. Under Clara, it is said, "semper unū mercatū:" (18) and under Haverhella we have a Market, the only one in the second volume of which the value is recorded, yielding thirteen shillings and four-pence. (19)

The Market of St. Germains in Cornwall is expresly said to have been held "in die Dominico," on Sunday. This was forbidden by the Laws of the Northumbrian Priests, about the year 950: "Diei solis mercaturam prohibemus ubique, et omnem populi conventum, et omne opus, et quamlibet peregrinationem, tam in curribus quam in equis cum oneribus:" (20) Again in the Liber Constitutionum of King Æthelred, and in the Laws of Canute. (21) Matthew Paris, however, informs us, under the year 1200, that Fairs and Markets were constantly so held in England from a remote period. He is speaking of Eustace abbot of Flai, who came into England in the time of King John. "Nundinas vero et Mercata Dominicæ diei adeo interdixit; quod omnia fere, quæ diebus Dominicis per Angliam fieri consueverant, constituerentur in una hebdomadæ sequentium feriarum: Sicque Dominicis diebus fidelis populus divinis solummodo vacans obsequiis, omne opus servile penitus abdicavit. Veruntamen, tempore procedente, plerique ut canes ad vomitum, sunt reversi." (22) The Statute of the 27th of King Henry the Sixth appears to have abolished the custom entirely.

§ 4. Territorial Jurisdictions and Franchises.

On the subject of holding Markets in fortified places, we read the following in what is called, "Carta Regis Willielmi Conquisitoris de quibusdam Statutis." "Item nullum mercatum vel forum sit, nec fieri permittatur, nisi in civitatibus regni nostri, et in burgis, et muro vallatis, et in castellis, et in locis tutissimis, ubi consuetudines regni nostri, et jus nostrum commune, et dignitates coronæ nostræ, quæ constitutæ sunt a bonis prædecessoribus nostris deperiri non possint, nec defraudari, nec violari, sed omnia rite et in aperto, et per judicium et justitiam fieri debent. Et ideo castella, et burgi, et civitates sitæ sunt et fundatæ et ædificatæ, scilicet, ad tuitionem gentium et populorum regni, et ad defensionem regni, et idcirco observari debent cum omni libertate, et integritate, et ratione." (1)

Feria, a fair, occurs once only, in the second Volume of the Survey, at Aspella, a manor belonging to Ranulph Peverell: "In eađ tcia pars æcctiæ. & tcia pars feriæ." (2)

"De Thol.

"Thol (quod nos dicimus Tholoneum) est, scilicet quod habeat libertatem vendendi et emendi in terra sua." (3) Tol, Thol, or Theloneum, in the language of the Domesday Survey, was not merely the liberty of buying and selling, or keeping a market; it also signified the customary dues or rents paid to the Lord of a Manor for his profits of the Fair or Market, (4) as well as a tribute or custom for passage. (5) In the very first page of the Survey, the burgesses of Dover are represented in the time of King Edward, to have been free of toll through England. "Quicunq, manens in villa assiduus. reddebat regi cōsuetudinē: quietus erat de theloneo p totā Angliā." Under Cedeorde in Gloucestershire, Wlward who held it in the same reign, is said to have received, "Theloneū sal qđ veniebat ad aulā." (6) At Lestone in Bedfordshire we have, "Theloneū de Mercato redđ. VII. liƀ." (7) Under Northwich in Cheshire, it is said, "Quisqs ex alia scira carrū adducebat cū. II. boƀ aut cū pluriƀ dabat de theloneo. IIII. denar." (8) Among the Clamores in Lincolnshire, several cases occur of the exaction of Tolls unknown in the time of Edward. Among those of the North Riding of the County, we read, "In Bertune 7 in Ferebi accipiunt hoēs Gislebti de Gand Theloneū aliud quā accepunt. T. R. E. de pane, pisciƀ. coriis. 7 aliis reƀ plurimis. unde nunq datū fuit. In Castre faciunt simitr hoēs regis." (9)

Sect. 5.—TENURES and SERVICES.

1. Instances and Peculiarities.

§ 5. Tenures and Services.

Tenure in frankalmoigne frequently occurs. This is the tenure by which the antient Monasteries and Religious Houses held the larger portion of their lands. The high and exalted nature of the Service which they rendered, discharged them from all secular burthens but that of the trinoda necessitas, of repairing the bridges, building castles, and repelling invasions. They prayed for the soul of the donor and his heirs.

Among the possessions of the Church of Saint Martin Canterbury, we read, "Terra Nordeuuode 7 tra Ripe. 7 tra Brandet reddt xx. sol. 7 vi. den ad S. Martiñ in elemosina." ([1]) Under "Terra Æcclæ S. Augustini" it is said, "Juxta ciuitatē Cantuar ht S. Augtin IIII. acs tre qs ten IIII. Moniales in elemosina de abbe." ([2]) In Sussex we find several clerici holding single hides of land "in elemosina." ([3]) The abbey of Almanesches held Clepinges, in that county, of Earl Roger by the same tenure. ([4]) The abbey of Troard, also, held Rochintone of the same Earl in alms. ([5]) In Berkshire, the Bishop of Durham held Waltham of the King in alms; Vluuinus the Canon had before held it of Harold. ([6]) Under "Terra Walterii filii Ponz," in the same county, at Etone, we read, "De isto ϖ. III. hid ded Ponz S. Petro de Westmonast pro anima sua." ([7]) Of a hide of land at Horcerd in Dorsetshire, it is said, "Hanc hidā ded Hugo p anima sua æcclæ de Creneburne." ([13]) Under Toruei in Bedfordshire we find Aluuinus, a priest, holding the third part of half a hide. It is added, "Rex u. W. sibi postea in elemosina ccessit. unde p anima regis 7 reginæ omi edda. ([18]) At Saint Edmundsbury, the abbat had "XLIII. Elemosinarii, qsq ht. I. bord." ([19])

The Services performed by the Towns and Burghs have been noticed under a separate head.

Firma unius Noctis, one night's entertainment, is a Service which frequently occurs, usually as having been rendered in the time of Edward the Confessor. As at Borne and Beddingham in Sussex: ([20]) at Cavna, Bedvinde, Amblesberie, Guerminstre, Chepeham, and Theodulveside in Wiltshire: ([21]) at Warham, Bridetone, Bere, Winborne, Pinpre, and Winfrode in Dorsetshire: ([22]) at Summertone, Cedre, Nordperet, Sudperet, Churi, Willetone, Candetone, and Carentone in Somersetshire: ([23]) and at Betune and Wesberie in Gloucestershire. at least as far as the time of Ethelred. "Tēpore Adelredi patris E. regis: reddb ħ. tria ꝏ dimid firmā noctis." (1) At Lintune in Herefordshire "quarta pars firmæ unius noctis" occurs. (2) At Neuport in Essex, "firma de duabus noctibus." (3) The county of Oxford rendered the entertainment of three nights, or one hundred and fifty pounds. (4) In Hampshire, it is said, "H. tria ꝏ. Basingestoc. Clere. Esseborne. reddunt Firmam unius diei." (5) Under Saham, Fordham, and several other manors on the King's demesnes in Cambridgeshire, we find the entertainment of three Days noticed, "inter mel, frumentum, et brasium"; (6) a service which, in the Conqueror's time, appears to have been uniformly commuted for in each by the payment of thirteen pounds eight shillings and four-pence "de albis nummis."

In the Account of Lanpiran in Cornwall we read, "De hoc maner ablatæ st̃ II. træ q̃ reddeb canonicis [S. Pierani] T.R.E. Firmā IIII. Septimanarum. 7 decano xx. solid p c̃suetudine." (7)

The Castle of Arundel yielded in the time of Edward the Confessor "de III. Conuiuiis xx. solid." (8)

Under Newetone in Surry it is said, "De ꝏ de Mildentone reddit: in Neuuetone una c̃suetudo idest xxvIII. pensæ Caseoꝝ." (9) The "Consuetudo Caseoꝝ" occurs again in Berkshire. (10)

At Chintenham in Gloucestershire a render was made, in the time of Edward, of three thousand cakes of dog-bread: "ter mille panes canibus." For this at the time of the Survey sixteen shillings were paid in Money. (11) From the county of Warwick, in the time of the Conqueror, twenty-three pounds were paid "p c̃suetudine Canum." (12)

Of the manor of Cumbe in Kent, it is said, "T. R.E. ualeb. LX. sol. 7 post L. sol. Modo IIII. lib. & seruitium uni⁹ militis." (13) The same Service occurs in Surry. (14) This must have been by finding a man for the wars.

In Cornwall, "De Æccla S. Germani ablata ē I. hida træ q̃ reddeb p c̃suetudin unā Cupā Ceruisiæ. 7 xxx. denar." (15)

The Royal demesne of Portland in Northamptonshire, in the time of Edward, beside forty-eight shillings rent, paid ten shillings "pro feltris sommarioꝝ regis": for skins or rugs for the King's sumpter horses. (16)

Among the baser Services was "Auera" which, with the exception of two entries in Kent, occurs principally in Hertford and Cambridge shires, generally accompanied in the latter county by "Inguard," or "Inward." Auera is usually interpreted a day's work of the Plough, though it also signified that service which the tenant owed to the King or other Lord, by horse or ox, or by carriage with either. (17) Inward was the guarding the person of the King when he lodged in a city, or the attendance on the Sheriff. It also implied certain servile works about the King's demesnes or the lords inlands. (18)

At Barham, in Kent, it is said, "De Auera idest seruitium LX. sol." (19) At Chenepeworde in Hertfordshire, "De c̃suetud. I. Auerā inuenieb. cū rex in scyra veniebat. Si non: v. denar reddebat." (20)

§ 5. Tenures and Services.

In Cambridgeshire, under Effelinge, "un⁹qſq, in ſervitio regis inuenit Auerā. ł VIII. den ł mancipiū." ([1]) Under Warating, it is ſaid, "Hanc trā tenueř x. ſochi. hoēs abbis fueř. 7 abſq, ej⁹ licentia trā ſuā uende ñ potueř. Hoz. VI. inuenieb Aueras. 7 IIII. inu jnguard. ſi rex ueniret in ſcyra. Si non. VIII. den p auera. 7 IIII. p inguard. reddebant." ([2]) Under Svafam in Cambridgeſhire, we read "Hanc trā tenueř. VI. ſochi ſub Eddeua. ñ potueř. ſine ej⁹ licentia recede. ſʒ inuenieb uicecomiti III. jneuuard 7 I. Auerā p annum." ([3]) The repetitions of this Service are very numerous upon the lands which had belonged to the fair Eddeva. In Warateuuorde, it is ſaid, "Hanc trā. II. ſochi regis E. tenueř. 7 II. Aueras inueneř. 7 uende potueř;" and again, under Eureſdone, "alij XIII. hoēs. R. E. unā hid 7 dim 7 x. acs tenueř. 7 IX. Aueras 7 v. inew uicecomiti inuenerunt. Oms u terras ſuas dare ł uendere potuerunt." ([4])

Several inſtances of baſer Service occur upon the lands belonging to Weſtminſter Abbey, in Worceſterſhire. As, "In Bricſtelmeſtune. ſunt. x. hidæ. Ibi. x. uiłł 7 x. bord. cū VI. car 7 arant 7 ſeminant VI. acs de ppo ſemine." ([5]) "In Depeforde. Ibi VIII. uiłłi 7 x. bord cū VI. car. 7 arant IIII. acs 7 ſeminant de ſuo ſemine.—Alcot monac⁹. I. hid. 7 faciebat ſeruitiū. qđ ei pcipiebatur." ([6]) "In Aichintune ſunt XVI. hidæ. Ibi VI. colibti. redđ p anñ. XI. ſol 7 II. den. 7 arant 7 ſeminant de ppo ſemine XII. acras." ([7]) Of the Servi on the ſame land, it is ſaid, "Hi duo Dunning 7 Brictric ſecab in ptis dñi ſui p conſuetudinē. unā diem." ([8]) In Longedune, it is ſaid, "De hac tra T. R. E. teneb. IX. libi hoēs. XVIII. hid. 7 ſecabant uno die in ptis dñi ſui. 7 facieb ſeruitiū ſic eis pcipiebatur." So again, under Poiwic, Snodeſbyrie, Dormeſtun, and other Manors belonging to the Monaſtery. At Offenham in Worceſterſhire, belonging to the Abbey of Eveſham, it is ſaid, "Ibi ſunt boves ad I. car. ſed petrā trahunt ad æcclam." ([9]) Oſbern Fitz Richard held Wicelbold in the ſame county. "Ibi XIII. burgſes in Wich ſecantes II. dieb⁹ in Auguſto 7 Marcio. 7 ſeruientes curiæ." ([10]) In the Hundred of Neweton, between the Ribble and the Merſey, we read, "Huj⁹ Hvnd hoēs libi pt. II. erant in eađ ɔſuetud qua hoēs derberiæ. 7 plus illis. II. diebʒ in Auguſto metebant in culturis regis." ([11]) At Elmelie in Herefordſhire, on the land of Saint Guthlac, it is ſaid, "Alterius uillæ hoēs laborant in hac uilla. 7 reddt. XXXVII. ſolid 7 VIII. denar." ([12]) Upon the King's lands at Luſenham and Sculetorp in Northamptonſhire, it is ſaid, "Hoēs opantur opa regis quæ ppoſitus juſſerit." ([13])

The Servi on the manor of Bledelai in Buckinghamſhire, belonging to the Earl of Moretaine, from the profits of pannage paid money ſufficient to purchaſe the iron work of two Ploughs: "de reddit ſiluæ ferra car. ſufficienter." ([14]) The tenants on the eſtate at Eſtone in the ſame County, belonging to Edward of Saliſbury, appear to have done the ſame. "Silua CCC. porc. 7 ferra carucis dñicis." ([15]) Under Quenintone, one of Roger de Laci's manors in Glouceſterſhire, we find a burgeſs of Glouceſter entered yielding "IIII. ſoccos" or plough-ſhares. ([16]) Four burgeſſes of Hereford yielded eighteen plough-ſhares to the manor of Merchelai in Herefordſhire. ([17])

§ 5. Tenures and Services.

Other Services of a ſpecial ſort occur. At Henret in Berkſhire, it is ſaid "Henric⁹ teñ ibi I. hid quæ fuerat in firma regis. Godric⁹ tenuit. Aluric⁹ de Tacehã dicit ſe uidiſſe brevẽ regis qđ eã dederit feminæ Godrici in dono eo q'd nutriebat canes suos. Sed nemo ẽ in Hunđ qui breuẽ uiderit p̃ter Aluricum." (1) Of certain lands at Achelei in Buckinghamſhire, of the fee of Robert de Oilgi, we read "Hæ V. hidæ 7 III. uirgæ ſunt VIII. hidæ. De his tenuit Aluuid puella. II. hid. quas potuit dare ł uendere cui uoluit. 7 de dñica firma regis E. habuit ipſa dim hidã quã Godric⁹ uicecom ei c̃ceſſit quadiũ uicecom̃ eet. ut illa doceret filiã ej⁹ Aurifriſiũ op'ari. Hanc trã teñ m Robt⁹ filius Walterij teſtante hundret." (2) Under Lene in Herefordſhire, which in the Confeſſor's time had been Earl Morcar's, it is ſaid, "T.R.E. ualƀ VI. liƀ. Modo XII. liƀ de candidis denar. p̃poſit⁹ huj⁹ ϖ c̃ſuetuđ habeƀ.T.R.E. ut ueniente dn'a ſua in ϖ p'ſentaret ei XVIII. oras denar. ut eet ipsa læto animo. 7 dapifer 7 alij miniſtri habeb' de eo x. ſolid. (3)

The laſt Service to be noticed is that which was yielded by the manor of Biſcopeſtreu in the hundred of Atiſcroſs in Cheſhire, which at the time of the Survey was held by Grifin King of North Wales. "In eođ Atiſcros Hđ habuit. Rex Grifin. I. maneriũ Biſcopeſtreu. 7 in dñio. It is remarkable how many Services which in the time of Edward the Confeſſor were yielded in kind, in the time of the Conqueror were changed for money payments.

2. Heriots and Reliefs.

Harieta, Heriet, Heriete, or Herigete, the Heriot, occurs more rarely in the Domeſday Survey than might have been expected. The firſt eſtabliſhment, if not the introduction of the compulſory Heriot into England is found in the following Law of King Canute. (5) "De Heriotis. "Et ſint armamenta prouti dignitati convenit, Comitis prouti ad eum pertinet, nempe octo Equi, quatuor ephippiati et quatuor abſque ephippiis, et quatuor Galeæ, et quatuor Loricæ, et octo Haſtæ, ac totidem Scuta, et quatuor Enſes et ducentæ Mancuſæ auri. Et poſtea Regii Thani armamentum, qui ei proximus, ſit IV. equi, II. ephippiati, et II. abſque ephippiis, et duo Enſes et IV. Haſtæ, et totidem Scuta, et Galeæ, et Loricæ, et quinquaginta Mancuſæ auri. Et inferioris conditionis Thani, Equus cum ornamentis ejus et armis, vel ejus mulcta obſtricti colli in Saxonia occidua, et in Mercia duæ libræ, et in Anglia orientali duæ libræ. Et Regii Thani armamentum apud Danos, qui ſuam immunitatem habet quatuor libræ, et ſi Regi ulterius notus ſit, duo Equi, unus ephippiatus, et alter abſque ephippio, et Enſis et duæ Haſtæ, et duo Scuta, et quinquaginta Mancuſæ auri: et qui minus habuerit, et minus potens fuerit, duæ libræ." The word Heriot, or Ꮒeꞃe-ᵹeaꞇ, implies the habiliments of war. Theſe, it ſhould ſeem, were delivered up to the ſovereign on the death of the vaſſal, who could no longer uſe them, to be put into other hands for the ſervice and defence of the country. (6) The Heriot of the Lagemen at Cambridge has been already noticed in a former page. (7)

§ 5. Tenures and Services.

Upon the plan of the Danifh Heriot, William the Conqueror fafhioned his law of Reliefs. 22. " De Relevio Comitis. De Relevio Comitis, quod ad Regem pertinet VIII. Equi ephippiati et frænis ornati, et Loricæ II, et IV. Galeæ, et IV. Scuta, et IV. Haftæ, et IV. Enfes, alii cæteri IV. Veredi, et Palfredi cum frænis et capiftris." 23. " De Relevio Baronis. De Relevio Baronis IV. Equi cum fellis et frænis ornati, et Loricæ II. et II. Galeæ, et Scuta II. et II. Haftæ, et II. Enfes; et alii cæteri II. unus Veredus et unus Palfridus cum fræno et capiftro." 24. " De Vavaforis Relevio. De Relevio Vavaforis ad legitimum fuum Dominum. Quietus effe debet per Æquum patris fui talem qualem habuerit tempore mortis fuæ, et per Loricam fuam, et per Galeam fuam, et per Scutum fuum, et per Haftam fuam, et per Enfem fuum, et fi adeo fuerit inermis ut nec Equum habuerit nec Arma, per centum folidos." 29. " De Servorum Relevio. De Relevio Villani. Melius animal quod habuerit id (five Equus fit, five Bos, five Vacca) donabit Domino fuo pro Relevio, et poftea fint omnes Villani in franco plegio." 40. " De Relevio eorum qui clientes cenfum pendunt. Eorum qui fundum fuum tenent ad cenfum, fit rectum Relevium tantum quantum cenfus annuus eft."

The Relief was, in fact, a fine paid to the King by all who came to the inheritance of lands held in capite or military fervice, to relieve, or as it were to redeem their eftate and obtain poffeffion of it. ([1]) It confifted at firft, as we fee by the Conqueror's Laws, in horfes and arms, till, by the Ordinance called the Affize of Arms, in the 27th year of Henry the Second, every man's armour was directed to be preferved for his heir, and the Relief became payable in money; the fixed rates of which were afterwards determined by Magna Charta. ([2])

Such was the difference between the Heriot and the Relief in their origin. " But," fays Sir Henry Spelman, " there is great difference between Heriots and Reliefs; for Heriots were Militiæ apparatus which the word fignifieth, and devifed to keep the conquered nation in fubjection, and to fupport the public ftrength and military furniture of the kingdom: the Reliefs for the private commodity of the Lord, that he might not have inutilem proprietatem in the Seignory. The Heriots were therefore paid in habiliments of war; the Reliefs, ufually, in money: the Heriot for the tenant that died, and out of his goods; the Relief for the tenant that fucceeded, and out of his purfe: the Heriot, whether the fon or heir enjoyed the land or not; the Relief by none but him only that obtained the land in fucceffion." " I ftand the longer," adds Sir Henry Spelman, " herein, for that not only the Report, but even DOOMSDAY itfelf, and generally all the ancient monkifh writers ([3]) have confounded Heriots and Reliefs."

In the account of Kent in the very firft page of the Survey, in what relates to the Cuftoms of Boruuar Left, Eftreleft, Linuuartleft, and Wiuuartleft, it is faid, " Quando morit Alodiarius : rex inde habet releuationē tr̃æ. excepta tra S. [3] Bromton, in what may be termed a perpetual Commentary on the Laws of Canute, rather than a traufcript of the Code, reprefents the Heriot and the Relevatio as the fame. " Si quis ex hac vita decedat fine diftributione rerum fuarum, vel per incuftodiam, vel per mortem improvifam, non ufurpet fibi dominus ejus de pecunia fua, nifi quantum ad juftam Relevationem pertinet quæ Anglice vocatur HEREGET." The Monkifh hiftorians were at a lofs for a Latin term to exprefs the Heriot, and they adopted Relevatio.

§ 6. Criminal and Civil Jurifdictions.

1. Their Denominations.

Saca, Soca, Theim.

THESE terms are thus explained in the laws of Edward the Confeffor. "22. De Sacha—Sacha eft, quod fi quilibet aliquem nominatim de aliquo calumniatus fuerit, et ille negaverit, forisfactura probationis vel negationis (fi evenerit) fua erit. 23. De Soca—Soca eft, quod fi aliquis quærit aliquid in terra fua, etiam furtum, fua eft juftitia fi inventum fuerit, an non. 25. De Theam—Theam, quod fi quifpiam aliquid interciet fuper aliquem, & interciatus non poterit warrantum fuum habere, erit forisfactura fua, et juftitiæ fimiliter de calumniatore, fi defecerit." Infangthefe follows: after which it is faid, "Illi vero qui non habent has confuetudines coram juftitia regia rectum faciant in Hundredis, vel in Wapentachiis, vel in Scyris." (5)

Sacá was the power and privilege of hearing and determining caufes and difputes, levying forfeitures and fines, executing laws, and adminiftering juftice within a certain precinct.

Soca was the territory or precinct in which the Saca and other privileges were exercifed. (6) Soca, Soke, fays Kelham, generally fignifies franchife, liberty, or jurifdiction; fometimes a territory or precinct; and fometimes a rent paid for ufing the land, with fome privilege or liberty, or for protection of the land. (7) Under Somerdebi in Lincolnfhire, we read, "Tĩ Soca talis erat. qđ nichil reddebat. fed adjuvabat in exercitu regis in tra 7. in marĩ." (8)

§ 6. Criminal and Civil Jurisdictions.

In the second volume of the Domesday Survey, "Soca falde," the privilege of the Lords fold occurs in numerous instances: (1) that is, the privilege of the Lord to take the profits of the fold within his manor.

Team or Theame says Cowel, from the Saxon tyman propagare, to teem or bring forth, signifies a royalty granted by the King's charter to the Lord of a Manor, for the having, restraining, and judging bondmen, neifs, and villains, with their children, goods, and chattels, in his court. (2) Tyman, says Cowel, signifies also to advocate. In the "Expositio Verborum Anglicorum" in the Cotton Manuscript Galba E. IV. Theu is explained, "Auer serf, ou uyleyn, ou neyf, et lur issue." Cowel quotes a similar explanation of old date from the register of the priory of Crokesford. "Them. i. e. Quod Prior habet totam generationem Villanorum suorum, cum eorum secta et catallis ubicunque in Anglia inventi fuerint."

The names of those who had Sac and Soc and Thol and Thaim, in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire, Lincolnshire, and Yorkshire, are enumerated at the beginning of the respective Counties. (3)

Ibid. in Stou. "Adjacent huic man. V. libi hoes de ōi consuetudin. 7 ad socā adjacent etiā XVII. libi hoes consueti ad faldā. & comdati de XXIIII. ac." Du Cange says, "Falda denique sumitur pro libertate habendi Faldam, quæ libertas Faldsoca dicitur. Soc enim Saxonibus libertas. Nulli quippe olim licuit vel in terris propriis Faldam erigere, aut gregem alere, nisi domino feodali, seu manerii, hoc ex jure publico gaudenti. 2 Law Interpr. fol. 1727. in v. Spelman, noticing the occurrence of the word in Saxon Charters, and more particularly in those of Edward the Confessor, says, "Ubi Theam significare videtur jurisdictionem cognoscendi in Curiâ suâ de advocationibus, sive intertiatis; hoc est, ut Jureconsulti hodiè loquuntur, de vocatis ad Warrantiam, sic enim ibidem sequitur cap. 25. § 6. Criminal and Civil Jurisdictions.

2. Delinquencies and Fines.

The Delinquencies more particularly noticed in the Laws and Customs of the different districts, are Adulterium, (1) Burgheristh, Forestel, Furtum, (2) Gribrige, Hainfare, Handsoca, Homicidium, Raptum, Revelach, and the Forisfactura Sanguinis.

Burgheristh or Burgeret is a word of rare occurrence, and is supposed by our antiquaries to be the same with Burghbrech or Boþhbþece, fidejussionis fractio, mentioned in the Saxon Laws. (3) Burgherita occurs in a Charter of Edmund I. A.D. 944. (4)

Forestel, Forstel, or Foristel, is explained in the Laws of Henry the First: "Forestel est, si quis ex transverso incurrat, vel in via expectet et assalliat inimicum suum." (5) It was an assault upon the road, or an hindrance of a traveller going upon his lawful business. At Worcester and Shrewsbury it is said, "Forestellum q̊ fecerit c. solid emd." (6) At Chester, on Sundays, and certain of the higher festivals, "Forestel qui faciebꝫ III. lib. exsoluebat. in aliis aut diebꝫ XL. solid." (7)

Gribrige was the same with Pacis infractio, a violation of the Peace. In the laws of Canute (8) it is called Ꮆꞃyþbꞃyce, and in those of Æthelred (9) Fꞃiþbꞃec. It is also noticed in the Constitutiones Canuti Regis de Foresta, (10) and in the Laws of Henry the First. In the very first page of Domesday we read "De Gribrige ů siqs eã fecerit 7 calumniatꝰ in calle aut divadiatꝰ fuerit ꝫ VIII lib regi em̃dabit. Sin autẽ quietꝰ erit erga regẽ non erga dñm cujꝰ homo fuerit." The breach of the peace given under the King's hand or by his seal is noticed in several passages of the Domesday Survey to have been punished with greater severity than that preserved by the Sheriff. (11)

Hainfare, or Heinfare, appears to have been the flight for murder. Among the Consuetudines Walensium in Arcenefeld, it is said "Si qs occid hoẽm regis 7 facit Heinfaram dat regi XX. sol. de solutione hominis. 7 de forisfactura c. sol. Si alicujꝰ taini hoẽm occiderit ꝫ dat. x. sol. dño hoĩs mortui." (12) Under Worcester and Shrewsbury we read "Heinfarã q̊ fecerit ꝫ c. solid." At Chester the mulcts varied in the same manner as for Forstel. Another interpretation of Hainfare will be found in the next paragraph.

Handsoca occurs but once in Domesday. It was a breach of the peace in a man's house. The following is the explanation of it in the laws of Henry the First: "Hamsocna quod domus invasionem Latine sonat, fit pluribus modis, extrinsecus vel et intrinsecus accidentiis. Hamsocna est si quis alium in sua vel alterius domo cum haraido assailiaverit, vel persequatur ut portam, vel domum sagittet, vel lapidet, vel colpum ostensibilem undecunque faciat. Hamsocna est vel Hamfare, si quis præmeditate ad domum eat ubi suum hostem esse scit, et ibi invadat." (13)

Raptum. In what relates to Worcester in the Survey we read: "Raptũ q̊ fecerit ꝫ ñ fit emendatio alia nisi de corpore iustitia." (14) This is more fully explained by the Laws of William the Conqueror.

1 "De Adulterio ů ꝑ totũ chent hẽ Rex hominẽ. 7 Archieþs mulierẽ excepta tra S. Trinitatis, 7 S. Augustini. 7 S. Martini de quibꝫ rex nichil hẽ." Domesd. tom. i. fol. 1. See also fol. 56 b.

§ 6. Criminal and Civil Jurifdictions.

" Qui proftraverit fœminam ad terram et ei vim inferat, mulcta ejus Domino eft x. folidi. Si vero eam compresserit, forisfacit membra." (1)

Revelach occurs in the account of Chefter only. " Qui Revelach faciebat ⁊ xl. folid emdabatur." Kelham in his Domefday Book illuftrated, p. 315. explains Revelach to have been any traiterous act or infurrection: but its real fignification was that of robbery or rapine. See the Laws of Ina, cap. 10. In Canute's Laws (2) we read " Si quis reaflac commiferit, reddat et compenfet, et fit æftimatione capitis dignus apud Regem, vel apud eum qui immunitatem illius poffidet."

Forisfactura Sanguinis was blood-fhed. In the account of Lewes in Suffex it is faid " Sanguinem fundens emdat p vii. fol 7 iiii^{or} den." (3) Among the Laws of Berkshire in the time of Edward the Confeffor, " Si qis occidet hominē pacē regis habentē ⁊ 7 corp9 fuū 7 omem fubftantiā forisfacieb erga regē." The punifhment for blood-fhed at Chefter has been already noticed in p. lxiv.

In the Wiches of Chefhire homicide and theft were punifhed with death: (4) " Excepto homicidio vel furto de quo ad mortem iudicabat ⁊ latro": (5) and among the Cuftoms of the Lands between the Ribble and the Merfey, " Pugna quæ poft facramentum factum remanebat," as Kelham tranflates it, the continuing a fight after the office of the Sacrament began, or more probably after an oath of agreement or truce, is noticed as a crime for which no fmaller mulct than forty fhillings was demanded. (6)

The Payments for Transgreffions are, Blodeuuita, Hangewitha, Homicidium, Latrocinium or Latrones, and Legreuuita.

Blodewita, from the Saxon blod, blood, and pite, a fine or penalty, was a cuftomary amercement paid as a compofition for the fhedding or drawing of blood. (7) See the Laws of Henry the Firft, capp. 39. 70. 81. See alfo Ducange in voce.

Hangewitha is explained to have been the offence, (8) or rather the amercement for the offence, of hanging a thief without judgement, or for letting him efcape from cuftody. (9) It occurs in Domefday in the account of Chefter only. " Hangeuuithā faciens in ciuitate ⁊ x. fol. dab. ꝑpofit9 aut regis uel comitis hanc forisfacturā faciens ⁊ xx. folid emdabatur." (10) The Laws of the Conqueror fay: " Is qui prehenderit Latronem abfque fecta et abfque clamore, quem dimiferit ei cui damnum fecerit, et venerit poft ea, Juftitiam poftulaturus, rationi conveniens eft ut det x. folidos de Hengwite et finem faciat Juftitiæ ad primam curiam, et fi confirmetur in curia, abfque licentia Juftitiæ, fit forisfactura de xl. folidis." (11)

Homicidium, (12) in a fecondary fenfe, was the mulct or payment for homicide: called by the Saxons Manbote. In the " Decreta et Emendationes" prefixed to the Conqueror's Laws, the word occurs in

§ 6. Criminal and Civil Jurifdictions.

Latrocinium was alfo fometimes ufed for the mulct as well as the crime. Under Broctune in Huntingdonfhire it is faid: "Ifti fochi dicunt fe habuiffe Legreuuitā 7 Blodeuuitā 7 Latrociniu' fuū ufque ad IIII.[or] den.[r] 7 poft IIII. denar.[r] habeb abb [de Ramefyg] forisfacturā Latrocinij." (2) In the Laws of the Conqueror we read "Si Latrocinium fit inventum in cujuscunque terra fit et latro fimul, Dominus terræ et Uxor ejus habebunt medietatem bonorum Latronis, et vindicatores eorum catalla, fi illa invenerint, et alteram medietatem, fi repertum fit intra Sache et Soche perdat Uxor, et Dominus habebit." (3)

Legreuuita, or Lairwita, is explained by Spelman: "Stupri five concubitus illegitimi mulcta." (4) The forfeiture for Adultery or Fornication.

SECT. 7.—ECCLESIASTICAL MATTERS.

1. Places.

§ 7. Ecclefiaftical Matters.

IT has been already mentioned, that the Precept which directed the formation of the Domefday Survey, laid no injunction on the jurors to make a return of Churches. The mention of them, if at all made, was, of courfe, likely to be irregular.

So well acquainted with the Domefday Survey as Sir Henry Spelman muft have been, it is fomewhat fingular that he fhould have advanced, on the authority of Sprott's Chronicle, that at the time of its formation there were found to be no lefs than forty-five thoufand and eleven parifh Churches within the Kingdom, (5) whereas in truth the whole number actually noticed in the Survey, amounts to a few more than one thoufand feven hundred: and it is remarkable, that while two hundred and twenty-two Churches were returned from Lincolnfhire, two hundred and forty-three from Norfolk, and three hundred and fixty-four from Suffolk, one only can be found in the return for Cambridgefhire, and none in Lancafhire, Cornwall, or even Middlefex, the feat of the metropolis. The whole number of Churches recorded in the Survey falls confiderably under what there are grounds for concluding they muft have amounted to about or foon after the time of the Conqueft.

Et repertum fuit primo de fumma Ecclefiarum XLV. M. XI." Sprott lived about 1274.

§ 7. Ecclesiastical Matters.

Unexceptionable evidence has been adduced of the exiſtence of one Church in Kent, and of ſeveral others in Northamptonſhire, which certainly are not noticed in the Survey; ([1]) and in Oxfordſhire no notice whatever is taken of the Church of Dorcheſter, although the ſeat of a Biſhoprick had been removed from it but a ſhort time before the taking of the Survey. ([2])

The fourfold diſtinction of Churches, ſpecified in the third law of Canute, A.D. 1033, ([3]) ſeems to import that in his time all theſe ſacred edifices might together amount to a large number; and it is manifeſt that in the reign of Edward the Confeſſor, there muſt have been a very great increaſe of what were ſtrictly denominated Pariſh Churches, it being aſſerted in one of the laws aſcribed to that King, that in many places there were three or four Churches where in former times there was but one. ([4]) And if, as is commonly reported, thirty-ſix Churches were deſtroyed by the Conqueror, in order to enlarge the new foreſt in Hampſhire, this is an argument they could not be ſo few as the number entered in Domeſday is ſurmiſed to imply. ([5]) It has been further remarked, that if it was the landed property of the clergy that was the object principally in view, we need not be ſurprized that thoſe Churches, and their incumbents, ſhould be omitted which did not poſſeſs any quantity of Glebe; or if, as a matter of private obſervation, Churches without any land annexed to them might be often minuted in the return, others might be frequently left out as being thought of no conſequence in the enquiry. ([6])

The circumſtance of Preſbyteri occurring moſt frequently in Counties where ſcarcely any Eccleſiæ are noticed, gives ſtrength to the preſumption that the officers of the Exchequer who abridged the Returns conſidered the entry of the one as in moſt caſes implying the exiſtence of the other. In Leiceſterſhire, we have an enumeration of Preſbyteri at no leſs than forty-one places. At Medeltone in that county two prieſts are mentioned; at Wichingeton two, a clericus diſtinct from the preſbyter; and at Boſeworde two, a preſbyter and a deacon. Yet Æccleſiæ occur in the account of the town of Leiceſter only, where Hugo de Grentemaiſnell is ſaid to have had four Churches, and the Biſhop of Lincoln two. ([7]) In Norfolk the Æccleſiæ are numerous, and the Preſbyteri few. In ſhort, the Domeſday Book cannot be deciſively appealed to for the non-exiſtence of Pariſh Churches in the age in which it was compiled. ([8])

Inaſmuch as the enquiries of the King's Commiſſioners probably could not have extended to Churches unendowed with land, we need not be ſurpriſed to find the Tithes of Churches entered, for the moſt part, incidentally: and ſome counties without the ſlighteſt mention of them, even where there are Churches, as if the Churches had been entirely ſupported by voluntary oblations, dues, or maſſes. No Tithes are noticed in Somerſetſhire, Devonſhire, Cornwall, Middleſex, Hertfordſhire, and Leiceſterſhire.

§ 7. Ecclefiaftical Matters.

Selden, in his "Hiftory of Tythes," 4° Lond. 1618. dwells much on the frequent confecration of them, between A.D. 800 and A.D. 1200, to any Church or Monaftery at the owner's choice. He fays, "Although, out of any continuance alone of voluntary payment, a kind of parochial right were created, yet confecrations of Tithes (not yet eftablifhed by a civil title) made to the Church of another Parifh at the lay owner's choice, were practifed and continued in force." ([1]) In the Domefday Survey, he goes on to fay, "frequently enough, Churches are mentioned by the words of 'Ibi Æcclefia 7 Prefbyter,' or fuch like; and how many Carues or Hides of land, how many villans and other endowments and revenues belongs to them, are reckon'd, with their values. But very rarely any Tithes among thofe Church revenues are there found: if none at all had been nam'd, it might have been thought that they had been omitted as a more facred profit, than was fit to be taxed in fuch a Defcription. But fome, although very few, occur in it: as under Terra Ofberni Epifcopi in Bofeham in Suffex, you may there find, that Decimam Ecclefiæ Clerici tenent, et valet XL s. where the leaft value of the Manor is made at XL l. per annum. ([2]) In Hampfhire under Terra Ofberni Epifcopi, you read Ecclefia S. Michaelis de Monte tenet de Rege in Bafingeftoches Hundred, unam Ecclefiam cum I. hida et Decimam de Manerio de Bafingeftoches. Ibi eft Prefbyter. ([3]) So, in the fame Shire under Terra Regis; Ipfe Rex tenet Wallope, &c. ibi Ecclefia, cui pertinent una hida et medietas Decimæ Manerii et totum Curfet, et de Decima villanorum XLVI. denarii et medietas agrorum. Ibi eft Ecclefiola ad quam pertinent VIII. acræ de Decima. ([4]) And in the fame Shire alfo among the Abbot of Lire's poffeffions, the Tithe of Cladford is reckon'd, as alfo of Adrintone: and alfo the Tithes of Stanham: ([5]) and under Terra Canonicorum de Twinham is found, Ad hanc Ecclefiam pertinet tota decima de Twinham, et tertia pars Decimarum de Holeheft; ([6]) and in the Ifle of Wight there are VI. Churches, belonging to the Abbey of Lire, Decimas habent de omnibus redditibus Regis. ([7]) So, in Bedfordfhire, the Church of St. Mary de Corneliis hath divers Tithes among its revenues. ([8]) But the mention of Tithes where Churches are neverthelefs fpoken of, is but very feldome through that whole Defcription: and indeed in certain Counties, as Somerfet, Devon, Cornwall, and fome few others, you fhall rarely have a parifh Church noted, but in others, very often Churches are, but very few examples of their having Tithes: fometimes alfo grants of Tithes by lay owners are there mentioned, out of the ufe of which, it may be well thought that the moieties or third parts of Tithes belonging to this or that Church, had their beginnings." The arbitrary confecrations of Tithes were finally remedied by Pope Innocent the third, in a decretal Epiftle fent to the Archbifhop of Canterbury, and dated from the Palace of Lateran, about the year 1200. ([9])

The following are among the principal paffages in the Domefday Survey, befide thofe Mr. Selden quotes, which add ftrength to his obfervations. In the account of Bovecome in Hampfhire, tom. i. fol. 52. it is faid "Hujꝰ ϖ æcctam cũ unã v̓ træ ten̓ monachi de Lire. Ad hanc æcctam adjacent xx. mafuræ bordarioꝝ 7 reddt XIIII. fot. The payment of Tithes generally is feveral times enjoined in the Saxon Laws: and in the Liber Legum Ecclefiafticarum, printed in Wilkins's Concilia, vol. i. p. 265. there is an exprefs Law, to which the date of 994 is affigned, "Ut facerdotes aliorum parochianos ad fe non alliciant ob contrahendas decimas." Still the practice which Selden fpeaks of continued.

§ 7. Ecclesiastical Matters.

Tithes from their respective Parishes had not been occasionally made, it would have been unnecessary to have noted here that the whole of the Tithes of Bovecome belonged to the parish Church. By the testimony of the two shires of Nottingham and Derby, "de Stori antecessore Walterii de Aincurt. dnt qd sine alicuj⁹ licentia potuit facere sibi æcclam in sua tra 7 in sua soca 7 suã decimã mittere q uellet." (1) Under Colingeburne in Wiltshire we find the Tithe of a ruined Church transferred to the priest of another Parish. "Ad æcclam ptin dimid Hidã. Huj⁹ æcclæ decimã ten Girald⁹ pbr de Wiltone. 7 uat x. solid. Æccla uasta, 7 dissipata." (2) Among the Clamores in Chetsteven, we read, "Dicunt ptinere ad Æcclam de Granthã decimas 7 æcclasticas consuetudines de Winebruge Wap 7 de Treos Wap de omib₃ focis 7 inlandis quas rex habet ibi." (3) The Churches and Tithes and even the Priests on many of the King's manors in Herefordshire are stated to have belonged to St. Mary de Corneliis. Under Stanford in that county the Tithes only are mentioned as belonging to the Monastery. (4)

Among the endowed Churches, that of Boseham in Sussex was probably one of the richest. In the reign of King Edward it had had an appendage of land to the extent of a hundred and twelve hides, which, at the time of the Survey, were reduced to sixty-five hides. (5) The generality of Church endowments were infinitely smaller. A hide, a half-hide, or, in different degrees, from five to fifty acres, formed the usual extent of what was to support the Church. At Berchingas in Suffolk, a Church occurs endowed with eighty-three acres; (6) at Barsham in Norfolk, with a hundred acres. (7) The Church of Wellingovre in Lincolnshire had a hundred and twenty-nine acres of meadow, beside fourteen acres of other land. (8). The Church of Stantone in Shropshire had a hide and a half belonging to it. (9) Throughout Norfolk the value is added to almost every Church, with the quantity of land, however small, annexed to it.

"Æcclesia sine terra" occurs a few times in the second volume of the Survey, in the returns from Norfolk and Suffolk. In the Survey for Yorkshire, under Esingetun we find the singular entry of "Æccl'a sine p'bro." (10) Under Mortesfunde in Hampshire we read "Thomas Archieps ten unã æcclam 7 VI. capellas cũ om'i c'suetudine uiuo₇ 7 mortuo₇." (11) At the beginning of the account of Herefordshire it is said, "In Arcenefelde habet Rex tres æcclas. Presbiteri harũ æccl'arum ferunt legationes regis in Wales 7 quisq₃ eo₇ cantat pro rege II. missas una quaq₃ ebdomada. Siquis eo₇ moritur rex habet de eo XX. sol p csuetud." (12) Under Hamme in the same county, "Ad hoc ϖ ptin una æccla uocat Ladgvern. 7 ibi sunt III. car sed non geld' tra huj⁹ æccl'æ. Pbr redd II. sol inde." (13) In the account of Hertford we find one layman selling Churches to another. "Petrus de ualongies hĩ II. æccl'as cũ una domo. quas emit de Vluui de Hatfelde redd' om's c'suetudines. Ipse Vluui 7 dare eas 7 uende poterat." (14) Under Celsea in Berkshire, the Dues of the Church as well as the Tithes appear to be valued. "De hoc ϖ ten Abbatia de Monte S. Michaelis de rege unã æcclam cũ hida. Duo etiã pbri in ead uilla ten de rege in decima 7 æccla qd uat. IIII. lib." (15) In "Terra Colebni pbri." in Norfolk, it is said, "Fecit Coleb'nus q'dã eccl'am sc'i Nicholai. concessu regis 7 si rex concedit dabit. § 7. Ecclefiaftical Matters.

The Æcclefiolæ and Capellæ of the Survey appear to have been fometimes fubordinate to the Ecclefiæ, and fometimes feparately endowed. At Cebeham, in Surry, it is faid, "Ibi æccta 7 alia capella." (³) In Suffolk, under Wiffeta a Capella is mentioned as fubordinate to the Church. (⁴) In Norwich it is faid, "In burgo tenent burgenfes XLIII. Capellas." (⁵) After the mention of the Church of Tarentefort in Kent, it is faid, "extra hanc funt adhuc ibi. III. æcclefiolæ." (⁶) At Poftinges in Kent, "II. æcclefiolæ" occur without any notice of a Church. (⁷) The Æcclefiola at Wallope in Hampfhire, mentioned in a former page, (⁸) appears to have been independent of the mother Church.

Beneficium, as applied to a Church, is a term but once ufed in Domefday. (⁹)

It may be worth remarking, that while many of our antiquaries fuppofe that the Churches of the Anglo Saxons, more particularly in the earlier periods, were built of wood, one inftance only of a Church fo conftructed, occurs in Domefday, at Begeland in Yorkfhire. "Ibi pbr 7 eccta lignea." (¹⁰)

2. Persons.

PRESBYTERI occur in feveral of the counties as holding lands like ordinary tenants. In Leicefterfhire, under the title of "Elemofinæ Regis," we find four priefts and a female holding feparate parcels of land in capite. (¹¹) In Dorfetfhire, at Hinetone, it is faid, "De hac ead tra tenuit qdā pbr. I. hidā in tainlande (that is in hereditary fucceffion) 7 poterat cū ea ire q uoleb. Modo ē in dñio regis. (¹²) In many of the counties, more efpecially in Herefordfhire, Leicefterfhire, and Warwickfhire, Prefbyteri frequently occur claffed with the villani, radmanni, and bordarii upon the lords demefne. As on Earl Aubrey's demefne at Cliptone in Warwickfhire, "In dñio, funt. II. car̄. 7 XII. uitti cū pbro. 7 XX. bord." (¹³) So again, more than once, on the lands of the Earl of Mellent. In the account of Worcefterfhire, at Nadford, among the lands belonging to the abbey of Weftminfter, we read, "Ibi. ē pbr. fine car fine pecunia." (¹⁴) In Effex, under Bracteda, we read, "Tc̄. occurs, tom. i. fol. 373 b. The Capellani were frequently domestic priests, as Capellanus R. E.; Capellani Comitis Rogerii; Capellanus Episcopi de Hereford; Capellani Radulfi Comitis. The Clerici appear to have been in some instances the same with the Capellani. At Bosegrave, in Sussex, tom. i. fol. 25 b. "Clerici Æcclæ" occur, and at Elintone in Devonshire, tom. i. fol. 100 b. "Clerici uillæ." At Taceham, in Berkshire, tom. i. fol. 56 b. we read, "Æcclam huj⁹ ꝺ ten. II clerici. cū III. hid." In tom. i. fol. 16 b. Presbyteri and Clerici are used synonimously. Sacerdos occurs twice in the second Volume of the Survey.

3. Church Dues.

Circet.

Circesset, or Circieti, (pronounced Kirkesset and Kirket) from the Anglo-Saxon Cyric sceat, was Church-payment or Contribution. The Latin writers, says Bishop Kennett, have commonly called it Primitiæ Seminum, because it was at first a quantity of Corn paid to the Priest on St. Martin's day, as the first fruits of Harvest; enjoined by the Laws of King Ina, cap. iv. and King Canute, cap. x. ([1]) So, in the Survey, in the account of the lands belonging to Pershore Abbey in Worcestershire, we read "Dicit comitat⁹ qđ eccła de ꝑsore deƀ habere Circset de om̃ib; trecentis hid. scilicet de unaqq, hida ubi francus hõ manet unā summā annonæ in festo S. Martini": ([2]) and in the page immediately preceding, "Dicit uicecomitat⁹ qđ de unaquaq, hida træ. libera uel uillana. quæ ad æcclam de Wirceſtre ꝑtinet. debet eṗs habe in die festo S. Martini unā sūmā annonæ de meliori quæ ibidē crescit. Qđ si dies ille ñ reddita annona transierit ꝰ qui retinuit annonā reddet 7 undecies ꝑsoluet 7 insuꝑ forisfacturā eṗs accipiet. qualē de sua terra habere debet." ([3]) The payments for it, of course, varied. At Epinges in Sussex we read "de Circet XL. denar. ([4]) At Esseborne in Hampshire, "Circesset qđ appciat ꝰ XIIII. sol." ([5]) At Wadone in Dorsetshire, "De ea habeƀ æccła Abodesber T. R. E. VI. acs messis 7 III. Circsez de c̄suetuđ." ([6]) At Besintone in Oxfordshire, "de Circet XI. sol." ([7]) At Hedintone in the same county "x. sol. 7 VI. den": ([8]) and in the account of Lappewrte in the county of Worcester, "De hac tra p singulos annos reddunt ꝰ VIII. den ad æcclam de Wirecestre ꝑ Cirsette 7 recognitione terræ." ([9])

Bishop Kennett says, it was afterwards taken for a reserve of Corn rent, paid to the secular priests, or to the religious. So in the reign of Henry the Third, Robert de Hay, rector of Souldern, claimed from the abbot and convent of Oseney a certain measure of Corn under the title of Churchscet for their demesne lands in Mixbury. He adds, it was sometimes a general word, and included not only corn, but poultry or any other provision that was paid in kind to the religious. So in the Inquisition of the rents of the Abbey of Glastonbury, Anno 1201, "Manerium Glaston' reddit per an. in gabulo VII. lib. VI. sol. II. den. in Churchscet lx. gallinas et semen frumenti ad tres acras. Cartul. de Glaston. MS. fol. 38." ([10])

The payment seems not to have been actually made till the Martinmas following. See the previous injunction in the laws of Ina already referred to.

§ 8. Hiſtorical Events noticed in this Record.

Sect. 8.—HISTORICAL EVENTS NOTICED IN THIS RECORD.

OF hiſtorical facts, there are but few notices; and by far the greater number are caſual. The references to Reigns earlier than that of Edward the Confeſſor are ſcarcely worth noticing. In two or three entries the time of Cnut is mentioned. Four hides of land at Wenloch in Shropſhire, belonging to the abbey of Saint Milburgh, are ſtated to have been releaſed from geld, "T. R. Chnut." (1) Two hides of land at Bedesfeld in Cheſhire, claimed from the manor of Robert Fitz Hugh, are mentioned as having belonged to the See of Cheſter at the ſame period. (2) And at the end of what relates to Sudminſtre in Eſſex, it is ſaid, "Hanc trã tulit Gnut rex." (3) Once alſo we have the mention of Æthelred the father of King Edward. (4)

The memory of Edward the Confeſſor appears to be treated with the greateſt reſpect throughout the Survey. In two inſtances he is termed "glorioſus rex Edwardus." (5) We have alſo alluſions to the facts and circumſtances of his reign. His gifts to monaſteries are more than once entered. His gift of Sandwich to the church of the Holy Trinity at Canterbury is particularly noticed. (6) He is ſtated to have beſtowed the manor of Melehou in Bedfordſhire, which at the time of the Survey was held by the Biſhop of Durham, on Harold's foundation at Waltham. (7) And, in his ſickneſs, to have given two hides at Ameſbury to the Abbeſs of Wiltun. (8)

In the account of the lands belonging to the See of Cheſter, King Edward is ſaid to have given all the land beyond the Dee to Grifin; but when Grifin forfeited it, it was reſtored to the See. (9) This Grifin was Griffith ap Llewellyn, King of North Wales, whoſe irruption into Herefordſhire with Blein or Blethyn, in 1054, had been before noticed, when the land in Arcenefeld is ſaid to have been waſted. (10)

Among the more eminent perſons of the reign of Edward the Confeſſor, mentioned in different parts of the Survey, we find Siward Earl of Northumberland, another Siuuard "teinus 7 cognatus regis Edwardi," (11) Godeva, the celebrated counteſs of Mercia, and Edric the admiral, "rector nauis R. E." who, after William's arrival, is ſaid to have lived an outlaw in Denmark. (12) Hereward alſo is mentioned, the mirror of Knighthood in the Saxon period; (13) and "Ælueua ſoror Heraldi," of whom, if we may judge from the minute account given by Sir William Dugdale of Earl Goduuin's family in the Baronage, no mention is made by our hiſtorians. (14)

The exile of Goduuin and Harold is once alluded to in Herefordſhire. Goduuin, in an interlineation above his name, is occaſionally ſtiled comes, but more generally liber homo, a title which appears throughout the Survey to have been given to the greateſt and moſt powerful Earls of the preceding time: (15) and even to Harold himſelf.

§ 8. Historical Events noticed in this Record.

Throughout the Survey Harold is conſtantly ſpoken of as the uſurper of the realm: "quando regnum invaſit." Once only, at Sudbertune in Hampſhire, it is ſaid, "quando regnabat." Of William it is as conſtantly ſaid, "poſtquam venit in Angliam." Once only does the expreſſion occur, "poſtquam W. rex conquiſiuit Angliam;" when he conquered, or acquired England. (1) Haroldus invaſit is alſo the language of the Chartulary of Battle abbey. "Anno ab Incarnatione Domini M.lxvi. Dux Normannorum nobiliſſimus Willelmus cum manu valida pugnatorum in Angliam tranſnavigavit, ut regnum Angliæ, ſibi a ſuo conſanguineo Rege Ædwardo dimiſſum, de manu Heraldi, qui illud tirannica fraude invaſerat, abſtraheret." (2) In a few inſtances the names of perſons are recorded who fell either in the battle between Harold and the Norwegians, or in the fatal field of Haſtings. (3)

The deciſion of the cauſe tried by virtue of a ſpecial commiſſion in the county court of Kent at Pinnenden, about the year 1072, when Archbiſhop Lanfranc recovered twenty-five manors in different counties of which he had been diſſeiſed by Odo Biſhop of Baieux and Earl of Kent, is pointedly alluded to. (4)

The irruption of Trhearn ap Coradoc in 1074 is clearly noticed in Glouceſterſhire, where we find "IIII. uillæ waſtatæ per regem Caraduech." (5)

The Conqueror's journey into Wales alſo, in 1079, is alluded to, tom. i. fol. 31 b. "Quidā p̃poſit⁹ regis nõe Loſus hoc ꝳ calũniat:· 7 hoẽs de Hunđ illi teſtificant:· qͥa tenebat illud de rege q'do fuit rex in Wales. 7 poſt tenuit. donec ẽps baioc in Chent prex̃." (6)

It is remarkable, that not a ſingle manor in any part of England, or even the ſmalleſt portion of land, is put down in the Survey as belonging to any of the Conqueror's ſons. There is one entry, however, which places his ſecond ſon, William, in the light of an uſurper of property. Among the lands belonging to the Biſhop and Monks of Saliſbury, at Staplebrige in Dorſetſhire, we read, "De eađ etiā tra ten Manaſſes III. virg qͣs. W. fili⁹ regis tulit ab æccła ſine conſenſu Ep̃i 7 monachorum." (7)

Mathilda, a daughter of the Conqueror unnoticed by any of our hiſtorians, occurs in the account of Hampſhire. (8)

1 Compare Script. Norm. antiq. a Ducheſne. p. 204. In two inſtances among the poſſeſſions of Battle Abbey, and almoſt throughout the lands of the Earl of Ow in Suſſex, (tom. i. fol. 17 b. 18. 18 b. 19.) the deſtruction occaſioned by the Conqueror's army on its firſt arrival is apparent; more particularly under Witinges, Holintun (Hollington), Bexelei (Bexhill), Wileſham, Croheſt (Crowhurſt), Wiltingham, Watlintone (Wartlington), Nedrefelle (Netherfield), Brunham (Aſhburnham), Haſleſſe, Wigentone, Wilendone, Salhert, Driſnefel, Geſtelinges (Gueſtling), Luet, Hiham (Iham the ſite of the preſent town of Winchelſea), and Seleſcome. The value of each manor is given as it ſtood in the reign of Edward the Confeſſor; afterwards it is ſaid "vaſtatum fuit," and then follows the value at the time of the Survey. The reader who takes the Map of Suſſex and proceeds eaſtward from Pevenſey, by Bexhill, Crowhurſt, Hollington, Gueſtlinge, and Icklesham, round by Ledeſcombe, Wartlington, and Aſhburnham, will form a circuit of country very near the centre of which ſtands Battle, the ſpot of the Conqueror's victory. It is remarkable that of the places above enumerated from Domeſday, ſeveral are mentioned as having been originally the property of Earl Godwin, Harold, or the Counteſs Goda.

SECT. 9.—ILLUSTRATIONS OF ANCIENT MANNERS.

THERE are a few paſſages in Domeſday peculiarly illuſtrative of ancient Manners. In Berkſhire, tom. i. fol. 57 b. is this ſingular entry under the royal demeſnes at Henret, now Hendred: "Henric⁹ teñ ibi I hid quæ fuerat in firma regis. Godricus tenuit. Aluric⁹ de Tacehā dicit ſe uidiſſe breuem regis qđ eā dederit feminæ Godrici in dono. eo q'd nutriebat canes suos. Sed nemo ē in Hunđ qui breuem uiderit ꝑter Aluricum." ([1])

Gifts of lands "de uictu et ueſtitu Monachorum" frequently occur. In the account of Wiltſhire it is ſaid, "Ipſa æccła [Wiltun] tenebat II. hiđ T.R.E. quas Toret dederat ibi cū duab⁹ filiab⁹ ſuis 7 ex eis ſēp fueř ueſtitæ donec eṗs baiocſis injuste abſtulit æcclæ." ([2])

In the account of the manor of Hiwi in Wiltſhire, belonging to Ralph de Mortimer, we have an inſtance of holding for three lives. "Toti emit eā T.R.E. de æccła Malmesƀienſi. ad etatē triū ho'um. 7 infra hc̄ tminū poterat ire cū ea ad quē uellet dñm." ([3]) So, among the lands held under Perſhore Abbey at Wadberge by Urſo. "Hanc emit qdā Godricus tein⁹ regis E. uita triū hæredū. 7 dabat in anno monachis. I firmā ꝓ recognitione. Modo hř hanc trā tcius hæres. ſcilicet Vrſo qui eā tenet. Poſt cuj⁹ mortē debet redire ad æcclam S. Mariæ." ([4]) A third inſtance will be noticed preſently at Eſcelie in Worceſterſhire. ([5]) This cuſtom, however, is older than Domeſday. It is noticed in the "Indiculum Libertatis de Oſwaldes Lawes Hundred" of the time of Edgar—"per ſpatium temporis trium hominum, id eſt, duorum poſt ſe heredum." In Dorſetſhire, under Cateſclive, we have the purchaſe of a leaſe for life. "Hanc trā ſimilit emit Alnod ab eṗo Aluuoldo. ea c̄uentione ut poſt ej⁹ mortē ad æcclam rediret." ([6])

Somerſetſhire is the firſt County in the Survey in which we have mention of the Ordeal. Of certain lands connected in cuſtomary rents and ſervices with Taunton we read, "De his oñib₃ tris facturi ſacrañtū ut Judiciū portaturi ad Tantone ueniunt." ([7]) In the account of Lincoln, alſo, in contradiction of the teſtimony of the burgeſſes of the city, it is ſaid, "Sed his jurantib₃ contradicit Vluiet pƀr 7 offert ſe portaturū Judicium qđ non ita eſt ſicuti dicunt." ([8]) In the ſecond volume of the Survey the readineſs of claimants to prove by Ordeal or by Battle occurs in a greater variety of inſtances. In Norfolk, "In Mateleſc ubi comes Alan⁹ teñ calupniat. I. ho regis. XVI. ac terræ offerendo Juditiu ł Bellu cont hunđ. qđ teſtat eos comiti. s; quidā ho comitis uult ꝓbare qđ hunđ uerū teſtatur ł Juditio ł Bello. Ribald⁹ ten&." ([9]) In the ſame County, under Biſkele it is ſaid, "Hanc terrā calūpniatur Godricus Dapifer ꝑ hominē ſuum Juditio ł Bello. Radulfū ſcilic&. qđ tenuit ad feudū comitis. R. 7 hunđ teſtatur ad feudū R. Bigot." ([10]) And among the lands belonging to the Monaſtery of Ely in Photeſtorp we read, "Hanc trā calumpniat eſſe liƀam Vlchetel hō Hermeri. qcq, m judicet ł Bello ł

Land in Dower occurs in Gloucestershire among the property of Roger de Laci. "Isđ Rog̃ ten̄ Svintone. 7 mat̃ ej⁹ ten̄ de sua dote." (2) Of land at Legra in Essex it is said, "Iste Scalpin⁹ dedit uxori suæ in dote. uidentib; ııb; ho'ib; scit Rog̊o Marescalco & qdā anglico." (3) In the account of the Customs of Oxfordshire we read, "Si quis aliquē interfecerit intra curiā ut domū suam, corpus ejus et omnis substantia sunt in potestate regis ꝑter dotem uxoris ejus si dotatā habuerit." (4)

In Worcestershire, under Escelie, we have a remarkable instance of a nuncupative Will. "Hoc Ꝑ emit isđ Wluuin⁹ T. R. E. de ep̄o Cestrensi ad ætatē triū hõum. Qui cū infirmat⁹ ad finē uitæ ueniſſet: uocato filio suo ep̄o. Li. (5) 7 uxore sua & plurib; amicis suis: dixit. Audite uos amici mei. Hoc ita fuisse testificant̄ meliores hões toti⁹ comitat⁹." (6)

In the same County also we have two remarkable instances of the ancient Method of giving Seisin. Under Witene, of certain land belonging to Urso de Abetot, it is said, "Hanc t̃rā donauit qdā Vluiet eiđ æcctæ de Euesħā. 7 posuit donū sup' Altare qdo fili⁹ ei⁹. Aluiet fact⁹ est ibi monachus. Hoc factū ē qnto anno regni regis E. Postea ů præstitit abb Æluuin⁹ hanc t̃rā suo auunculo quādiu ipse hõ uiueret. W. in Anglia ueniſſet. 7 tenuit isđ abb qdiu uixit. 7 etiā successor ei⁹ Walterius abb similit̃ tenuit amplius quā VII. annis." (7) And under Hantune, "Hoc Ꝑ emit abb ei⁹dē ecclæ [i. e. Euesham] a q̊dā taino qui t̃rā suā recte poterat uendere cui uellet. T. R. E. 7 emptū donauit æcctæ ꝑ unū Textū (8) positū super Altare. teste Comitatu." (9) An Entry not unsimilar occurs in the second Volume, under Breccles in Norfolk: "In Breccles XXV. ac̃ semp dim̃ car̃. v. soc̃ in Sabam & ꝑposit⁹ de Saham uendidit t. r. Witti per unum frenum." (10)

In Huntingdonshire we have a reference to a custom still in part retained among our Colleges and corporate societies. Turchil, who held Coninctune of the Countess Judith, had also held six hides of the land of the abbat of St. Mary Thorney, for which, it is said, "Karitatem reddebat," he made an allowance of liquor, which was drank at festivals by the religious in commemoration of their founders and benefactors. "Homines de hunđædo," it is added, "nesciunt quantum." (11) The "Poculum Charitatis," or Grace-Cup, is still retained under the same designation in our Universities.

The Ordeal, it is well known, was of two kinds, Fire-Ordeal and Water-Ordeal. The ceremonies attending both are described in the Laws of Ina. Wilk. Leg. Anglo-Sax. p. 27. See also the Laws of Æthelstan, Edward the Confessor, and the Conqueror. Ibid. pp. 60, 198, 229. "Ferri candentis Judicium," the taking a piece of red-hot iron in the hand, is the only Ordeal noticed in the Survey. The reason of this is given by Glanville, Tract. de Leg. & Consuet. Regni Angliæ, 12° Lond. 1604. l. xiv. c. 1. "In tali autem casu tenetur se purgare is qui accusatur per Dei judicium, scilicet per callidum ferrum, vel per aquam, pro diversitate hominum, scilicet per ferrum callidum si fuerit homo liber, per aquam si fuerit rusticus." Throughout Domesday, the claimants of land were likely to be of the higher rank. We have not a single instance in the Survey of the Ordeal by Water. The trial by battle was entirely of Norman introduction. See Blackst. Comment. 4°. Oxf. 1766. vol. iii. p. 337. For the abolition of the Ordeal in the reign of Henry the third, compare Rymer, Fœd. tom. i. p. 228.

The practice of Hawking is illustrated by numerous Entries. In several places we find a sum, no less than ten Pounds, made the optional payment for a Hawk: (1) and, at Worcester, a Norway Hawk is particularly specified. (2) In the account of Surrey we read, under Pechingeorde, "Hoēs epi Baiocsis calūniant sup hanc trā ad op⁹ regis p singlos annos II. mark auri. vel II. accipitres. 7 hoc p c̄cessionē abbis fr̄is Osuuoldi." (3) In Gloucestershire, we find it said of certain Villæ, "Hi reddunt XLVII. sextaria mellis. 7 XL. porc. 7 XLI. uaccas 7 XXVIII. solid pro accipitrib3." (4) Among the possessions of Battle Abbey, at Limenesfeld, "III. nidi accipitr in silua" are mentioned. (5) Aeries of Hawks are noticed in Buckinghamshire, (6) Gloucestershire, (7) Worcestershire, (8) Herefordshire, (9) Shropshire, (10) and, more frequently than in other Counties, in Cheshire (11): as well as among the Lands between the Ribble and the Mersey. (12) An Aery, says Dr. Nash, includes not only the nest or brood, but the place destined for the breeding or training of Hawks. (13) The liberty of keeping these Aeries, he adds, was in early times granted as a privilege to some great persons; as in a Charter of Henry the third to the Church of York: "In nemore de Blideward habebat Archiepiscopus et Canonici de Ebor' proprios forestarios suos, et mel, et airas accipitrum et noisorum." (14)

The custom of a Widow not marrying again till after a year, seems noticed in the Survey of Norfolk, under Plummesteda: "p⁹q rex. W. uenit in hanc terrā inuasit Almarus eps̄ p foris factura. quia mulier que tenuit nupsit intra annu' p⁹ morte' uiri." (15) This was in conformity to the Saxon Laws. In the "Liber Constitutionum" of 1008, it is said, "Quælibet Vidua quæ seipsam in pace cum Deo et Rege tenuerit, permaneat XII. menses absque marito, postea eligat quemcunque ipsa voluerit." (16) Here it was only an Injunction. Canute's laws imposed a severe penalty: "Et vivat quælibet Vidua absque marito duodecim menses, deinde eligat quem ipsa velit. Et si illa intra anni spatium, maritum eligeret, tunc perdat ea dotem mariti sui, et omnem possessionem, quam ipsa per priorem maritum habebat. Et capiant proximi amici terram et possessionem quam illa prius habuit; et sit ille maritus capitis æstimationis reus apud Regem, vel apud illum, qui immunitatem concesserat. Et licet ipsa vi sit rapta, perdat eam possessionem, nisi illa a marito post hæc recedere et nunquam ipsius uxor esse velit. Et nunquam vidua sacris nimium festinantur initietur. Quælibet etiam vidua præstet armamentum intra annum, nisi prius mulctæ ex aliquid opportune fecerit." (17)

III.—ORIGINAL USES AND CONSEQUENCES OF THIS SURVEY.

BY the completion of this Survey the King acquired an exact knowledge of the poffeffions of the crown. It afforded him the names of the land-holders. It furnifhed him with the means of afcertaining the military ftrength of the country: and it pointed out the poffibility of increafing the revenue in fome cafes, and of leffening the demands of the Tax Collectors in others. ([1]) It was, moreover, a Regifter of Appeal for thofe whofe titles to their property might be difputed.

Sir William Blackftone has obferved that from the prodigious flaughter of the Englifh nobility at the battle of Haftings, and the fruitlefs infurrections of thofe who furvived, fuch numerous forfeitures had accrued, that William was able to reward his Norman followers with very large and extenfive poffeffions. ([2]) Eadmer, Ingulph, and Henry of Huntingdon complain heavily of the extirpation of the Englifh from offices of honour, power, and emolument, in Church and State. Yet this muft have been the natural confequence of fuch a change as that which was occafioned by the arrival of the Normans. The Soldiers and minifterial dependants of the Conqueror were to be rewarded: and we cannot wonder to fee them form the larger portion of the tenants in Capite. We find the Churches and Monafteries however ftill retaining their ancient patrimony, in fome cafes with confiderable additions from the Conqueror himfelf. ([3])

Edgar Adeling, the grandfon of Edmund Ironfide and heir to the Crown, occurs as a tenant in capite in Hertfordfhire. ([4])

Godeva, the widow of Leofric Earl of Mercia, occurs as a Tenant in Capite in Leicefterfhire: ([5]) and Alveva, the mother of Earl Morcar, continued at the time of the Survey to hold lands in the fame County. ([6]) So alfo in Suffolk, although the land noticed in this latter entry muft have been under fequeftration: "Terra Matris Morchari Comitis quam Willielmus Camerarius et Otho Aurifex fervant in manu regis." ([7])

Rembaldus, the Chancellor of Edward the Confeffor, and Dean of the Collegiate Church of Cirencefter, befides his ecclefiaftical preferments, is entered as holding confiderable eftates: ([8]) and very numerous inftances might be adduced of property held by men who had been either Thanes or Miniftri in the Court of Edward the Confeffor. ([9])

[1] Under Eldewincle in Northamptonfhire, tom. i. fol. 222. we read, "Valuit. xx. fol. Modo. xxx. fol. Si bene exerceret'. c. fol ualet." Inftances of finking in the value of property may be found in almoft every County. In Yorkfhire, which had been laid wafte by the fword, the inftances of depreciation are exceedingly numerous, even among the "Terræ Regis." Of the Manor of Walesgrif, tom. i. fol. 299. it is faid, "T. R. E. uat LVI. libras m° xxx. fol.". Of Picheringa, ibid. "H' Man uat T. R. E. qt xx 7 VIII. lib m°. xx fol. 7 IIII. den." Of Drifelt, fol. 299 b. "T. R. E. uat XL. lib. M° ht rex & eft wast." Of thefe with fixteen other Manors in this County, all belonging to the King, (fol. 299. 299 b.) which appear to have been collectively valued in the reign of Edward the Confeffor at £565. 2. 0. three appear in the time of the Conqueror to have been completely wafted, and the reft to have produced the fmall fum of £38. 9. 4.

The Sub-feudatarii, or under-tenants, were difturbed, comparatively, in fewer inftances.

Original Ufes and Confequences of this Survey.

Of the importance which William himfelf attached to the completion of the Survey, we have a fufficient evidence at the clofe of a grant which he made foon afterwards to the Abbey of Weftminfter. It gives the Monks their poffeffions at Piriford; and finifhes, " Teftibus W. Epifcopo Dunelmenfi & F. Taillebofc, Poft Defcriptionem totius Angliæ." ([1]) And that the value of the Great Survey was thoroughly perceived at a time but little fubfequent to the Conqueft, we learn from Robertus Montenfis, who informs us it was imitated in Normandy by Henry the Second. ([2])

Matthew of Weftminfter, and Matthew Paris after him, fay that a Tax of six fhillings was raifed upon every hide in confequence of the Survey; but they fay nothing of its having been raifed for any fpecific purpofe. The author of the Saxon Chronicle, however, Hoveden, Henry of Huntingdon, the Chronicle of Mailros, and Simeon of Durham, feparate this Tax from any connection with the Survey. They reprefent the Tax to have been levied at the end of 1083, or the beginning of 1084, immediately after the death of Queen Matilda: and place the formation of the Survey at a later Time.

In the Inquifitio Geldi for the five weftern counties in the Exeter Manufcript, Danegeld is throughout computed at fix fhillings per hyde, and wherever it differs it is only in fmall fractions, owing to the miftakes of the writer or copier, to which, by the manner in which they at that time expreffed their fums and quantities, they were very liable ([3]).

By this Survey the Conqueror was enabled to fix the proportion of Danegeld on the property of each landholder. Danegeld, from the payment of which the Confeffor had abfolved the Englifh, was revived at an early period of William's reign: and it had become fubject to numerous exemptions. The demefne lands of churchmen and religious houfes were uniformly excufed. The demefne lands of the great lords, and barons, and others who held by military fervice, were likewife exempted: and partial exemptions were made in favour of the barons of the exchequer, the fheriffs of counties, and the affeffors and collectors of the Tax: a few exemptions, alfo, were claimed under efpecial grants from the King: by means of all which, it will be readily believed, the produce of the Tax had been much diminifhed. The Geld is never once mentioned in the county of Northampton. ([4]) In Somerfetfhire, out of a hundred and thirteen hides of land in Witestane hundred, Danegeld was anfwered to the crown for no more than fifty hides. Out of a hundred and four hides in Camefham hundred, for only fifty hides. In Devonshire, out of twenty-five hides in the hundred of Plintone, it was paid only for nine hides and a virgate. In Dorsetshire, out of thirty-four hides and a half in Pimpire hundred, it was answered only for thirteen hides. In Wiltshire, out of fifty-two hides in Stapla hundred, it was paid only for fourteen hides and half a virgate. And, in Cornwall, out of forty-four hides in Pantone hundred, Danegeld was answered for only eight hides. IV.—ITS CONSERVATION AND AUTHORITY IN COURTS OF LAW.

Its Conservation and Authority in Courts of Law.

"LIBER de Wintonia," the very name by which the Domesday Survey, in one passage, designates itself, is a sufficient evidence of the first place of its deposit. Ingulphus, who lived in the reign of the Conqueror, however, appears to have obtained extracts from it at London: (2) and the History of the foundation of Burton Abbey, gives a description of land more than once, "ut habetur in Libro de Domusdie, apud WINTONIAM et WESTMONASTERIUM. (3)

The exact time of the removal of the Record, if there was originally but one copy, cannot now be ascertained. Certain it is, that at a very early period it is described, in the Dialogus de Scaccario, as the inseparable companion of the Royal Seal. (4) And, it is possible that the name of Liber de Wintonia might only allude to the place where the Returns from the different counties were breviated; and that the original, immediately, or very soon after its completion, was removed to Westminster.

At Westminster it was kept with the King's Seal, by the side of the Tally-court in the Exchequer, under three locks and keys, in the charge of the auditor, the chamberlains, and deputy chamberlains of the Exchequer; (5) till in 1696 it was deposited among other valuable Records in the Chapter House, where it still remains.

Appeals to the decision of this Survey occur at a very early period. Petrus Blesensis notices an appeal of the Monks of Croyland to it in the Reign of Henry the First. (6) Others occur in the Abbreviatio

Abb. S. Petri de Burgo, ed. Sparkes. fol. 1723. calls Domesday, by mistake, "Rotulus WIRCESTRIÆ."

4 Dialog. de Scacc. lib. i. cap. xvi.

5 In the Abbreviatio Placitorum Trin. 18 Edw. I. Bedf. rot. 39. p. 222. we read "Et profert Librum de Domesday sub Sigillo Scaccarii."

6 "Præfato siquidem Abbati Eveshamii Mauricio successit ad dicti Eveshamensis Monasterii regimen pastorale Dominus Reginaldus monachus Gloucestriæ; cujus primis diebus cum terminus centum annorum firmæ de Baddeby compleretur, venerabilis abbas Croylandiæ Joffridus, licet occupatus multum fuisset suam Ecclesiam necnon alia magna et sumtuosa ædificia nuper ab igne consumta reædificando, tamen cum jurisperitis communicato consilio, et longo libramine examinans quid circa manerium de Baddeby Conventus suus decerneret faciendum: licet Chartæ originales combustæ fuissent, et Charta restaurationis dictum manerium continens quo in loco per prædecessorem suum Ingulphum

Its Conservation and Authority in Courts of Law.

Placitorum. In the first year of King John. it is said, "Abbas Sampson [S. Edmundi] queritur quod Osbertus de Wechesham, miles episcopi Eliensis, injuste levavit furcas et suspendium fecit in manerio de Hecham infra libertatem Sancti Edmundi et contra libertatem quam habuit beatus Edmundus a tempore Regis Edwardi et ex ejusdem Regis dono, et inde protulit Cartas diversorum regum, et preterea ponit se inde super ROTULUM WINTONIÆ. (1) Another instance, in a case of antient demesne, occurs in the eleventh of King John. "Robertus Camerarius ponit se super ROTULUM WINTONIÆ quod terra illa pertinet a Conquestu Angliæ ad feudum quod ipse habet tenere in capite de Domino Rege." (2) In subsequent reigns the pleadings upon antient demesne are extremely numerous, as may be seen in the Index to that work. (3) The proof of antient Demesne still rests with the Domesday Survey. (4)

Other cases in which its evidence is yet appealed to in our courts of law, are, in proving the antiquity of Mills, and in setting up prescriptions in non decimando. By the statute of the 9th of Edward the second, called Articuli Cleri, it was determined that prohibition should not lie upon demand of Tithe for a new Mill. (5) The Mill therefore which is found in Domesday must be presumed older than the 9th of Edward the second, and is, of course, discharged, by its evidence, from Tithe.

On the discharge of Abbey lands from tithes, as proved by Domesday, it may be proper to state that Pope Paschal the second, at an early period, exempted generally all the religious from paying tithes of lands in their own hands. This privilege was afterwards restrained to the four favoured Orders, the Cistercians, the Templars, the Hospitalers, and the Premonstratensians. So it continued till the 4th Instances relating to the search whether Towns belonged to the King's antient demesne in Domesday will be found in Madox's Firma Burgi, p. 5. A remarkable one, also, concerning Tavistock, will be found in the Abbrev. Placit. Mic. 7 Ed. I. Devon. rot. 7. p. 270. Upon a trial 37 Hen. VI. it was certified by the book of Domesday that London was not ancient demesne. Year Books 37 Hen. VI. p. 27.

Kelham says, "A question arising in the 12th of Edward the Third, whether the lands of Roger de Huntingfeld were holden of the King ut de Corona or ut de Baronia vel Honore; the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer were directed by the King's writs to search Domesday and other Records, and to call to their assistance the Judges and others of the King's Council, and to make their return thereof; they accordingly returned to the King in his Chancery a certificate, by which they set forth several things which were found upon the search, and (inter alia) verbatim what they found relating thereto in Domesday; but as to the words contained in the said book of Domesday, they set forth they were not able to make a declaration or interpretation of them, unless just as the words sounded: 'Nescimus interpretationem facere nisi quatenus verba inde sonant.' Council of Lateran in 1215, when the privilege was again restrained to such lands as the Abbies had at that time, and was declared not to extend to any after-purchased lands. And it extends only to lands dum propriis manibus coluntur. ([1]) From the paucity of dates in early documents, the Domesday Survey is very frequently the only evidence which can be adduced that the lands claiming a discharge were vested in the Monastery before the year expressed in the Lateran Council. ([2])

V.—PUBLICATION OF THE SURVEY.

Publication of the Survey.

IN 1767, in consequence of an Address of the House of Lords, His Majesty was graciously pleased to give directions for the publication, among other Records, of the Domesday Survey. ([3]) In the following year, specimens, one executed with types, the other by engraving, were submitted by command of the Lords of His Majesty's Treasury to the President and Council of the Society of Antiquaries, for their opinion: and an engraved copy of the work appears to have been at first considered as the most proper and advisable. ([4]) At the close, however, of 1768, the fairest and most perfect Letter having been selected from different parts of the Survey, a resolution was taken to print it with metal types. A fac-simile type, uniform and regular, with tolerable exactness though not with all the corresponding nicety of the original, was at last obtained, ([5]) and the publication was entrusted to Mr. Abraham Farley, a gentleman of learning as well as of great experience in Records, and who had had almost daily recourse to the Book for more than forty years.

[5] It was projected by Mr. John Nichols, and executed by Mr. Joseph Jackson.

It was not however till after 1770 that the Work was actually commenced. It was completed early in 1783, having been ten years in passing through the Press. The Type with which it was executed was destroyed in the fire which consumed Mr. Nichols's Printing-office in the Month of February 1808. Publication of the Survey.
